CONFIDENCE AND CREDIE. The day was dark, the markets dull, The 'Change was thin, Gazettes were full, And half the town was breaking; The countersign of cash was "stop! Bankers and Bankrupts shut up shop, And honest hearts were aching.

When near the Bench, my fancy spied A faded form, with hasty stride. Beneath grief's burthen stooping-Her name was Credit, and she said, Her father. Trade, was lately dead, Her mother, Commerce, drooping.

The smile that she was wont to wear Was withered by the hand of care, Her eyes had lost their lustre : Her character was gone, she said, For basely she had been herrayed, And nobody would trust her.

That honest Industry had tried To gain fair Credit for his bride, And found the lady willing; But ah! a Fortune-hunter came, And Speculation was his name, A Rake not worth a shilling.

The villain was on muchief bent, He gained both Dad and Mam's consent, And then poor credit smarted; He filched her fortune and her fame-He fixed a blot upon her name, And left her broken-hearted.

When thus poor Credit seemed to sigh Her cousin Confidence came by, (Methinks he must be clever;) For when he whispered in her ear, She checked the sigh, she dried the tear, And smiled as sweet as ever.

The Gins have mechanical feeders and hoppers attached to them, which free the cotton from leaves, trash, dirt, &c. before it can reach the saws, and by the thorough hackling operation it receives from the feeders, which make two revolutions to one of the saws, it is almost in a half gined state, before it descends to the saw By a very simple arrangement of a screw to each set of made to feed slow or fast to suit the condition of the cotton at the time. When made double, the saws are placed on two sets of cylinders and turn upon each other in opposite directions, and are cleansed by two sets of brushes that have four revolutions to one of twe saw. The two cylinders can be detached so as to enable the planter to run one or both at pleasure, although embraced with feeders, &c. in one stand. The whole is put in operation with a drum and band, as in the ordinary Gin, and may be propelled by horse, steam, or water power. It may also be propelled by iron running gear. The force required to work it, is about the same as that necessary to move an equal number of saws in the common Gin. This Gin has been put in operation in New Orleans for two or three weeks, and its success tested in the presence of a large number of planters, merchants and others, and received their general approbation

Several gentlemen have been so kind as to give the Patentee their written opinion respecting the merits of the Gin. A number of others could be sets of saws Extra saws supplied at 80 cents each.

New Orleans, March 6, 1837. From Mr. G. Senior, a Machinist of New Orleans. Dr. A Jones-Dear Sir, in answer to your inqui-ry of my opinion of your Patent Cotton Gin, I beg leave to state, that I was fifteen years engaged in the cotton factories of Manchester, England, and during four years of that time, I was foreman in the house of Messrs. Lewis, Williams & Co., and near five years spinner in the house of Messrs. Sandford & Greene. I have seen your Cotton Gin in operation, and have examined the cotton ginned by it, and pronounce it better cleansed, and the staple less injured, than any cotton that ever came under my observation. It is completely ready for the breaker without the aid of the blower, and would, therefore, save the first process in manufacturing the article. I consider cotton cleansed by your Gin, would command from one to two cents on the pound more than the average crops brought into the Manchester market, and
