The World for 1880.

Democrats everywhere should inform themselves carefully alike of the action of their party throughout the country and of the movements of their Republican opponents. A failure to do this in 1876 contributed greatly to the loss by the Democracy of the fruits of the victory fairly won at the

The year 1880 promises to be one of the most interesting and important years of this world and eventful century. It will witness a Presidential election which may result in re-establishing the Government of this country on the principles of its constitutional founders or in permanently changing the relations of the States to the Federal power. No intelligent man can regard such an election with indifference. The World, as the only daily English newspaper published in the city of New York which upholds the doctrines of constitutional Democracy, will steadily represent the Democratic party in this great canvass. It will do this in no spirit of service partisanship, but temperately and firmly. As a newspaper, uary 1 until December 31, it will be conclude and no interest, will present the full-lish language, and printed for the people.

As a newspaper, written in the long. Its language, and printed for the people.
