

WINTER CREATIONS EXCITING INTEREST

MILLINERY OPENINGS HELD IN ANDERSON

IN PRETTY SHAPES

Anderson Dealers Show Styles of Very Pleasing Styles and Ladies Are Delighted

(From Thursday's Daily.) The enthusiastic acceptance which was accorded the invitation of D. Geisberg, Moore-Wilson & Co., Mrs. B. Graves Boyd and Mrs. J. C. Holleman to their formal openings on yesterday proved beyond a doubt Anderson's appreciation of her up-to-date and progressive buyers in all lines. The cool weather of the past week was calculated to make the fall showings very interesting and the day was all that could be desired for the style show. The merchants had spared no trouble or expense to make each display attractive and everything was in readiness to the last detail to receive their visitors. The call began early in the forenoon and continued in increasing numbers throughout the day.

The showings were gorgeous. While black and white lead the colors this season, yet there are beautiful showings in suits and piece goods in mid-night blue, gobbelin blue, nigger brown and bottle green. And the trimmings more brilliant than ever before, silver and gold, Persian and oriental.

In materials, satin broadcloth takes the lead in suitings, satin for dresses and the softest of chiffons, silk crepes and laces for evening. The styles all trend toward the basque and full tunic skirts.

Mrs. J. C. Holleman. While Mrs. Holleman has been in her new quarters in the Hotel Chiquola building for several weeks, yet her opening yesterday was the formal opening and showing of the new store as well as of the season's styles and models. As a token of appreciation for their patronage, visitors were presented with a beautiful cup and saucer of blue and white Japanese china.

The windows were models of elegant simplicity. In the left window two figures are prominent. One is dressed in a tailored suit, a blue broadcloth made with the military coat with long tunic and trimmings and black braid. The hat which matched this suit was of dark blue velvet three cornered turban with silver trimmings. The other figure was in evening dress, a skirt of two flounces of white pleated satin, the shirred basque of tulle in a soft shade of yellow with rose design, fastened in the back and finished with sash of same material tied in large bow. The long evening cape was of yellow brocade and the hat was a large black velvet with net finish at the brim and flat trimming of white ostrich feathers. In this window was a showing of novelties in neckwear, cords, beads, reception cases which go to make up a complete toilette. In the other window was a display of hats on bronze pedestals, of bottle green and Persian velvet and a pretty case of ornamental slipper buckles. The hats on these pedestals were the most enticing models and made the desire to see the larger showing on the inside of the store irresistible.

Nor were you disappointed. A big picture hat of black velvet only relieved by white French tips; another with black velvet brim, dark blue velvet crown with flat trimming around crown of purple, yellow and blue flowers and green foliage; a misses hat of black velvet with sash of black ribbon in loop from the back and simply, yet handsomely-trimmed, in embroidered roses in shaded pink, laid flat on the brim; other shapes in colors designed to match the suits were extravagantly admired.

One of the pretty dresses for street wear was a brown taffeta with very wide girdle and long tunic. A touch which made this suit "different" was the tiny splits around the entire hem of the skirt, about four inches apart. Numerous were the handsome coat suits displayed, but one particularly admired was a suit of bottle green rep. military coat with collar and cuff of trimmings of black broadcloth, and a very full pleated tunic. An elaborately frock which demanded attention was one of black messaline, shirred basque with front fastenings. The sleeves were of cream lace, and the same lace formed the tunic. Large amber buttons down the front of the basque and a dark green satin sash were the pretty finishings.

Dance dresses of tulle, chiffon, silk crepe in delicate colorings combined with laces were on exhibit. The skirt of one frock was entirely of cream lace flounces, the corsage was of open blue pussy willow silk with sash of the same tied in the back. Blouses in all the new models to use with the coat suits were arranged in attraction. The evening gowns and coats one very handsome coat of black cut velvet, made cape effect, with fur collar was much admired.

An interesting showing was one of misses school and street dresses of the Fadmar make, mostly of very dark materials simply made similar to the Mary Jane style, and finished with soft verry collars. In addition to showing the ready-to-wear, millinery, pretty neckwear and other accessories, Mrs. Holleman has given another touch to her store by adding a select assortment of odd china, bric-a-brac, Japanese ware and pretty wood fiber baskets, and these were very tastefully displayed.

Mrs. B. Graves Boyd. Mrs. Boyd announces her usual fashion display with Miss Feeney of New York as her model, showing dresses and suits direct from the metropolis, for next Wednesday afternoon and evening, and yet after viewing her display of these articles at her opening on yesterday, one might wonder if the latter showing could be more attractive.

The four handsome costumes in one window, and the two figures in the handsome suits and the pretty hats in the opposite one, formed the elegant window displays. One figure was in a black suit made with basque, shirred back and front, with satin sash in back and long tunic. The hat which was shown to accompany the suit was dark blue velvet with soft crown trimmed with ostrich feathers and silver braid. The other suit was of deep purple broadcloth with black trimmings. New purses, dainty handkerchiefs and Persian neck cords were included in the display.

Other suits in the ready-to-wear department in blue, nigger brown, in broadcloth, velvets and new suitings, made with the long tunics, Russian blouses, and redingote effects made the inspection of this department worth while. A table of pretty evening frocks in the center aisle caught your attention immediately. One gown of cream net, with tunic of the same net embroidered in pink and gold, and finished around the bottom of skirt with double ruffle of pink satin ribbon, and corsage of pink satin in surplice effect was especially lovely. Another equally attractive was of pale blue crepe. The corsage was draped and caught with dainty pink and yellow roses on the shoulder. The tunic was long and finished with deep tucks and the girdle was very deep of pink satin embroidered in blue and opalescent beads.

Mrs. Boyd is making a specialty of piece goods and trimmings and has a right to be proud of her selection. Her showing includes all the new materials, and all the new shades, with trimmings that are elaborate and handsome indeed.

In the millinery department the display equals if not surpasses other displays in past seasons. One black velvet shape with top facing of silver cloth and silver quills and band was very chic. There was another black French hat slightly tilted on one side with white tips and silver band; still another closely fitting turban with ruffled coronet of hagen blue and trimmings of opalescent spangles and paradise feathers; and numerous other models that cannot be described. The special attractions of the millinery display were the imported hats, secured for Mrs. Boyd by a foreign buyer.

In a case in the front of the store shows the new neckwear, hair pins and ornaments, pins, purses and dress accessories deep to the hearts of the well dressed woman.

Moore-Wilson & Company.

This big store presented a brave array of everything. Each department vied with the other in tempting the purse strings of the buyers. The store was attractively arranged with tables, each presenting a different selection of pretty things. On entering, one was immediately taken by the dainty handkerchief display. It seems that the "something new" in this line is the very deep hem with the em-broidery on the sides, then there are pretty touches of the colors in edging and designs. Then the neckwear is hardly less distracting, for the special collars are very fetching, mostly of chiffons, organdies, and net, often with cuffs to match. The styles are varied, the Revolution, Gladstone and Georgette predominating. Then there are such pretty scarfs in Ombre effects.

Down the center aisle on first table were selections of velvet piece goods, black, green, plum, and nigger brown, and trimmings of fur bandings which included the new monkey fur, jet fringe and buttons; following this came the silks and satins, with silver buttons, tassels, deep laces embroidered and spangled in silver and gold and ornamental bandings. The fourth table is undoubtedly a thing of beauty, with its showing of materials and trimmings for evening wear. Chiffons, embroidered in gold and silver, brocade charmeuse and crepe de chine for bridal costumes, satin de laine in shades of peacock and Lucerne, embroidered chiffon in oriental colors, and banding of ostrich and marabou and sequins on net in opalescent tints.

Near by are tables of kimono silks, Roman stripes for waist goods, novelty dress goods in Scotch plaids, silks and broadcloth, displays of linens and cluny pieces, selections of infant outfits and sacks, robes booties and mittens.

Entering the millinery department the cases of pretty wigs, shaded in pink and orange, on which is displayed an enticing evening hat of pink with plume to match and edged with fur, a child's hat with black velvet crown with trills of black net, cream lace and pink ribbon, and trimmed with tiny pink roses and maidenhair, and a Rawak turban of blue brocade silk, trimmed with moleskin, with small butterfly of the same material, also edged with the same fur. This firm handles the Rawak (Garc. Kisko, Johnson and Altken models. There was also a pretty Moorehead and Jaxline hat of black velvet with top facing of gold brocade, trimmed with black plumes and gold crepes. A Rawak street hat, double four corners, of black velvet, bound with grograin ribbon and trimmed with feathers was stunning. Other especially attractive models included a Flako hat of nigger brown velvet with hair facing of gold cloth, with flat trimming of peacock quills and velvet trim; a Gage misses hat with white chiffon facing and brim of gold lace edged with fur, black velvet crown with flower trimming, and a Rawak continental of silver cloth trimmed in moleskin and black and white aigrettes.

In the ladies ready-to-wear were shown the latest models in the newest materials, and the selection is so varied that one who could not be pleased here would be very difficult to be suited. The showing for misses and children is as complete as the one for the grown folks, and equally interesting.

Another interesting display was that of the Red Cross shoe, in all the latest designs in this season's footwear. There were pretty bronze, patents, cloth tops and gun metal, in fact the same complete selection in this department as is found in all the other, which is characteristic of this store.

D. Geisberg. Miss Geisberg and Miss Elliott spent six weeks in New York this fall making the careful selection, and surely brought their best judgment into play in buying the fall and winter stock shown yesterday. Passing through the store one made slow progress because of the many pretty novelty exhibits, lingerie, satin petticoats and hosiery. Special mention is to be made of the very pretty girdles, particularly in black and white, to be found in the cases.

The windows and inside trimmings were of autumn foliage and made a pretty setting for the splendid array of pretty things. Miss Idella Meyers is the head trimmer in this establishment and the showing in this line is a superior one. Hats in any color and to match any suit, and for all occasions. The new Cato and Pochabontas shapes and sailors are shown, black velvet leading other materials for the foundations of the hats, still there are shapes in the Russian green, gobbelin blue, and nigger brown, with trimmings of brilliant flowers, oriental and cupid ribbons, monkey fur, feathers, numidies, fancy ostrich, French plumes and silver and gold motifs and ornaments.

A brown velvet Pochabontas shape with brown fur top and cupid ribbon trimming in Cossack shape bow was most desirable. A misses hat with black velvet brim and soft crown of purple velvet with flat trimming of purple popples; a dainty child's hat of black velvet with pink facing of pink and pink ribbon trimmings, and a masquony green turban with a Persian crown and a dress hat with brim of gold net overlaid with monkey fur and crown of golden brown velvet with French shaded plume, were among the most appealing.

Upstairs you were ushered into a realm of fashionable ready-to-wear. Dresses in which the new basque effect predominates, suits of chiffon plush, satin broadcloth, and wool velvet in black, Kelly green, gobbelin blue, all long coats and redingote effects, and turtles, Russian and pleated and flared. Coats of heavy materials in mixtures, blues, browns, greens, and plaids, in the new cape effect for both misses and ladies.

There is a dark green suit with a basque effect coat and Russian tunic, with velvet collar and cuffs with Persian trimmings, and skirt with pleated tunic that is handsome.

The showing of evening dresses is beautiful. Delicate shades of tulle, chiffons, satin combined with laces elaborately made and elaborately trimmed and a beautiful one, all of black with velvet basque, satin skirt with shirred face sleeves and lace overskirt edged with black velvet.

Miss Geisberg reports a splendid day in fitting Gossard corsets, and numerous other models. The fact that special fittings can be had is an asset not to be ignored in the purchase of corsets.

An article deserving special mention is the new imported quilted Japanese kimonos. These come in all colors, daintily embroidered in contrasting colors, and are very warm and cozy for winter use.

An attractive model is shown in a window gowned in a sours black coat suit, with black picture hat trimmed in gobbelin blue plumes. Another black shape trimmed in ostrich owed for the occasion, to make the window display more attractive was a goodly showing of the fall boots, from Geisberg's Shoe house, and they were of such pretty styles that they did help to make a very complete window.

Other Displays. The fact that only the above mentioned stores, announced formal displays does not mean that they have a monopoly on the beautiful. The displays of the other stores were none the less bazaar and interesting and receive their measure of visitors and compliments.

Cost Kept Down—Quality Kept Up.

No better medicine could be made for coughs, colds, croup, hoarseness, tickling throat, bronchitis, etc., than Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. That's why they can't improve the quality and war or no war, the price remains the same. E. J. Fargent, Dallas, Tex., says: "I believe Foley's Honey and Tar has no equal for it completely relieved me of all symptoms of tuberculosis as my cough was entirely disappeared." Don't accept any substitute for a boy's Honey and Tar is the best. Evans' Pharmacy agents.

ENJOYABLE SWASH UP

While going in opposite directions on bicycles yesterday two sons of Ham collided with each other, and the serious part of the collision was that each was carrying a watermelon, the melons getting the worst end of the fall, being bursted open and scattered over the road. It may have been a scheme to get a half melon, no one will ever know. But before the gust had cleared from the collision, the two principals were indulging in a feast that only a farmer knows how direction of the burgomaster established themselves in the church, where they installed a machine gun. They proceeded to greet the Germans with a deadly fire.

CRUEL TREATMENT ABSOLUTELY FALSE

Fired on Comrades. "The Belgians say that part of the German army, mistaking one of their own retiring divisions for the enemy, opened fire upon them, whereupon, deluded into thinking this an assault by Belgian civilians, the Germans razed the whole city.

"I have not been able to acquire any direct evidence in regard to the last two instances, but the explanation generally credited by disinterested persons is that the Belgians who had laid down their arms according to the burgomaster's proclamation on the entrance of the enemy, took them up again when it looked as if the Germans were retreating from the town, and opened fire from their windows upon a retiring German train.

"The most authoritative German denial of German offences comes from Major General Thaddeus von Jarotzky, military governor of Brussels, who informs me that in numerous cases he had been received with a pretense of friendliness by Belgian civilians who later fired upon the German soldiers from windows and from between the roof tiles. This was done after a declaration of surrender by the burgomaster and a proclamation, warning the citizens against any show of resistance.

In such violations of the rules of war, the general said, he punished the offenders by burning the house from which the shots were fired.

In every case of reported outrage or reprisal which was susceptible of investigation, I have found either that the outrage was a figment of the Belgian mind or that it was more than half excused by circumstances.

The prevalence of the Belgian practice of sniping from the house was perhaps indicated by the warning of the German officer who acted as guard for five American correspondents including myself, who were being taken as prisoners from Beaumont to Aachen in an army train. We were advised to lie down on the floor of the car as the Belgian snipers would shoot at us from the houses. But there was no firing.

This, of course, is not a brief for the German army; it is an account of German conduct as it appeared to an impartial observer who had the rather extraordinary opportunity of travel for days with the German columns, over a distance of more than a hundred miles through a dozen important cities and towns.

Was Near to Battles. "Sometimes I was near enough to the front to see the white artillery smoke spurt into clouds along the horizon and hear the double detonations which came from artillery at short range. At other times I trailed behind through the desolate waste which a victorious army leaves behind it. But the waste was the inevitable footprint of war, marking the most utter dreariness, misery and despair, but not with a hint of savagery, or wanton butchery of excess.

"On the contrary, I witnessed numerous cases of the most careful courtesy on the part of German soldiers. In Brussels they not only paid their cafe bills, but tipped generously. Along the road, when a German officer or soldier entered a Belgian house for food or shelter, it was not with a demand, but a request.

"The German soldiers were punctiliously considerate and polite to women and children, apologizing for the discomfort they were causing. Were Very Considerate. "A French lieutenant and two English officers traveled with us in the prison train from Beaumont to Aachen, a halting journey which took 36 hours. The train was crowded with German wounded and French and English prisoners, and there was nothing to eat or drink except a few fragments of rice bread, hard as a stone and a little liquid compound of chicory, which in Belgium is called coffee. Since there was not enough even of this disheartening fare to go around, German officers went without food so that the prisoners might be fed.

A Ticklish Experience. "In Beaumont while I was detained for 24 hours in a small cage with an armed guard at the door, although specifically told that I was not an ordinary prisoner, a swaggering petty officer lunged toward me and showed me the sharp, convincing edge of his sword, insisting that I run my hand across it. Meanwhile he muttered to other soldiers in the room that the other correspondents and I were English spies. But this was my only disagreeable experience of this sort.

Gives Good Advice. "German discipline and German training seem to have bred into German soldiers an exemplary behavior, which is nothing less than remarkable. Before I fell asleep on the floor of the Beaumont cafe, with two German soldier's guns slanting almost over me, I heard the petty officer who was in charge of us giving instructions to the guards, which included the statement that any one of us who stirred outside the door, should be shot. Then he counseled them, almost in a facetiously way to drink only moderately, stating quite firmly that if they became drunk he would recommend a sentence of fifteen years in the penitentiary.

"If the conduct of the German soldiers at all, it is on the side of a too complete subordination. It is impossible for anyone who has seen much of the German system to believe in the tales of deliberate depredations and unsoldierly conduct."

ELECTRIC CITY SPARKLETS

Items of Interest and Personal Mention Caught Over the Wireless on the Streets of Anderson

(From Thursday's Daily.)

Changes Made In Local Cigar Store.

E. P. Martin, who has been connected with the Anderson Coca-Cola Company has resigned his position and is now connected with the Interurban Cigar store in this city. It has been announced that the cigar stores of the interurban will put on a service for the news butches at an early date and that half of the news boys will go out of the city hereafter instead of Greenville as has been the case. A complete stock will be carried in this city for the news boys and they will be supplied from here on all trains which leave this city in the morning and make the round trip during the day. This change will go into effect on October 1st.

Deeded Lot To Civic Association.

H. G. Anderson has deeded a pretty "triangle" lot on River street to the Civic Association of Anderson and at the next meeting of the association the lot will be formally accepted by that body. It is understood that the ladies of the association plan to utilize this lot as a public park and that they will decorate it in flowers and will make it a place of beauty in every respect. It is also said that the "big persuader" will be moved from the center of North Main street to this lot at an early date. The ladies of the association are very appreciative of Mr. Anderson's kindness.

Banquet For The Physicians.

The meeting of the Anderson County Medical Association which took place yesterday morning in the rooms of the chamber of commerce, was one of the most interesting yet held. Practically every physician in the city was in attendance and some splendid papers were heard, among these being: "Acute Gastritis" by Dr. H. A. Pruitt; "Gastric Dilatation" by Dr. B. A. Henry and "Diagnostic Aids in Gastric Affections" by Dr. Oigo V. Pruitt. Dr. W. F. Ashmore, president of the association also delivered a splendid lecture, illustrated and following the conclusion of the meeting Dr. Ashmore entertained the association at lunch, which was served at the Piedmont cafe. The meeting was enjoyable from start to finish.

Schedules Are To Be Changed. Effective next Sunday several changes will go into effect on the Charleston and Western Carolina railroad. It was said at the local office of the company yesterday that no statement could be made in regard to the changes, as they have not been yet worked out, but T. B. Curtis, commercial agent of the road, said that the changes would certainly benefit Anderson and that local people would appreciate them. It is planned to bring crews into Anderson for one night's lay-over instead of having them spend the night at McCormick and some of the trains will leave this city at a later hour formerly while others will arrive earlier than the old schedule called for.

Busy Day For the Magistrate

Magistrate Broadwell had his hands full yesterday in attending to the civil and criminal cases which came before him. Joe Scott, a young white man, was arraigned on a charge of being drunk and was sentenced to pay a fine of $5.00. Quince Garrett, a negro, pleaded a charge of beating a board bill and he was given a choice of paying a fine of $15 or serving for 30 days. Alfred Nesbitt, another negro, also faced the same charge and was sentenced to either pay a fine of $10 or to serve for 15 days on the gang.

Mr. Oliphant Is To Write Review.

Albert D. Oliphant one of the best reporters on the staff of the Columbia State, arrived in Anderson last night and will spend today in the city, finishing material for an article which he will write about the city of Anderson. Mr. Oliphant will write this article for a special edition of the State which is soon to appear and every town and city in the state of any importance will be displayed in the coming edition. Mr. Oliphant will spend today in Anderson and then will go to Greenville for similar work.

Rack From Table Visit to the Mountains.

Mrs. S. M. Orr, Miss Lydia Orr and Mr. and Mrs. George C. Ald returned to the city yesterday after a month's stay at Rustic Home Campers, N. G. and Mr. and Mrs. Ald will spend the next month in Anderson and attend that, if conditions permit, they will return to their home in Italy, where Mr. Ald is an artist of note. However, they do not believe that it will be possible for them to make the trip by that time and it is probable that they will spend several more weeks in this country.
