HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Caron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

BACK TO NEW HAMPSHIRE
President Will Spend Week-end Each Week at Cornish, N. H.

(By Associated Press)
Washington, Sept. 10.—President Wilson practically has decided to return to Washington Friday to spend

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose; I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its firing me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

several days at the summer white house at Cornish, N. H., returning to Washington next Tuesday. He has found he can keep in close touch with affairs in Washington while at Cornish, at the same time he enjoys complete seclusion and is able to rest. Mrs. Francis B. Sayre and other members of the president's family are at Cornish.

LET THE GOOD WORK GO ON

The movement to buy a bale of cotton is taking hold of the south. Atlanta, Columbia and other cities have put it into operation and the men of those cities are buying "distress" cotton and paying therefor 10 cents per pound.

Mark N. Patterson's suggestion that Anderson fall in line is being well received. The Intelligencer endorses this suggestion and will buy the first bale of cotton presented on the market today. The price to be paid will be 10 cents per pound, provided it is a poor man's cotton.

When it was announced Tuesday night to the waiting crowds in front of The Intelligencer office that this paper would promote and assist in forwarding this movement a number of business men at once took up the proposition. Those who declared their intention to buy such a bale at ten cents were: Lee G. Holleman, Bob King, W. L. Brissey, The Ladies' Civic Association, B. O. Evans & Co., C. S. Sullivan, Joe M. Evans, Rev. J. W. Speake, H. H. Watkins, and R. S. Ligon.

Previously reported, M. N. Patterson and The Intelligencer. Let the good work go on.

STATE'S CONSCIENCE IS AWAKE

The return of conscience to South Carolina. The people have seen what is right, and they have won the victory.

The triumph is for the people. They alone have achieved it. Machine politics and selfishness have been rebuked.

The people rule in South Carolina, and they will rule by the law and by the constitution.

Of all the amazing things in this remarkable year in South Carolina, nothing has been more astonishing than the vote of Anderson county. This county is sane again.

The work has been accomplished under the leadership of Judge S. Fowler, Milledge L. Bonham and their assistants.

The Intelligencer is proud of the stand it has taken for Richard I. Manning and we pledge the administration of this pure, generous and lovable gentleman to be an era of happiness and peace in South Carolina.

HONEST LABOR IS HONORED

There was celebrated Monday what is something almost unknown in the rural South—Labor Day. People who labor have been forming organizations for years. The Knights of Labor came into existence in 1869. The American Federation of Labor was organized in 1881.

There are occasional outbursts and exhibitions which cause the general public to have a feeling of antagonism toward or disgust for labor organizations, but for these offensive and segregated acts the whole scheme of organization should not be measured and should not be condemned.

Next to the school house and the church organized labor has played a great part in the uplift of the masses, in the broadening of ideas, in the inculcating of principles and of patriotism. The laboring man who has an opportunity to join an honorable union in an honorable way becomes a better employe, a better man, a better citizen.

What we mean by an honorable union is one that requires of applicants for membership that they must have gone successfully through the trials and experience of years of apprenticeship. A union which will throw open its doors to indiscriminate admissions is not a union but an incubus upon honorable labor.

Many things for the good of the world have been accomplished by organized labor. It has made the laboring man have a higher respect for himself and a deeper regard for his work. It has made the world more appreciative of the labor of honest men. Legislation has been enacted to protect the people who labor.

Sobriety, honesty, industry and patriotism are taught by those labor unions which amount to something, which stand for something.

To be sure, there are labor unions not deserving of the name just as some insurance companies belittle the great service to humanity on the part of the great companies; just as some religious sects cause dissatisfaction toward organizations bearing the name of church; just as some of the honored professions are dragged down by charlatans.

But there are labor organizations which are founded on good morals, high principles and splendid purpose, and it is to the credit of a great government that one day in the year is set apart as a national holiday in honor of the labor organizations.

There is one great, humane, christian feature of labor unions that causes them to survive and that feature in their willingness to submit to arbitration. That labor union sacrifices public interest and loses caste with its fellow organizations, which seeks to dictate, which is stiff-necked, cheaply assertive and puerilely arbitrary and imperious. But the great mass of honest, earnest, striving laboring men and women ask for nothing but a square deal and are willing to arbitrate their grievances.

It is intolerance that is a symptom of wickedness, and the willingness to arbitrate shows that the labor union is honest, that it has faith in itself and in the justice of the cause and the justness of its appeal to reason. That day when the labor union loses faith in itself, it resorts to violence, it becomes a mob, it outlaws itself and the cause of labor, the cause of millions suffers from the anarchy of the few. Labor, in its yearning, in its aspirations, in its appeal, is too susceptible to the fawning and the flattery of the "walking delegate", that Ishmaelitic parasite that inflames a healthy community with the poison of irresponsibility. That is not the true function of labor organizations. The true purpose is to inspire, to encourage, to uplift the individual; to strengthen the bond of organization; to cooperate with the employer to bring about the best results, the greatest percentage of productive value. Labor in its eagerness to grasp a hand extended, will sometimes take into its embrace one who has no regard for the laboring man save to use him in strife, for in strife and in strikes does the walking delegate find his means of livelihood.

May the day never come when labor shall cease to be entitled to the respect of the honest people of the world. May the day never come when labor shall repudiate the referee to arbitration. May the day never come when, by any act of its own, organized labor shall forfeit rights and privileges of citizenship. But may it ever respect capital which also has its rights, the rights achieved, amassed, and assembled through years of suffering, being an inspiration of the laboring man of today to strive on, to struggle upward, to suffer hardships, to endure privations, in the hope that through these tests of character may come the reward, that as long as manhood is manly, as long as hearts are virile with American spirit and application the toil grimed hands, the sweat laden brow, may be a badge of honor of decoration of true nobility of American citizenship.

Anderson, S. C.

Dear Sir:-

I think it is only right that I tell you of two incidents that have occurred recently by our advertising in your paper. Yesterday a man walked into the office and said that he wanted to look at the Chamblee farm that we were cutting up West of the city. I showed it to him and sold him one of them, before I got back to the office, I asked him where he saw the advertisement and he said in The Intelligencer.

Recently we had an inquiry from Columbia about a farm and when the man came up we sold him the place. He also said he saw the advertisement in The Intelligencer.

Yours very truly,

L. S. HORTON,
First Vice President.

MARKET REPORT

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 9.—The revision committee of the New York Cotton Exchange at its regular September meeting here today fixed the differences between grades as apply to the deliveries of contracts. While no change was made in the differences fixed last February on the low grades as sharp reduction was made in the high grade premium. Full middling was reduced in premium from 16 to 7 points while the greatest change was the reduction on the grade known as "fair" from 175 to 70. The premium on strict middling was reduced from 32 to 14 points and on good middling from 65 to 28 points.

Cotton Seed Oil

New York, Sept. 9.—Cotton seed oil advanced 9 to 14 points early on buying for account of refineries and soap makers, but later sagged off owing to the easier tendency of crude and lack of bull support. Final prices were three lower for September and 2 to 4 points higher for the balance. Tenders 1,200 barrels. Total sales 7,700 barrels.

Liverpool Cotton

Liverpool, Sept. 9.—Cotton spot in moderate demand. Sales 3,100 bales, including 2,300 American on the basis of 6,000 for middling. Imports 1,618 bales.

Dry Goods

New York, Sept. 9.—Cotton goods markets today were quiet and weak. Worned yarns were firm, cotton yarns dull and weak. Underwear prices for fall and winter season; barriaps quiet; dress goods active.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 9.—The board of trade closed today. Election holiday.

Money on Call

New York, Sept. 9.—Mercantile paper 7.
Sterling exchange stronger; for cables 499.50 a 600; for demand 498 a 499.
Bar silver 54 3/4.

CROP CONDITIONS

Washington, Sept. 9.—In the Southern States warm and dry weather favored the further improvement of the cotton crop and it is now reported in good condition in practically all the sections" says the weekly review of the weather bureau today.

"The bolls are opening in nearly all districts and picking is progressing in the Central and Southern portions. Some further local damage by weevil and shedding is reported. Late crops in this district continue promising, but rain is needed in some of the more eastern sections.

"Over the Atlantic coast districts from Virginia northward ideal weather prevailed and late crops made good progress, except in Virginia, where continued lack of rain caused all vegetation to remain at a standstill.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

New York, Sept. 9.—Completion of the details connected with the new city loan of 100,000,000 was the noteworthy feature in the financial district. What proportion of the amount will be taken by foreign interests is a matter for conjecture, but indications point to strong demand from that quarter.

Exchange was more active today, moved in a manner that denoted a better inquiry at London.

Because of a holiday the Chicago grain market suspended operations today, but the local quotations were slightly easier, with only a nominal market for corn. Other commodity markets reflected more stability. The crop conditions as a whole appear to have been favored thus far this month judging from the weekly weather report.

Declaration of regular dividends by the New York Central and Western Union Telegraph neutralizing the effect of some recent deferred and reduced disbursements.

A SPECIAL TRAIN

Will Be Operated to Greenville on Account of A. G. Field's Big Show

A. G. Field's has incorporated into his minstrel production for this year a picturesque and invaluable boost for the Panama-Pacific exposition. A rich kaleidoscope scene is shown, during which the spectator sees the main pavilion at the exposition and a view of the grounds both by day and by night. All is so attractively as to create desire to make a personal visit.

America holds the world's record for national and international exhibitions and fairs. It starts from the Centennial exposition in 1876 at Philadelphia and then follow the World's Fair at Chicago, the Buffalo Exposition and the St. Louis exposition—all with unparalleled attendance.

The night scene is one of rare attractiveness. The exotic Pacific coast night is charmingly reflected in the soft glow of the general illumination, while the thousands of miniature electric lights with which the building are adorned emphasize in brilliant splendor the mission architecture which dominates all the structures.
