NATIONS LEAGUE

WILL STAND TEST

Takes Congress Longer to Ratify Than Did to Win the War

LEAGUE CONSTITUTION TELLS WHAT IT IS

Opponents Should Read Its Articles and Then Willing Support It.

The good people of the United States have ever loved freedom; and in 1776 declared themselves free from the mother country, and so declared that this was a God-given right which all nations should enjoy, and has always taught these principles among the nations.

They maintained their independence by the prosecution of a bloody war for seven years against England, who claimed to be mistress of the seas. Tripoli, which is beyond the Mediterranean Sea, also declared that we must pay tribute if we sailed her seas.

President Jefferson was elected in 1800 when Adams paid tribute but when President Jefferson was elected in 1800 he said he would not pay tribute. He sent a fleet which carried men sufficient to bring Tripoli to terms; and this was our first foreign war. Our war of 1912 with England was for the freedom of the seas and was successful. During President Monroe's last term in 1822 he proclaimed that if any nation should attempt to acquire any of the territory of any of the states of South America the United States would regard it as an act of war. During the last century Venezuela fell in debt to England and the amount was paid due for some time and England sent her fleet of men and was getting ready for attack when President Cleveland informed England that it would involve her in war with the United States.

England proceeded no further, the president advised Venezuela to pay the debt and she did. So for ninety-eight years those weak nations have been protected by the word of the United States. Here is the League of Nations in embryo without war. I have a copy of the constitution of the League of Nations and there is not a word in it that would lead to war, but rather to peace. If the opponents of this League would read its constitution they would be surprised at the falsity and foolishness of their pretensions. The United States, with other nations, made a supreme effort at the Hague conference for several years to come to an agreement between themselves, but Germany would not consent to such agreement. Had the agreement been signed by Germany the bloodiest war which the world has ever witnessed would have been averted.

We now have more than forty nations who have agreed to maintain peace. They have established an international court and the Hon. Elihu Root, of the United States, who is a good republican, is one of the judges of this court. Every nation has an equal right with the large or strong nations in common. If it should come to the point where war must be declared the five great nations who must maintain the war has one vote each and the vote must be unanimous or there can be no war. So we see that no nation can be drawn into war without that nation's consent and vote. A republican asked why are our soldiers still on the Rhine; the answer is plain because the United States senate has not ratified the treaty of peace. We have a great league of Nations with international court established and nations who are at war asking that this court shall advise them in the settlement of their troubles. The United States have been kept out of the League of Nations, relegated to the rear and put in bad company with Turkey, whose murderous persecution has shocked the world for centuries and with Mexico who is half civilized contrary to the will of the people of the United States by the partisan politics of the United States Senate. The three nations now are in company while more than forty are in the League. It has taken congress longer to ratify than it did our armies to accomplish the peace by the force of arms.

We will be in our office over Horry Drug Store every first Monday in the month.

COTTON GROWERS SEEING THE NEED

For Adequate Warehousing Facilities For Product of Crops

IN SOME STATES PUBLIC AID GIVEN

Proposition to Do it By Issuing Bonds in South Carolina.

In many parts of the cotton belt growers are rapidly awakening to the importance of warehouses as a fundamental element in any scheme of marketing, and arrangements are being made to secure funds through cooperative action in one form or another for the building of such warehouses, say cotton marketing experts of the Bureau of Markets, United States Department of Agriculture.

States Extending Aid. In some instances the States themselves are taking official cognizance of the need for warehouses, and extending financial aid for their construction. The State of Louisiana owns and operates a large modern warehouse at New Orleans. North Carolina has provided a fund from which loans can be made for the building of warehouses by levying a small assessment against each bale of cotton at the gin. In South Carolina it has been proposed that financial aid for building warehouses be extended through the issuance of bonds by the state.

According to the bureau's experts warehouses should be constructed under the supervision of competent architects or engineers and after consultation with insurance underwriters; that they should be equipped with automatic sprinklers to secure reduced insurance rates; and that the structures have clean, simple and display rooms, where buyers and sellers may meet under favorable conditions for discussion of values and for making sales and purchases. The Bureau of Markets has worked out a number of designs for cotton warehouses and will gladly render every assistance to those contemplating the building of such structures.
