

CLEMSON COLLEGE

SEVENTY-FOUR GRADUATES GIVEN DIPLOMAS

IS FINE CLASS OF BOYS

Annual Address Delivered by Hon. Joseph A. McCollough—W. H. Frampton, of Charleston, Wins Orator's Medal—Norris Medal Awarded to W. G. McLeod, of Darlington.

Though the wind still blew cold, the rains very considerably ceased Monday night and the sun has been making efforts to smile on the seventy-four graduates and their families, who received their diplomas from Clemson College Monday morning, in the presence of a large gathering of people. The commencement day exercises, which began at 10:30 with the addresses of the graduating class, ended with the publishing of the leave of absence order at one o'clock.

President W. M. Riggs presided over the exercises with ease, grace and dispatch. On the rostrum, when the exercises opened, were the orator of the day, Mr. Joseph A. McCollough, of Greenville; Dr. Riggs, members of the trustees, the faculty, the senior orators, three in number; the local ministers and the cadet orchestra, which furnished music throughout the commencement program.

Mr. McCollough's address to the graduating class was a forceful speech on "The Community Spirit," and was full of wholesome and well put thought. The speaker made a most favorable impression on his large audience.

Senior Orators and Subjects.

The three senior orators spoke as follows: D. L. Cannon, Spartanburg, on "And Yet There is Room"; T. P. Davis, Richland, on "The Panama Canal," and A. C. Turbeville, Charleston, president of the class, on "America's Mission as a Peacemaker." These speeches, though brief, were thoughtful, well written and well delivered.

Following the class orations came the delivery of the diplomas to the seventy-four young men who, having finished the four-year course, received, at the hands of President Riggs, the degree of bachelor of science. Preceding the delivery of the diplomas Col. Alan Johnstone, of Newberry, president of the board of trustees, made a brief address to the class, and following the conferring of the degrees, Dr. Riggs, in a few well chosen, happy remarks, bade the class of 1913 good-bye and God-speed.

Dr. R. H. Timmerman, a member of the board, acting as chairman of the committee of judges, which heard the oratorical contest on Monday, delivered the medal to the winning orator, Mr. W. H. Frampton, of Charleston, who represented the Calhoun Society in a strong speech on the "Panama Canal Act."

The Hon. Richard I. Manning, another member of the board of trustees, then delivered, in a pleasing little talk, the Norris medal offered annually for the most meritorious graduate, the award being based upon scholarship, general conduct, loyalty to the college, etc., during the last three years of the course. The fortunate winner this year is Mr. W. G. McLeod, of Darlington. With the announcement of cadet officers for next year and the publication of leave of absence, including September 9, 1913, the session of 1912-13 came to an end.

THIRTY-NINE GRADUATES GIVEN DIPLOMAS.

A CLASS OF FINE BOYS

Bishop Mouzon Preaches Baccalaureate Sermon—President Snyder Delivers Masterly Address—Rev. J. E. White Makes a Magnificent Oration.

Thirty-nine young men were graduated from Wofford college this year. Their degrees and diplomas were awarded Monday morning in the college chapel, following a masterly address by Rev. J. E. White, D. D., L. L. D., Pastor of the First Baptist Church of Atlanta, his subject being "In the House of Our Fathers," a very patriotic appeal to the young men of the South to take their places among those directing the destinies of the nation.

On Sunday morning the annual baccalaureate sermon was preached at Central Methodist church by Bishop E. D. Mouzon of Texas, a Wofford man and a native of Spartanburg. He spoke upon "Personal Responsibility" and delivered a message that has left its impression upon the community.

Sunday evening President H. N. Snyder delivered the baccalaureate address before the class at Bethel Methodist Church to an immense audience. Dr. Snyder took as his subject, "The Measure of a Man." He spoke upon the handling of human materials and the mission of the college in this respect. He declared that the value of education and training was to cultivate the power of discriminating the best of human intelligence. He touched briefly upon the distastefulness of ragtime music, cheap art and fiction of a lighter and baser sort, and drew the lesson of the falling of the man to measure up who was guilty of such practices.

"What is best in life and achievement is the measure of man, and it is what comes out of college and not what goes in that counts," he said.

The fifty-ninth session of Wofford college came to a close Tuesday, when thirty-nine young men, the class of 1913, received their diplomas and heard the touching farewell message of President Henry Nelson Snyder. In speaking his last words officially to the class Dr. Snyder said:

"Young men, after hearing the address of Bishop Mouzon and of the address of Dr. John E. White, is it possible there is one of you who does not feel nobler, stronger, broader and more enriched? If you do not, then it must be that you are dumb. Reconsecrate yourself to the future in which you are now entered."

The speeches of the six representatives of the class were well delivered, the subjects were timely, appropriate and splendidly developed. The speakers in the order of which they appeared and their subjects follow:

G. H. Hodges, Orangeburg county, "The College Student and Missions."
J. C. Hyer, Aiken county, "The Young Malefactor."
J. G. Kelley, Spartanburg county, "The Conservation of National Health."
Z. L. Madden, Laurens county, "The Inefficiency of the Criminal Court."
H. R. Sims, Orangeburg county, "The Value of a Life."
L. J. Stillwell, Abbeville county, "Society and the Criminal."

The commencement address before the class was delivered by the Rev. John E. White, D. D., L. L. D., of Atlanta, Ga. This address, sparkling with patriotic utterances and urgent with pleading for the men of the graduating class to assist in bringing the South again into its own, was pronounced one of the best addresses ever delivered from the rostrum of Wofford Chapel.

The address on the subject of "In the House of Our Fathers," was a portrayal of the past and a glimpse into the future, interspersed here and there with thoughts that were inspirational. The query, "Can the South come back?" was provisionally answered and the question was left open for the men of the class of 1913 finally to answer. The chapel was crowded to hear Dr. White's splendid address.

The degree of A. B. was then conferred on the members of the graduating class and each was presented with a Bible along with his diploma. From its foundation nearly sixty years ago, Wofford college has given a Bible to her graduates when they receive their degrees and diplomas.

The commencement exercises began on Saturday evening with the Junior Debate, in which six young men from the junior class took part. After the debate the award of medals took place.

The delivery of the medals offered by the Wofford College Journal was made by Rev. A. J. Cauthen. The Fresh-Soph short story medal was won by Mr. G. T. Hughes, of the Sophomore class; the Junior-Senior short story medal was won by Mr. C. C. Shell, of the Junior class; the poem medal was won by Mr. D. L. Edwards, of the Senior class; and the essay medal was awarded to Mr.

Henry R. Sims, of the Senior class.

Rev. D. M. McLeod made the awards of the society essay medals, after a short talk. The Preston Literary society medal was presented to Mr. Henry R. Sims, of the Senior class; the Calhoun society medal was awarded to Mr. B. M. Asbill, of the Senior class. Mr. McLeod also presented the Latin medal to Mr. D. L. Edwards, who has made distinction on Latin through his college course.

The class baseball trophy cup was awarded to the Senior class by Mr. J. L. Sims, editor of the Orangeburg Times and Democrat.

Monday evening the alumni address was delivered in the college chapel by Mr. E. Bobo Smith, of the class of 1877. Mr. Smith, who is one of the editors of the Baltimore Sun, delivered a most excellent address, which was heard by a large crowd.

CHARGE AGAINST DUNN

SAID TO HAVE MADE WAY WITH BANK ASSETS.

Head of Defunct Interstate Trust Company is Order to Produce $110,000.

A dispatch from Aiken says papers demanding that E. Sherwood Dunn, president of the bankrupt Interstate Trust Company, produce assets to the amount of $110,000, which Capt. W. W. Williams, United States referee in bankruptcy, alleges that Dunn has concealed, were served Tuesday on Dunn by order of Captain Williams, and criminal action may follow, as a result of the charge that has moved and secreted his assets.

This action grows out of the involuntary bankruptcy proceedings in connection with the Interstate Trust Company, which owned the Citizens Trust Company of Augusta, because of the failure of which institution Dunn has been indicted in Georgia on a charge of violating the banking laws of that state.

Captain Williams state that some time ago Dunn swore in the presence of his attorney that the Interstate Trust Company owned assets amounting to $350,000. Named in the schedule were several thousand dollars worth of household goods, books, tapestries, bric-a-brac, paintings, bank fixtures, etc., most of which were said to be in the magnificent Aiken home of the Dunns, on Hayne Avenue.

Three or four months ago United States Marshal Adams came to Aiken from Charleston, and acting upon instructions from the United States court, took possession of the Dunns' home. The Dunns have been permitted to occupy the house since then, however, until Monday a sale was held on the premises under direction of the referee in bankruptcy. Goods to the amount of from $300 to $400 were sold.

It had been advertised that the sale would continue from day to day until all the goods in the house were sold, but Captain Williams has called off the continuance of the sale, stating Tuesday morning that it would be postponed until other goods, named as assets, were located. He claims that certain valuable goods have been removed from the Dunn home, and has taken action to compel Dunn to produce them.

Henry R. Sims, of the Senior Class.

Rev. D. M. McLeod made the awards of the society essay medals, after a short talk. The Preston Literary society medal was presented to Mr. Henry R. Sims, of the Senior class; the Calhoun society medal was awarded to Mr. B. M. Asbill, of the Senior class. Mr. McLeod also presented the Latin medal to Mr. D. L. Edwards, who has made distinction on Latin through his college course.

The class baseball trophy cup was awarded to the Senior class by Mr. J. L. Sims, editor of the Orangeburg Times and Democrat.

Monday evening the alumni address was delivered in the college chapel by Mr. E. Bobo Smith, of the class of 1877. Mr. Smith, who is one of the editors of the Baltimore Sun, delivered a most excellent address, which was heard by a large crowd.

After the address two other medals were awarded by Prof. Tillinghast of Converse College:

The Science Medal was awarded to Mr. H. H. Brown, of the senior class.

The B. Hart Moss prize, which is a twenty-dollar gold coin, offered for the best historical paper, was awarded to Mr. Hugo S. Sims, of the senior class.

This ended the commencement exercises. Then came the annual banquet of the Wofford alumni, which was held in the dining room of the new dormitory, Carlisle Memorial Hall.

Hon. J. Lylos Glenn, of Chester, presided as toastmaster. The speakers of the evening were: L. J. Brown, of Union county; Rev. F. H. Shuler, of Latta; Dr. H. N. Snyder, who spoke most touchingly of the class of Wofford college which did not graduate because it volunteered to a man in 1862 in the Confederate army before commencement day, and the members of which received their diplomas in camp in Virginia; W. W. Wannamaker, of St. Matthews; Judge B. Hart Moss, of Orangeburg; Rev. D. E. Camak, of Spartanburg; J. C. Hyer, of the graduating class; Bishop Mouzon and E. B. Smith, of Washington.

A splendid supper was served and the small hours of the morning were spent under the spell of oratory of a reminiscent vein from the men of the earlier years of Wofford, and in hearing the visions and hopes of the younger alumni, who have yet to "make good" and bring back laurels for the brow of their alma mater.

Some of the papers are stressing the necessity of keeping the boys away from the wash holes in the fear that they may be drowned. The Augusta Chronicle says the only plan is to go to the wash holes with them and teach them to swim.

"We hope for no change in the weather until a snow is reported in Atlanta," says the Florence Times. It would take more than one snow to clarify things over there if Tom Felder is allowed to hang around.

BLEASE IS RIGHT

ORDERS BOOZE SELLING TO BE STOPPED ON THE ISLE OF PALMS AT ONCE

The Governor Writes Letters to Sheriff Martin and Chief Constable Stothart, Assailing Conditions on the Island and Makes an Attack on Mayor John P. Grace.

Governor Blease has ordered the lid to be put on tight at the Isle of Palms. Stringent and peremptory orders to forbid all motorcycle racing or such like sports on the beach on Sunday and to stop the sale of liquor and beer were issued by the Governor to Sheriff Martin and Chief Constable Stothart, of Charleston. Violations of law must stop and desecration of the Sabbath Day must end, says the Chief Executive of South Carolina.

In his letter to Sheriff Martin the Governor calls attention to the newspaper reports of motorcycle races on the Isle of Palms last Sunday and instructs the sheriff to arrest all taking part in such sports on Sunday hereafter and prosecute them to the limit of the law.

In his letter to Chief Dispensary Constable Stothart to stop the sale of liquor on the Isle of Palms, Governor Blease says: "It is thought aloud around here that John P. Grace's idea in closing up everything so tight in Charleston on Sunday is to drive every one to the Isle of Palms, and that a bar room is to be run open and above-board over there. It is said also that Mr. Grace is boarding at the hotel in Charleston with the gentleman who owns the Isle of Palms business."

The Isle of Palms is the playground of Charleston and excursions every Sunday take thousands of people there from all part of the State.

Governor's Letter to Sheriff.

In his letter to Sheriff J. Elmore Martin, Governor Blease says:

"Columbia, S. C., June 9, 1913.

"J. Elmore Martin, Esq., Sheriff, Charleston County, Charleston, South Carolina—Dear Sir: I notice in this morning's issue of The News and Courier, page 8, column 5, under heading, "Cycle Racing at Isle of Palms," that motorcycle races were held at the Isle of Palms on yesterday, the 8th instant, being the Sabbath Day.

"I hope that you did not know that these races were going to be held, as I see nothing in the said article which shows any effort on your part to prevent the same.

"I hope that you will immediately proceed to indict all who took part in said races, or attempted to do so, and bring them before the proper tribunal for desecration of the Sabbath Day, and that you will keep a strict lookout in the future and have indicted and locked up in your County Jail any and all persons who shall attempt to have any kind of races or other sports or amusements, save sacred concerts on the sabbath. There are some things which possibly we can be excused for not hearing, if we did hear; and for not seeing, if we do see, but there can certainly be no excuse in the eyes of God or man for allowing these things to go on upon the Sabbath.

"It is true that the Sabbath was made for man and not man for the Sabbath, but the Sabbath was intended as a day of rest and recreation, and for the worship and service of God, and certainly not for the purposes that these people put it to on yesterday.

"I am mailing copy of this letter to Chief Constable Stothart, with instructions that he get busy also, and I hope that you will see, in the future, that people obey the Sabbath, and the laws of this State, in the discharge of your official duties.

"Very respectfully,

"(Signed) Cole L. Blease, Governor.

"Copy to Mr. B. H. Stothart, Chief Constable, Charleston, S. C."

Letter to Chief Constable.

The Governor addressed the following letter to Chief Constable B. H. Stothart:

Columbia, S. C. June 11, 1913.

"B. H. Stothart, Esq., Chief Constable, 69 Society Street, Charleston, S. C.—Dear Sir: It is thought aloud around here that John P. Grace's idea in closing up everything so tight in Charleston on Sunday is to drive everybody to the Isle of Palms, and that a bar room is to be run open and above-board over there. It is said also that Mr. Grace is boarding at the hotel in Charleston with the gentleman who owns the Isle of Palms business. As to these rumors I do not know. However, notify the Isle of Palms immediately upon receipt of this letter, that not a drop of wine, whiskey or beer can be sold or served there, and if these orders are violated you are hereby directed to seize all the goods and to arrest the people violating the law, and if you can not do this I will get a man who can. Attend strictly to this, immediately, and fail not on penalty of the loss of your job and the jobs of your men just as quickly as the telegraph wires

"Very respectfully,

(Signed) "Cole L. Blease, "Governor."

Watch the Insurgent Senators.

There are in the United States senate seven men who, as Republicans four years ago, broke away from their party and voted against the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. They are: Joseph L. Bristow, Kansas. Moses E. Clapp, Minnesota. Coe I. Crawford, South Dakota. Albert Cummins, Iowa. Robert M. LaFollette, Wisconsin. Knute Nelson, Minnesota. Miles Poindexter, Washington.

Collier's Weekly says "these compose the senators who are left of the original Insurgents. Their vote against the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill in 1909 elevated them high in public esteem. One of the most interesting problems of the present moment is whether in the year 1913 they will vote for or against the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill. The problem before them can not be stated otherwise. The final vote in the present tariff session will be either to perpetuate the Payne-Aldrich bill or to substitute another."

FOUR KILLED IN WRECK

THE ENGINEER RUNS PAST DANGER SIGNALS.

Runs Into a Train Ahead of His train, Killing and Injuring Several Persons.

At Stamford, Conn., four persons were killed and many injured, some seriously, as the result of a rear-end collision on the main line of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, opposite the local passenger depot at 4:06 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when the second section of the Springfield express, west-bound, crashed into the first section, which was leaving the station.

The engine of the second section ploughed half way through the Pullman car Skylark, the last car on the first section. In this car there were thirty-one passengers and practically all of them were injured.

According to an official statement by the railroad the indications are that the engineer of the second section ran past danger signals. The Springfield express was the same train that was in the wreck at West Port, Conn., last October, in which eight persons were killed and scores injured. This wreck was caused by the engineer running past signals.

Simultaneous with the crash the wreckage took fire and the city fire department was called out. The blaze was easily extinguished, however, and the work of rescue begun at once.

Early arrivals on the scene found the Rev. Anthony Berlier, a Catholic priest, of New York, coolly directing the work of rescue. Although injured himself, he refused to go to a hospital until others, more seriously hurt, had been taken care of. Telling of his experience, he said:

"There was no warning, just a smash, and the next instant the whole car was topsy-turvy. Men and women seemed to be almost suspended in the air, and there was a mass of everything conceivable flying about at random. Then all seemed to settle except the escaping steam and the hot coals from the fire box that soon burst into flames. Women's screams of helplessness and terror, and the deeper cries of men, some in mortal agony, filled the air. The women were brave as they were lifted out of the windows with bloody faces and torn and cut bodies."

"Cautionary List for 1913."

A prominent English paper has just published a book of more than one hundred pages which it calls "Cautionary List for 1913." In it are the names of 750 people of whom the public are warned to beware because they are sharpers, impostors, swindlers or shady persons who prey upon innocent and ignorant people.

Under the head of "Religion and Philanthropy" is given the names of fifty people or societies that make a practice of swindling the benevolent. Medical quacks, money lenders and many other classes are dealt with in turn and their methods of operation exposed. Probably there is not a business man in this or other towns who has not wished many times over for some such aid that might enable him to distinguish between worthy and unworthy solicitors. Some of those gentry are so sleek and plausible that at times even the very elect are deceived. The only safe rule is to have nothing to do with agents who are not furnished with official credentials of societies that have proved their worth, nor under any circumstances to dabble with get-rich-quick schemes. He who abstains from so doing will avoid many after regrets.
