Disciple of Christ May Expect. in the Next World - Reward of Self-Sacrifice.

(Copyright, 1905; by Lieuts Klopsch, N. T.) Washington, Jan. 13 In a very novel way Dr. Talmage in this discourse describes what may be expected in the next world by those who here bend all their energies in the right direction; text, II Peter "For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly."

Different styles of welcome at the gate of Heaven are here suggested. We all hope to enter that supernal capital through the grace that is ready to save even the chief of sinners. But not now No man healthy of body and mind wants to go now. The man who hurls himself out of this life is either an agnostic or is and does not care where he lands. This is the best world we ever got got into, and we want to stay here es long as God will let us stay. But when the last page of the volume of our earthly like is ended we want enrollment in Heavenly citizenship. We want to get in easily. We do not want to be challenged at the gate and asked to show our passports. We do not want the gatekeeper in doubt as to whether we ought to go in at all. We do not want to be kept in the portico of the temple until consulta-tion is made as to where we came from and who we are and whether It is safe to admit us lest we be a discord in the eternal harmonies or lower the spirit of Heavenly worship. When the apostle Peter in the text addresses the people: "For so an entrance shall be administered unto you abundantly," he implies that some will find admission into Heaven easy, rapturous and acclamatory. while others will have to squeeze through the gate of Heaven, if they get in at all. They will arrive anx-lous and excited and apprehensive and wondering whether it will be "Come!" The Bible speaks of such persons as "scarcely saved," and in enother place as "saved as by fire." and in another place as escaped "by the skin of the teeth."

text, I propose to show you what classes of Christians will get into Heaven with a hard push and those who will bound in amid salutations infinite. In the first class I put that man who gets into the kingdom of God at the close of a life all given made the resolution that he would serve himself and serve the world until body, mind and soul were exhausted and then, just before going out of this life, would seek God and pre-

The bigot ascends with just enough grace to save him. As he comes up to the shining gate he sees standing inside of it some whom he used to meet every Sunday morning on the street going to some other church of some other denomination, and he cries out? "Are you there?" I never cries out: expected to see you in such a glorious is not irritated, as many are, by soplace. But the excitement of sadness on earth is very tame affair compared with the excitement of gladness in | Heaven. The guardian angel of that good man's life swept by his dving pillow the night before, and on swift wing hours he would arrive, and there is a mighty stir in Heaven "He comes!" heralds are at the gate to say "Come, ye blessed," and souls who good man supported and hundreds who went up after being by him come down off their thrones and ou of their palaces and through the they reached some time before through his Christian philanthropy was a-hungered, gave me bread!" THE COTTON OUTLOOK What Mr Shepperson Says About It

In His Cotton Facts. The little annual publication by Mr Alfred Shepperson, of New York, en-titled "Cotton Facts," has come to be re-cognized as a leading authority among cotton men. His figures are accurate and his deductions conservative. His review of the last season and prospects for 1900-1901 set forth that the last erop (1899 1900) was 9,422,022 bales, and his estimate of the current crop (1900 1901) is 9,900,000 bales. He comments upon this as follows:

sumption however, was on a much smaller scale then, and the stocks, on September 30, 1863, represented six weeks' consumption of the mills; whereas the stocks last September were not enough for two weeks' consumption of European spinners. The consump tion of American cotton last season by American and foreign mills was about 11,000,000 bales. My friend, Mr. Thomas Ellison of Liverpool, calls it 10 900,000, being 566,000 more than the estimate published by him at the beguning of the season. In his circular of Ostober 20 he estimated a reduction this season in American and Japanese consumption of 378,000 bales (of 500 pounds net) and an increase in Eq. repean consumption of 90,000 bales (of 500 pounds net), and, with the expectation of larger supplies than las season from countries other than Ameri ca, stated that an American crop of 10 382,000 bales would be required in or der to keep the stock at the end of the season from failing below the limited supply at its commencement. On December 18 Mr. Ettison cabled that he thought an American crop of 10,150, 000 bales would meet the requirements of the spinners. This was due to the expectation of larger receipts from Inent stem of allowing the voters to disthan his estimate in October of 800, 000 bales, or 500,000 more than last cation . He evidently thinks that, as a season. In this concetion it is, well to rule, the kind of men the yeters are remember that while 217,000 spindles were added to the milis of India last sesson, many of the mills were not constantly at work. It is probable, in view of the better crops and improved conthe following bill has been proposed to dition of affairs that considerably more cotton will be spun in India than last Section 1. That in July, 1902, the season. The commercial crop of India state board of education, upon the joint last season was 2.613,000 bales against an average of 3,200,000 for the four previous seasons, but the actual yield was probably not over 1,300,000 bales, the balance being cotton held over from previous crops. It is thought that little or no old cotton was left in the interior of India last season, so that the present commercial crop will not exceed the growth of this season. The quantity available for export to Europe is therefore not likely to exceed 806,-000 bales, and may not be as much. The largest shipment from India to bales in 1896-97, but there are now 900,-000 more spindles in India than theo. About twotherds of the cot on grown in India is now consumed ther , and it is only the surplus which is experted. The Eg, ptian crop is expected to be less than last season by the equivalent of 250,000 bales of 500 pounds and the quality is below the average. I have been informed that about 600,000 new spincles have been started in Brtish mills since October 1st. Of the additional spindles started in the United States last season quite a large number were not in op rauon until the latter part of the season. All of the new mills everywhere were ciec ed to be operated urer out of the ordinary funds of the to their full capacity and the additions county, upon the warrants of the chair- to the mills were for the same purpose to the mills were for the same purpose With the settlement of the Chinese complications and a renewal of trade with that country, I confidently look for such activaty in cotton manufacturing that the consumption of the world's muls will absorb all of this season's crops. In that event the stocks will be reduced to very small proportion everywhere, and the coming summer may with ess . xceedingly active and speculative markets at full prices. It is most likely that there will be a considerable increase in the cotton acreage of this country next spring. While this fact would doubtless depress, to some degree, the pries of "iu ure deliveries" for the next grop it would not relieve the ma ket for spot estion. If ally agree with Mr Elison that there would not expert supervision for the schools of be any plethora of cotton even if the the county, and for this purpose shall crop should exceed 10,750,000 bales, ollege, and Miss McMaster's grade suppoy a man skilled in the science as the distribution would be spread and art of teaching and of school man over such a wide area that there would

This nine may be in either direction, and we leave the reader to make his choice of the two possible constructions. (1) A great deal of cotton is being held brek for higher prices, and if they are not real zed it will be carried over to next year, and there may be "considcrop than this year's yield. (2) This is probable "unless very high prices prevall in summer. Whether Mr. Shepper. son thinks that the very high piles will prevail or that they will not and the cotton which is being saved for high prices will want in vain and be oarried into next year, thus making this commercial crop considerably less than the yield, each reader may decide for himself .- Augusta Unronicle.
