

NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

Invariably leads to severe complications. It is frequently followed by chronic indigestion, gas, flatulence, and pernicious anemia. The blood is impoverished, the life-sustaining qualities and the weary victim is afflicted with one chronic ailment after another, until a wreck of his former self, he drags out a sorry existence as a wretched invalid.

The Way That Cures

is to purify the blood, which will then supply the necessary food for the nerves, giving them vigor to maintain their functions. Suffering from dyspepsia, all the processes of the body are brought up to normal, and the patient is made to feel well.

Why we want Small Accounts

Do you realize that a hundred small accounts make a bank stronger than a dozen large ones even if they aggregate the same total of deposits?

That's why we are constantly seeking new customers. We want as wide a circle of friends and customers as possible.

Of course, large accounts are welcome, too, for it is our purpose to serve ALL people.

But we want men and women of limited means to know that this bank is willing to accept their deposits and give them the advantage of our advice and every facility of the institution.

If you are not a bank depositor at all come in and get acquainted with us. We will be glad to talk things over with you.

ANNUAL MEETING OF "DAUGHTERS"

Quite a Fine Reception Given on the Opening Day in Washington—Elections On Hand

Washington, April 20.—More than two thousand patriotic women, descendants of patriots who fought for American liberty filled the big auditorium of the American Continental hall here Monday, when Mrs. William Cumming Story, of New York, president general, called to order the twenty-third annual meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Representatives from every State in the country, with its 1,377 chapters which are members of the organization, were in their seats at the opening of the meeting, which will continue throughout the week. The bright uniforms of the United States Marine band gave a touch of rich color in the hall filled with beautifully gowning women.

Vice-President Marshall greeted the Daughters at the formal opening of their session this afternoon. The morning session had been devoted simply to roll call and reports of the creditable and program committees. "Our Glorious Banner," was the march which the Marine band chose to start the congress on its patriotic way, and this was followed a little later in the afternoon program by "The Stars and Stripes Forever." Right Reverend Alfred C. Harding, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of this district, gave the invocation. In addition to the Vice-President, other prominent officials who welcomed the Daughters were, Secretary Daniels of the Navy; Senator Works of California; John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American Union, and Rogers Clark Ballard Thurston, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Story, president general of the organization, was loudly applauded when she arose to deliver her annual address, which recited the progress made by the society during the past year, and paid a tribute to its many activities along patriotic lines.

The important events in the congress this week will be the election of ten vice-presidents, one half of the entire number, to succeed those whose terms have expired. The voting for these will be on Thursday. The administration candidates are Mrs. Joseph Wood, New York; Mrs. George H. Minor, Connecticut; Mrs. George H. Minor, District of Columbia; Mrs. Alvin Lane, Texas; Mrs. Charles R. Davis, Minnesota; Mrs. C. C. Abbott, New Hampshire; Mrs. Edmund F. Noel, Mississippi; Mrs. T. Bradford Prince, New Mexico; Mrs. John H. Leary, Washington; and Mrs. William H. Crosby, Wisconsin. In addition two honorary vice-presidents general will be chosen to fill vacancies caused by death.

No president general is elected this year, Mrs. Story serving until next year.

The President and Mrs. Wilson will receive the Daughters at the White House Wednesday afternoon. Tonight the Daughters were given a reception by Mrs. Story at Continental Hall. In honor of two past presidents of the organization who have died during the past year, both of them it so happens, having been wives of vice-presidents of the United States. Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson and Mrs. Charles W. Fairbanks, memorial exercises will be held tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Stevenson was president general from 1893 to 1895 and from 1896 to 1898; Mrs. Fairbanks from 1901 to 1905.

Presentations of state flags from virtually every state in the country, which will be used in the decoration of the auditorium of Continental Hall, will be the features of Friday night's program, when addresses will be made by James H. Preston, mayor of Baltimore and president of the Star Banded Banner Centennial Commission, which is planning a celebration next September of the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the famous National Aik. Other speakers will be Edwin Warfield, former governor of Maryland; A. Bernersmith Bibbins and Robert E. Lee, of the Centennial Commission; and A. S. Goldsboro, superintendent of the Sons of the American Revolution. The same evening there will be presented a bust of Hugh Vernon Washington, a descendant of Washington, which will be unveiled by Mrs. Eleanor S. Washington Howard of this city. There will be an address by Dr. J. G. B. Bulloch of this city, president of the Order of Washington.

Reports of numerous committees, including those on revolutionary relics, patriotic education, southern mountain schools, conservation, preservation of historic spots, decoration of the flag, genealogical research, international peace arbitration and the centenary celebration of the treaty of Ghent, are to be presented and also reports of various officers. Numerous social functions in honor of the prominent state and national leaders in the work of the society will be scattered throughout the week.

SENATOR FALL'S SPEECH Attacks Carothers, the American Representative With Villa's Army.

(By Associated Press.) Washington, April 21.—In the debate in the senate, Senator Fall of New Mexico, who has attacked the administration's waiting policy heretofore, assailed the policy of friendship to Villa.

Senator Fall declared that George R. Carothers, special representative of the state department with the army of Villa, is a business partner of the Madero family, and said no true judgment of conditions in that army could be formed on information from him. "I say to you that the president of the United States is misinformed or misinformed as to conditions in Northern Mexico, or he would not have held out the hope to them that he would form an alliance with these bandits."

Senator Fall reviewed a list of outrages by Villa against American property holders in Mexico. He declared that the United States stood as a "fence for the burglars of Northern Mexico." He declared action against Huerta would not relieve conditions in Northern Mexico. An effort to fix a vote for 1 o'clock was unsuccessfully made shortly after eleven by Senator Kern.

Look to Your Plumbing.

You know what happens in a house in which the plumbing is in poor condition—everybody in the house is liable to contract typhoid fever or some other fever. If you have any trouble with your digestion take Chamberlain's Tablets and you are certain to get quick relief. For sale by Evans' Pharmacy.

COTTON CROP

New Orleans, April 19.—Cotton was under considerable pressure last week but displayed some resistance to selling and good recuperative power. It was mainly a weather market. The market felt the effects of last week's cold wave and on the close, was nervous over promised heavy rains on Sunday. The net change in prices for the week was a loss of 15 to 17 points. Statistically, the market was strong last week, as mill takings were very large and the movement into sight small white stocks in the interior, showed marked shrinkage.

HOW FRENCH PEOPLE CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A household remedy of the French remedy, consisting of pure vegetable oil, and said to possess wonderful merits in the treatment of stomach, liver and intestinal troubles, has been introduced in this country by George H. May, who for twenty years has been one of the leading down town druggists of Chicago and who himself has been cured by its use. So quick and effective in its action this single day is usually enough to bring pronounced relief in the most stubborn cases, and many people who have tried it declare they never heard of anything to produce such remarkable results in so short a time. It is known as May's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and can now be had at almost any drug store. It is now sold here by EVANS' PHARMACY, Three Stories.

SENATOR ROOT'S SPEECH WARLIKE

NEW YORK STATESMAN SAYS IT IS NO TIME TO QUIBBLE NOW

TORCH IS LIGHTED

Crowded Galleries Are Silent As Senators Discuss Gravest Of Topics

(By Associated Press) Washington, April 21.—An air of excitement and grave concern pervaded the chamber when the senate convened at 8 o'clock tonight. The crowded galleries and the floor were alive with the news that four American marines had been killed and 20 wounded in the taking of Vera Cruz.

The big crowd of spectators sat in silent attention as the roll was called. On the floor the senators gathered in little groups and discussed the meager reports printed in extra editions of the newspapers. Scores of house members were on the senate floor, joining in the excited gossip. Senator Root opened the night session with a speech.

"I shall not prolong the debate," he said, "for I believe that whatever action we take ought to be taken today. There should be no further delay." "As Senator Root began, the British bassor, Sir Cecil Spring-Rice took a place in the diplomatic gallery.

Senator Root said the foreign relations committee resolution, while omitting the name of Huerta, made it plain that it was directed against him. He expressed the "highest regard for the president and the highest confidence in his purposes." "Opposes Program."

"But we are not asked to express our confidence in him," he continued. "We are asked as a part of our duty here, to declare a certain course of action in certain conditions to be justified. We are called on to do our duty to the hundred million people of this country and our duty to the civilized world."

The resolution Senator Root said, called for "forceful armed compulsion of the de facto government of a friendly and peace-loving neighbor to make amends for an insult to the flag of this country." "We cannot justify this," he said, "on our confidence in the president. We must justify ourselves before the conscience of the people of our country and before the eyes of the civilized world. What is that justification? Mark you, I do not say there is no justification. I ask what it is."

Senator Root reviewed the Tampico incident as the avowed "justification" by the president. He said the incident was an "insult to our flag." "But sir," he said, "amends were immediately made. The officer, who made the arrest was himself arrested. The commandant at Tampico apologized. These amends were not satisfactory to the commander of the American frigate and he demanded a salute to the flag."

Senator Root said he agreed that the amends were not sufficient as coming from "a de facto government," although they would have been sufficient coming from an individual. "If a dispute arose," he said, "as to details of further amends, the customary and usual incidents surrounding such a salute."

"This was the matter in dispute between this government and the de facto government of Mexico, and this is the justification upon which the resolution now before the senate is based." "We learn tonight that Vera Cruz has fallen; that four marines are dead; that 20 are suffering from wounds. Is there nothing else but this dispute of the number of guns, the form and ceremony of a salute to justify the sacrifice of the American lives?"

"Deeply as the president desires to maintain the scope of his action—the maintenance of peace, history suggests that once lit, the fires of our war cannot be quenched at will. What is the result of these incidents no man can tell. Men will die—men dear to us will die because of the action we are to take tonight. American homes will be desolate, American children will go through life fatherless because of the action we will take tonight and when they turn back the page to find why fathers died, are they to find that it was about the number of guns or the form of salute?"

"We, the representatives of the great democracy that prides itself before the world that democracies can be peaceful and just. It there is no justification that we can lay before the world, before the judgment seat of history, except a dispute about the number of guns?"

Senator Root asked what would be done if some incident had occurred in an English, French or German port. He said that any such dispute could be settled by peaceful negotiations. "If this dispute is not," he said, "there should be no difficulty in reaching a peaceful conclusion. It is for our honor, our peace and our justice, in our emergency, our present situation toward bankrupt weak, despising Mexico, if this be all, but this is not all. It is not all. There is a matter of justification. And the senator from Massachusetts has sought to lay it before the senate in his substitute for the preamble of the resolution."

American uniform, the American government. It is said that that makes necessary demand that public respect be made the flag of the United States. "There is our justification. It is a justification lying not in Victoriano Huerta or in his conduct alone, but in the universal conduct of affairs in Mexico, and the real object to be attained is not the gratification of personal pride; it is not the satisfaction of a government or an admiral. It is the desire of the United States to protect its citizens under these conditions."

Tension in the chamber increased as Senator Root, in a voice that sank lower and lower, reached his conclusion and pleaded for greater justification than a "mere dispute over the formal ceremony of a salute." "If we omit from this resolution that we are to pass here tonight," he said, "the matter included in the substitute preamble, we omit the real reasons behind the action. On the facts in the resolution as reported by the committee, we would be overacting wrong. On the facts in the substitute we could rest before the world and before history, secure."

Reed Takes Floor. As Senator Root took a seat a sigh swept over the chamber and was lost in a chorus of whispered comments, that was stilled by the gavel of Senator Lewis in the chair. As it sat, Senator Reed took the floor.

Secretary Bryan heard most of the speech. Secretary McAdoo reached the chamber just as Mr. Root ended. Senator Laney was also present. Senator Reed began:

"I say with all respect to the senator from New York that it is not a contest over the number of guns; it is over a much graver question. "The number of guns fired under certain circumstances is answer to the question of whether a proper apology has been made or not. This is the first notice that the de facto government had insulted our flag."

Senator Reed declared that the United States was not a land thief, and asserted that Mexican territory was in no sense the object of the nation's action. "The president of the United States is charged with a great responsibility. He hopes that the hope of peace is not yet gone. He asks for justification, and in reply to that request he meets a demand that we make a general declaration of war."

Portmaster General Burlison and Secretary to the President Tumulty, entered as Senator Reed spoke. In the gallery two soldiers in uniform attention of the other spectators. "Mr. President, can we not vote," said Senator Reed, in conclusion. "They are dying down there in Mexico already."

"Can we not say we are not quibbling about sentences, but can we not say we stand with President Wilson for justice by the authorities in Mexico?" "All Night Session of Debate. Washington, April 22.—3:30 a. m.—Determined on the passage of the administration Mexican resolution, the senate adjourned at midnight in the midst of a grave and impassioned debate. Ultimate passage of the resolution as reported by the foreign relations committee was generally conceded. The house had recessed until 10 o'clock in the morning to await the senate's action.

Meager reports of the engagement at Vera Cruz had filtered to the capitol when the senate resumed its session at 8 o'clock. The four Americans dead in Vera Cruz, the twenty wounded, and the two hundred Mexicans reported killed in the taking of the city, became the text of the talk, mentioned in hushed voices, and greeted with a solemn silence throughout the senate chamber, packed to suffocation.

A full quorum of the house of representatives crowded the rear of the senate hall. Secretary of State Bryan himself often referred to in debate, Secretary of War Garrison, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Postmaster General Burlison, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and Secretary to the President Tumulty, sat about the chamber. They listened eagerly and held whispered conferences as the discussion progressed.

Diplomats Hear Speeches. The diplomatic gallery was filled with members of the foreign corps with Ambassador Spring-Rice of Great Britain, at their head. The republican side of the senate, led by Senator Root, demanded that the "justification" proposed in the resolution for a movement in force against Mexico be founded not on the Tampico incident but on the long series of outrages against American citizens and their property, including the outrages where constitutionalists controlled.

Senators Reed and James vigorously defended the committee resolution, declaring the insult to the flag at Tampico justified all that the resolution provided for.

As the night wore on, and senator after senator demanded an opportunity to be heard, the atmosphere in the chamber grew more and more tense. Senator Fall made a impassioned plea for a campaign that would cover the length and breadth of Mexico.
