

WILL BUY NO FLOUR UNTIL NEXT HARVEST

SOUTH CAROLINA CLUB WOMEN ADOPT PATRIOTIC RESOLUTION AT AIKEN.

SAVE WHEAT FOR OUR ALLIES

More Than 5,000 Women Pledged to a Wheatless Program Through the Action of the South Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs.—Will Have Far-Reaching Effect.

More than 5,000 club women of South Carolina are pledged to a wheatless program by the action of the South Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, who in convention at Aiken on April 26 unanimously adopted a resolution to buy no more wheat flour until after the next harvest.

This action was taken upon the request of William Elliott, food administrator for South Carolina, who wired the club women in session at Aiken of the urgent necessity of saving wheat in order that America may carry out the obligation to the Allies.

Governor Manning, who addressed the club women on Thursday night, urged that Mr. Elliott's request be acted upon.

There are upwards of 125 federated clubs in South Carolina, and the effect of their large membership going on a wheatless ration will have a far-reaching effect. It sets a splendid example for the people of the State to follow, as the need for wheat for the comrade people in Allied countries is urgent at this time.

Victory bread does not represent a sacrifice sufficient for the club women of South Carolina, who are willingly giving up all wheat breads until the world shortage of wheat, existing at the present time, is relieved by another harvest.

ACREAGE IN CORN MUST BE INCREASED

Essential that South Carolina Farmers Plant for Greater Production This Year, Says the Food Administration.—Still Time to Plant Late Varieties.

Columbia.—Cotton is no longer the one money crop in South Carolina. In the present situation, created by the world war, with a hungry world to be fed, the Food Administration calls upon the farmers of South Carolina to increase their acreage planted in corn this year.

Men who watch the world situation closely are of the opinion that the price of corn, higher than for many years, will retain its high level. It seems that it would be impossible for the price of corn to decline, even with a considerably larger production this year. The world cry is for food. Food prices are not likely to be lower, and there is no reason why corn should be an exception to the rule. As a matter of fact, corn becomes a money crop, or may be so considered. Prospects are even for higher prices for corn. The world situation seems to give the price of corn a certain stability. On the other hand, cotton prices are more or less uncertain and speculative, as was shown by the recent big decline.

These are advanced as some of the business reasons for increasing the acreage planted in corn this year. With a war to win, and considering America's obligation to feed the Allied countries, the strictly business reasons must be regarded as supplemental to the primary reason—the absolute necessity, as a matter of patriotism, as a military necessity, to increase the world's food supply.

SUGAR FOR CANNING WILL BE OBTAINABLE

Columbia.—Sugar will be obtainable in sufficient quantities for canning and preserving the Food Administration announces.

All retail grocers of the state are being supplied with blank certificates. Persons desiring to obtain sugar for canning and preserving will be required to sign one of these certificates, leaving the same with the grocer from whom the sugar is obtained. They must pledge themselves to return to the grocer any surplus sugar that is not used for canning.
