The Weather.
Washington, April 6.—Forecast: South Carolina: Partly cloudy Tuesday; Wednesday rain.

Anderson is My Town.—The fly. Swat him.

Columbia has won a game in the new league. Hoo-ray.

There will be a clean-up day next August, for some politicians.

Clean up, clean up, clean up. The Greenwood boosters are coming.

What this country needs is good roads. Everybody help a little.

Villa is a Torreon. That's only a thousand miles or so from Mexico City.

The Greenwood boosters seem to take that trip Friday very seriously. Cheer up boys.

The blue back-speller and the old oaken bucket ought to be put back on the job.

The Hearst papers took a lot more interest in Underwood after he turned against President Wilson.

The paper that announced that "spring is here" may live to regret its rashness.

See London dispatches—Miss Virtue came very near being thrown into the river.

In Pat Fouche Atlanta will acquire a citizen who has done much for Anderson and is needed here.

Congressman Joe Johnson of Spartanburg stood the fire of the militant house last Thursday.

"General" Kelley is not the only cheap politician who has compared himself with certain Bible characters.

Water, water everywhere, and no booze for the navy, says Josephus Daniels.

While the candidates for place on the regional bank board are coming out, we suggest Bill Stringer of Belton.

That transAtlantic aeroplane flight is either a gorgeous myth or a lovely and unmistakable way to commit suicide.

A church in Griffin, Ga., has provided automobiles to transport all of the aged and infirm to the church on Sundays.

The Monroe doctrine is more like the old testament "eye for an eye" than the New Testament doctrine of neighborliness.

A Kentucky humorist says that the standard breakfast at Lexington is three cocktails, a chew of tobacco; cup of coffee.

The Canadian Pacific railroad owns 11,000,000 acres of land. That is why so many immigrants are taken to that beastly country.

Hobson being a self made hero, politically speaking, he did not advance any numbers this time. His Merrimac fame has been tarnished by jingoism.

Some of the fly swatting has been delayed. The peaky brutes that could have been killed in the embryo are here with thousands of feet for bald heads.

ANYTHING BETTER OFF OFFER!

Our friends, Hearon of the Spartanburg Herald and Booker of the Greenville Piedmont, have been very facetious in their remarks concerning this paper's views on the county to county campaign. They favor doing away with the campaign meetings. We recognize them as necessary, an evil to be endured in the best grace possible.

What remedy do they offer? None. The two papers above referred to in commenting upon our views, quote only one conclusion without showing the argument that we advanced, all too hurriedly written, we admit. But we return to our conclusion after every way of looking at the matter. The it. We believe that it is a nuisance, candidates seem to want the campaign, and the people seem to want but what can be done about it?

Once stop these meetings and there will be a terrific howl about "the suppression of free speech" and all sorts of bunk. Once call off these meetings and hear the howl that everything is being done in the interests of the rich.

Among the candidates for governor, for instance, Mr. McLaurin is a very wealthy man; Mr. Manning is another; Mendel Smith and C. A. Smith are "web fixed" in this world's affairs. Each of them could conduct his own campaign at the expenditure of a lot of money, while men not so affluent would suffer, and among these are Lowndes Browning, Willie Irbly, John G. Richards, Carroll Sims and a few others.

They can't afford to enter the race for governor against such a handicap, unless they should happen by some chance or other to represent some great cause.

No, the county-to-county campaign literature is a nuisance, as we have said before. It is really degrading and dangerous in some of its features, but would it be any worse than any other plan? No. As a matter of fact if this were abolished, candidates could resort more than ever to "gum shoe" methods and we would have many such disgraceful things as the congressional election in Charleston to select a successor to Geo. S. Legare.

In the name of oratory there has not been since the founding of the world anything quite as punk as some of the speeches handed out in state campaigns in South Carolina, but what are you going to do about it? That's the question.

Make no changes unless it is absolutely certain that such changes are for the good of the people. Make no more machinery for machine politicians. Give 'em all the rope they want, and the demagogues and the selfish politicians will sponer or later show themselves to the people.

We stand to our original proposition, however, that when the candidate files his pledge, he is entitled to the respect, consideration and protection of the state executive committee and campaign meetings should be protected from personalities and mud slinging. Let campaigns be conducted for the discussion of better things.

SONS OF A FATHER.

If there is one characteristic more than another that has marked the conduct of the Orangeburg Times-Democrat under the guiding hand of its veteran editor, Jas. L. Sims, that characteristic has been moral tone. Not one issue has ever gone out from under his hand that has not carried some appeal for the uplift of the people of the state. He has retired from the work in which he has done so much good and in which he has been so successful.

Mr. Sims recently received the appointment as United States marshal for this state. This is a distinction which he well deserves, although as we have said before, we would have liked to have seen some of the federal patronage distributed in this section of the state. But if any man south of Columbia had to get this appointment, would prefer Mr. Sims. His character and honesty and devotion to principle are unquestioned.

Mr. Sims was elected presidential elector by the state democratic convention last year, and was a loyal and enthusiastic Woodrow Wilson man.

Mr. Sims' excellent paper will be in good hands. His oldest son, Jas. Lizar Sims, who has shared with his father in the management of the paper, will hereafter be the business manager and the two twin boys, Hugo and Henry will be the editors. These two boys went through Wofford college, taking many if not all the honors, and medals and they are well equipped for the editorial desk, especially with the example and the counsel of their father to encourage them. We would counsel these brilliant young men to use moderation in their work and to be not over-zealous. It is admirable to fight for a principle, but fight to win.

OH, YOU ATHLETICS.

A new use has been found for western college football players of the Adonis type. These heroes of the gridiron secured positions as artists' models for the men who draw illustrations for ready-made clothing advertisements. For their time they receive $2 an hour and all they had to do was to put on a borrowed suit of clothes and stand in an alleged society pose alongside a model of the feminine sex. Some co-eds found positions almost as easy, however, for they are instructing women of newly acquired wealth in the rudiments of etiquette at $1.50 per hour.

NOTICE.

The names of all persons who sign petitions for the establishment of a dispensary in Anderson county will be published in these columns. This is a matter of public record, and the petitions will be published in The Intelligencer by request.

KEPT PANIC OFF

McAdoo's Plan of Financing Crops Last Fall.

(By Associated Press, Washington, April 6.—Secretary McAdoo tonight announced the results of the direct loans to bank at crop moving time last fall. Treasury funds were deposited in 1913 banks in 62 cities in 28 states, to the amount of $37,386,000. The last of the loans were repaid by April 1, the limit set by the treasury. The government received as interest at two per cent a total of $260,000, representing a clear profit. Mr. McAdoo said the amount required by banks had been much less than he expected when it became that the treasury was ready to render any such assistance.

ANDERSON MAN TAKES THE "DIVINE HEALING"

WENT TO ATLANTA FOR THE TREATMENT

BELIEVES IN CURE

Suffering From Tuberculosis, Charlie Bowie Had "Hands Laid On" In Atlanta

From Atlanta comes the news that all Atlanta has been stirred during the past week on account of the marvelous feats performed by Mrs. M. B. Worthington-Etter, "the divine healer." Such an impression has been made that people have gone to Atlanta from all parts of the country during the past week; among these being Charlie Bowie, a young Anderson man. Mr. Bowie returned to the city Sunday after having "hands laid on" him by the divine healer. His faith in the cure is strong. It is said that Mr. Bowie who is suffering with tuberculosis was treated in the following manner:

The singing grew louder as the young man seated himself in the chair. "Where the healing waters flow" shouted the singers. "Where the healing waters flow" he repeated.

The young man in the chair leaned back with his hands raised while Mrs. Etter laid seemingly violent hands on his shoulder, his throat, his face. She called on him to believe in the Lord to have faith. She rubbed his chest.

Pretty soon the young man arose, waving his arms. The singing stopped as he stumbled off the platform with tears of joy streaming from his eyes. A woman advanced half-running down to the aisle to meet him. She was crying in long sobs. At the first row of benches, the young man leaped to the top of them and fell into her arms. They sobbed and wept crying, "Thanks to Jesus. Glory to God."

Afterward a reporter asked Bowie if he was really healed. He said that when Mrs. Etter was treating him he could feel a shiver pass through his lungs, that he believed he was healed, but time alone would show.

The following is the impression made upon a newspaper reporter by the "divine healer's" actions and treatment in which the meeting was conducted "Up and down the rostrum swadducted:

"Up and down the rostrum strides a little woman all in white, white hair white dress, a white knit shawl over her shoulders

"Praise the Lord, sisters" she shouts. "Believe in Him and he is healed." She is Mrs. M. B. Worthington-Etter, "divine healer."

"From the kneeling people all around came shouts and amens. But most of them moan in a weird swelling sound like some Arabian desert song that rises and falls and swells again.

A woman kneeling in the center of the rostrum begins to sway back and forth and shout. The others cease all but the low crooning noise, while she cries aloud on the name of Jesus. Gradually she works herself into a frenzy of prayer her body rocking to and fro to the accompaniment of the maning all around, her hands raised to heaven, her face streaked with tears.

"She breaks off with a loud sob and there is momentary quiet. Mrs. Etter walks to the front and tells all who are in need to come forward.

"The men and women crowd around the platform and kneel. A window is raised on one side. Here a wailing, the halt, the blind, struggle toward the platform. The healing is about to begin.

"On one side of the platform a number of converts gather around a piano and begin to sing. On the other a mother advances leading a little girl by the hand. The girl is totally blind. She sits down in a chair. Below the rostrum a woman holds a baby in her arms, the child's mouth covered with sores, a deaf mute, a crippled boy on crutches, crowd together around the woman of white.

"While the singing increased in fervor on one side, Mrs. Etter motioned to the first subject. She was an old lady, deaf for 36 years. She sat down in a chair.

"Mrs. Etter placed her hands on her face and rubbed them back and forth.
