COMMUNICATIONS.

Rejoicing in Civil War.

The New York Courier de Etats Unis is amazed at the character of the excitement in New York.

There, the struggle was accepted as inevitable, but at the same time lamentable, and a terrible necessity.

The reason is that New York expects to inflict civil war upon others, not to suffer itself.

Of all the cities of America, New York deserves the pre-eminence in this work of infernal crime.

It is not a city of the future, but a city of the past, and it is a city of the past, and it is a city of the past.
