Germans Driven Back Across Yser Canal

LONDON, Oct. 27. (9:50 p. m.)—A Central News dispatch from north-eastern France says the Germans, in great part, were driven back across the Yser yesterday. French artillery aided by monitors, accomplished the task.

"When the Belgians undertook the defense of the Yser," the dispatch continues, "they held it for a week. Then by sheer weight of artillery and men the Germans pushed them back, but not before they had paid the full price of the temporary gain."

"At least two army corps faced the Belgians. Their object was to force right into France and thus turn the Allies' left flank. The Belgians, a thousand casualties to prevent this. It is reported on reliable authority that the German emperor had placed eight army corps in this part of the field. Their losses have been frightful; their success virtually nil.

"Towards the end of last week the situation was doubtful; now there is no reason to fear failure. On the contrary, first class success may be looked for, which will place the Germans finally on the defensive in the West. Great progress is being made in the region of the Belgian army."

TORPEDO BOAT HELD BETWEEN SAND BARS

EMBEDDED SO DEEP IN THE SAND THAT ALL EFFORTS TO PULL HER OUT INTO DEEP WATER WERE ABANDONED—84 MEN ON BOARD, SOME WEARING LIFE PRESERVERS

(By Associated Press.)
NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 27.—Held fast between two sand bars in Lynnhaven Bay where she struck early this morning during a severe northeast storm, the torpedo boat Paulding is tonight being pounded by high seas, which at times break all over the tiny craft. Anchored nearby is the auxiliary cruiser Panther, mother ship of the torpedo boat. She has a rope made fast to the Paulding, but the latter craft is embedded so deep in the sand that all efforts to pull her out deep water were abandoned for fear that she could not stand the strain.

On board the Paulding are 84 men, some of them wearing life preservers.

Life savers from Cape Henry station made several unsuccessful efforts to reach the Paulding today. The seas were so high they could not launch their life-boats.

The storm at midnight had abated and the sea was moderating. The torpedo boat Burroughs and yett also went ashore during the blow this morning. The Burroughs had a hole in the starboard bow and was lifted up by the auxiliary cruiser Dixie. She later came to the Norfolk navy yard. The latter struck a sand bar and had her starboard propeller broken on. She, too, came to the yard.

It was reported at the navy yard tonight that the Paulding was not leaking, according to last reports received from the vessel.

REFUGE DOTS.

The Rev. T. M. Land delivered two very impressive sermons at this place last Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning.

The farmers of this section have decided to sow more grain and plant less cotton next year, and we think this a very wise idea as we are great believers in raising every thing we need to eat on the farm. Every farmer should sow a lot of wheat and oats, plant more corn and less cotton, raise all the hogs and cattle possible, and devote all the spare time they could to poultry. We certainly do believe that if every farmer would do this there would be better times.

Mrs. P. C. Gillespie has had an attack of tonsillitis, but at this writing she is much improved.

Mrs. T. F. Evatt and charming little children, Maude and Wayman, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank May, Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Sam Poore and family of the Lebanon section visited at the home of Mr. J. C. Gillespie last Sunday.

Mr. Ed Smith and family of Corinth, No. 2, attended services at this place Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Evatt and little daughter, Agnes, visited the former's mother, Mrs. M. J. Evatt, last Sunday.

Mr. Eugene McAllister and family spent last Sunday at Mr. S. P. Phillips.

Master Mc Donnie Phillips, who has been on the sick list, is much improved at this time.

The friends of Master John Lenderman will be glad to learn that he is improving a little, though it is but slight, the doctor and nurse have more hopes than at the last writing. Little Eliza is almost well again. She is able to be on her usual round of play duties.

We often hear people wondering how disease germs get scattered. We can answer, by the flies, as much as any other way, if they have access to barns, hog pens and other filthy places, and are not screened, or otherwise kept away from the food which we eat. How can we expect anything but disease? Therefore we should be unusually careful at this time, especially. We should make very sure that these detestable "critters" have not been allowed to sit upon anything that we eat, or get into that which we drink. We have heard the old adage, all our lives that "cleanliness is next to Godliness," and we know of a certainty that cleanliness is absolutely necessary to good health.

Mrs. T. F. Evatt dined with Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Gillespie Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Gilliard of Norris spent a very pleasant hour at Mr. W. E. Seare's last Sunday.

Among those who attended the Belton Fair from this section were Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Newton. They made the trip in their auto.

The many friends of Miss Nellie Newton will be glad to know that she is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Craig spent Sunday night at the home of Mr. J. C. Gillespie.

Mr. Henry Hicks and family of the Six and Twenty section dined with Mr. and Mrs. Hamp Hicks Sunday.

With very best wishes to Mr. Smoak and his valuable Daily Intelligencer, will ring off and promise to come again next week.

BOTH SERVICES WELL ATTENDED YESTERDAY

Large Congregations Gather at Baptist Church to Hear Master Speaker, Dr. White.

Again yesterday both at the morning and evening services large congregations gathered at the First Baptist church to hear that master speaker, Dr. White. In the morning his subject was "The Set of the Soul, or What is in the Heart," and he used as his text II Chron. 6:6-7. "It was in the heart of David to build an house for the name of the Lord God of Israel." Every life has been organized around some great passion or desire and whether the desired end is accomplished or not, the size of the person takes its shape and proportion from the purpose of the heart.

David's life long purpose toward which all his best efforts were given was to build a home for God. He was not satisfied to have a palace for himself and only a tent for God. David was a poet and musician, warrior, statesman, but none of these fulfilled his dreams. He died without his great desire realized though he did his best to carry it out, gathered the material, gold, cedar, but God purposed that Solomon should build the house. None of God's great servants have realized their ambitions, their dreams. Did Abraham? Did Moses? Did David? Did Paul? God teaches this important truth, "Life is not measured by what we achieve, but what we earnestly strive to do, to have a definite purpose and to strive with all our might to bring it to pass."

He noted, first the effect on David's own life. This constant burning desire to bring honor and glory to God, caused his own soul to expand in nobility, and sublime magnetism kept true and fine by his dominant impulse. Men are what they are, not because they do what they do, but because of the measure of the ideals and struggles, and purposes within. Character depends upon the aims. Small selfish desires make small selfish people. It is the pathos of human life that men allow themselves to be cheated out of the possibilities of their lives by allowing small purposes and selfish desires to shape the life.

Every man who honestly and earnestly pursues a great purpose lays a foundation upon which others may build. Solomon built the house out of the material collected by David. We are the architects of the future.

Second, God keeps the records, He gives us credit for our aims and purposes. He takes the will for the deed. Abraham was credited with righteousness, because he sought that Paul is credited with Christ likeness because that was the passion of his life. We should live out our high aims and great purposes.

At night Dr. White took for his subject "The Unpardonable Sin," using for his text Matt. 12. "Therefore I say unto you whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost it shall not be forgiven him." He spoke first of his great love of telling the story of salvation, and Jesus' love, and how he dreamed at first to preach of the doom of sin, and so for years he would not preach on "The Unpardonable Sin." But he felt that there were men who needed to be freed from morbid fear.

1. What is it?
2. Who commits it?
3. Why unpardonable?

Two ideas are prevalent. First, that it is some blasphemous word which we may let slip at an unguarded moment. Second, some heinous sin, some concrete deed. He did not think either. There is a distinction between speaking a word against Jesus and speaking against the Holy Spirit who should come and who was to be the very spirit of God. Words of warning, God was to flood the world with light, giving such revelation of himself in the spirit of God, that any one who could persistently resist the claims of Jesus made clear by the divine light of the Holy Spirit.

The sin of saying, No, No, No, to God, after the Holy Ghost has come to you trying to win you to Christ, is the unpardonable sin. One who has refused over and over again when the Spirit himself says, Come, come, come.

The hopelessness of the case is that the habit of refusing has become so fixed that the man's heart can not yield.

Who commits it? Not the man who fears he has or may commit it. Not the man who tries not to but it is he who cares nothing for what any man says.

It is the man whose eyes behold the light, but whose darkness rather than light.

Whose fault is it? Is it a failure of God's grace? If Jesus cleanses all sin, why not this one sin? God has no chance at a soul that stubbornly refuses to listen to his pleading, and heaven has no cure for a man who persistently refuses the spirit's call. Two thieves were crucified with Jesus. One accepted him. One did not. This sin is unpardonable because the soul may become so that it can't hear God's voice, can't turn to him. The habit of fixed denial makes them unchangeable.

If you bend your life toward heaven now, then when you die it will still go on towards God. If you bend it towards evil, away from God, it will forever go further and further away from God. That is the law that governs the world.

Dr. White's subject for the morning service today is "Four Ways of Temptation." He will preach tonight on "The Wonderful Saviour."

CHEDDAR NEWS.

The school at Cedar Grove will begin its 1914-1915 session on Monday, Nov. 2. It is earnestly desired that every patron, both mothers and fathers, will be present on the opening day and show the teachers that they are interested in the school and willing to cooperate with them in the work.

Messrs. Claude and Bailey Pepper of Easley visited relatives near here last week and attended the Belton Fair.

Miss Helen Price of Pendleton is spending the week with her sister, Mrs. Curtis Copeland.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. George Hammond has been critically ill with diphtheria for the past week.

Mr. W. S. Copeland of Septs spent Tuesday night in Cheddar enroute to the Belton Fair.

We cannot mention the many who attended the Fair from Cheddar but will say that we were all there and a number of our people were successful in bringing home some of the prizes offered by the Belton citizens.

Among those were H. Kelly, Lewis Mahaffey and R. T. Kelly.

From the appearance of the display of farm products at this Fair, it seems that our people are not near the starving point as many would have us think. Mr. Editor, if it is necessary for the correspondents of your paper to cry "hard times" in order to be "fashionable" I'm afraid here's one decidedly not up-to-date, for we do not believe in looking always on the dark side. This is not the first crisis that has confronted the South and it's not all going to be the last one either. If all these frowning, grouch, pessimistic people could be put in a goods box and sent on a tour through Europe, they would cease talking long before they landed on American soil. The farmers are not suffering. They are going to live and they can do it with cotton at its present price too. It's not going to hurt them to stop spending so much money foolishly. All this talk reminds one of a spoiled child who has been allowed everything it wishes and then when it is taken from it, sends up a wall for its lost treasure. This is not the true American spirit. Our nation has always met misfortune with brave hearts, standing courageously at the post of duty and when the time comes marching like heroes to the front of battle. Now it would be cowardly to shrink from the colors under which we march and face the impending danger like men and women—true sons and daughters of the Southland. Put on a smiling face and look for the joys of life. Then lift your heart in gratefulness to the Giver of all good. There is so much wasted sunshine in the world, and so many clouds lined with shining silver, but we too often turn our faces and gaze instead at the dark gray coloring around which no ray is thrown.
