FROM SEPTUS.

Well the rain has come just in time to save this part of the country from being all sowed down to wheat and oats.

It looks now that there's not enough land left for a decent corn crop and one thing sure is there's much cotton planted here next spring there will have to be some small grain plowed up.

As far back as we can remember the farmers of this section have been talking of getting cotton and guano but this is one time, without ceremony, frills or flounces, they are going to do this stunt.

Heretofore, it was all talk and no action—this time it is all acting and no talk.

We have heard numbers and numbers of farmers express themselves as not going to use a spoonful of ready-made guano in 1915.

They are going to try one crop either with oak leaves and acid or meal and acid or just straight acid.

Today our farmers are in the worst shape that they have been in since the Civil war but if they will follow the policy for five years as outlined for next year they will then be in the best shape that they have been in since the Civil war.

Brother farmers, stay in the middle of the road that you have blazed out for yourselves, turn neither to the right nor to the left to listen to the sweet talk that will be given you next spring in the way of "omra guano," "no dressing," etc. etc. If you can make the next crop without owing the fertilizer man one red cent then so much the better, for by raising less cotton with less commercial fertilizer you will be helping yourselves five ways.

We had the pleasure of attending the Thanksgiving exercises of the Lebanon High school on Wednesday, the 25th and we must say that those who took part did themselves and teachers credit and we are sure that every one present greatly enjoyed it. We are proud of the work that is being done at Lebanon and Prof. Jayroe and his able assistants, Messes Blackman, Broyles and Cooner, are getting many nice bouquets that perhaps they never know of for we have heard many of the patrons say that Lebanon has the best teachers that she's ever had and as the old woman expressed it, that's saying a "whole passed."

Mr. A. J. Smith and daughter, Miss Mildred, Mr. J. F. Mullikin, Mr. J. D. Welborn and Mr. James Welborn attended the Elders' convention at Townville on Thanksgiving evening and they came back with nothing but the very highest praise for the hospitality of the Townville people and "Jim" Welborn says that he never saw as many pretty girls in his life and it goes without saying that "Jim" is a fine judge of this article.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. McAllister, who have just recently moved into their new home, gave the young people of the community a pound party on the night of November 13. There were about 100 present and every one enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. McAllister to the fullest measure and they hope to have the pleasure of meeting in this pretty home again on another such occasion. Here's hoping that The Intelligencer force is well and happy and that old Santa will not fail to fill their socks and stockings as the case may be.

J. L. SHERARD RESIGNS AS SCHOOL TRUSTEE

SUCCESSOR WILL BE CHOSEN AT MEETING OF BOARD ON JANUARY 2

XMAS HOLIDAYS

Will Begin Wednesday, December 25.—Resume Work on January 4th.

Acceptance of the resignation of Senator-elect J. L. Sherard as a member of the board of trustees of the city schools of Anderson was the principal matter transacted yesterday afternoon at the regular monthly meeting of the board, held in the office of Superintendent E. C. McCarty. A successor to Mr. Sherard will be chosen at a meeting of the trustees to be held January 2, 1915, at 4 o'clock p. m. Christmas Holidays.

Other than transaction of routine business little of general interest transpired at the meeting of the board of trustees. It was decided to close the schools for the Christmas holidays on Wednesday afternoon, December 23, and resume work on the first Monday in January, which will be the 4th.

Mr. Sherard's Resignation. In a letter to Chairman J. A. Brock of the board of trustees, Mr. Sherard gave the following explanation of his resignation:

"I beg to tender my resignation as a trustee of School District No. 17, and request that it be acted upon and accepted at the regular December meeting of the board.

I regret the necessity of having to relinquish my position as trustee as I am deeply interested in the work of building up a thoroughly efficient system of public schools, but it is plain from the language of the state constitution and from decisions of the supreme court of South Carolina that I cannot hold the positions of 'tax assessor and school trustee' at the same time.

Article III, Section 4 of the constitution is as follows: "No person shall be eligible to a seat in the general assembly, while he holds any office or position of profit or trust under this state, the United States or any other power, except officers in the militia and notaries public; and if any member shall accept or exercise any of the said disqualifying offices or positions he shall vacate his seat."

Section 649 of the Code of Laws of South Carolina, Volume 1, 1912, is explicit, it says: "It shall be unlawful for any person to assume the duties of any public office until he has taken the oath provided by the constitution, and then been regularly commissioned by the governor. The term 'public officers' shall be construed to mean all officers of the state that have heretofore been commissioned, and trustees of the various colleges of the state, members of various state boards, inspectors constables and other persons whose duties are defined by law."

In two recent cases the supreme court has handed down decisions clearly interpreting the law. In the case of Mitchell vs Jones, 94 S. C. page 487, it is held that "one appointed supervisor of registration while holding the office of trustee of a public school district thereby forfeits the position of trustee." Again in Dalving vs Brunson, 94 S. C. page 207, the court ruled that, "as the petitioner could not hold two offices, the law interprets his act of accepting the second office as an abandonment of the first."

Letters From The People

EDITOR THE INTELLIGENCER:

The condition of the streets at this time, has, I think, convinced everyone of the necessity of paving. The low price of cotton in the South has made ready money so scarce that a great many people, white and black, have been thrown out of work, and it is more necessary that we do something for these people than that we feed the Belgians, however important and laudable that may be.

It will be a hardship on most property owners to pay their share of the cost of paving, but the city can finance it so that payments can be made over a number of years. All those with whom I have talked are willing to make the sacrifice in order to help their neighbors.

I suggest that as soon as the legislature ratifies the amendment voted at the last election allowing us to pave and collect part of it from abutting property owners, that the city authorities, in submitting the question of bonding the city, do it with a provision that instead of letting the work out by contract, that the city will employ a competent man to take charge of the work and employ the citizens of Anderson only until all who want a job have one, and then the citizens of Anderson County. In this way we shall keep a large part of the money at home, and give work to a large number of honest people who are anxious to do anything that is honorable to pay rents and grocery bills, etc., until spring.

This is merely an outline of the plan. Of course there would be many details to work out, but the main thing is that the city would get paving, and her citizens get work, both of which are sadly needed now.

Yours very truly,
E. R. HORTON.

For the Grain Elevator.

EDITOR THE INTELLIGENCER:

At a call meeting of the business men of Anderson County on November 24 by Mr. J. S. Fowler I was appointed on a committee to confer with people as to the importance of building a grain elevator in the city of Anderson. Will state that I have been somewhat "under the weather" (sick), ever since, but it has not been of my mind since it was first mentioned. In fact, I have favored such a proposition for several years and have openly advocated it as some of my most intimate confidants will testify. As I see it now it has become a necessity. For we must change our one crop system of farming and in order to encourage our people to diversification we must establish a cash market for our produce. This the elevator will do if properly handled in a business way. There must be business methods behind everything to make it succeed.

While the elevator, within itself is nothing more than a warehouse for grain it accomplishes a different relation to the farmer. As we have been accustomed to use our warehouses for cotton in our immediate neighborhood for the fact that a market has already been established for cotton anywhere it can be found for the cash delivered at any railroad station of the country, which could be wonderfully improved upon, however, if we would adopt the habit of selling through a regular warehouse system.

But not so with grain. We will first have to create a cash market for it by putting a good marketable condition. It will not stand exposure to the weather like cotton, but must be kept dry, graded and properly sacked and guaranteed by some one because a regular standard basis of credit. So as to be used like cotton when desired.

It will enable you to use your grain as collateral if the market is too low at the time of harvest. I heard two of our bankers say in the meeting referred to that they would see soon led money on grain stored in an elevator as on cotton in warehouses. The thing we want to do is to get the business men interested in this meeting for it takes money to build and equip the elevator. The expense of running it need not be expensive, of course, it will have to be backed by capital enough to carry on its business of exchange.

Wheat, corn, oats, peas and hundreds of other things will be offered here in exchange for the cash which is its primary purpose so as to encourage our farmers to plant these crops of exchange instead of the one staple product (cotton). Even though handicapped as they are without a regular market the men who have been planting these crops are in better financial condition to stand this shake up than those who have not done so. As all will testify I find everybody ready to patronize the project, but have no money to put in it. Now is not this enough to make us stop and take notice. After four or five good years lost as to crops and prices for cotton, not a dollar to put up. Not only this, are unable to pay one-half the expense of the present crop. We have been gradually growing weaker every year for the last ten. The expense for fertilizer has eaten up the whole thing and our lands getting poorer every year. We must stop and we can not stop till we get ready to jump on something else that is solid and as I see it nothing will do but an elevator as a means to handle our other products to a profit.

We have the greatest grain country in the world. While some of our western States have it on us as to wheat, none can cope with us as to oats. We are equal to any on corn. So let us come together Monday, the 7th, and perfect the plans and build the elevator for the crop of oats and wheat that is now growing, and not lose the profits in it, thereby doing, couraging the farmer right at the beginning, and in a few years the country will see and call you blessed.

Respectfully yours,
T. T. WAKEFIELD.
Anderson, Dec. 3, 1914.

A PERSONAL STATEMENT

Last Monday the South Carolina Conference, by a vote of 76 to 65, located me on the alleged ground of "unacceptability." One year before the same faction sought to drive me out of the editorship of the Advocate by charging me with falsehood and other offenses. Their efforts failed, as has failed every attempt to fasten a dishonorable slur upon me. My unacceptability was said to consist largely in the fact that I had accused several of my brethren of the ministry of falsehood. Every single one of those accusations can be sustained, and no one of them can be refuted. I am not the only Methodist minister who has felt compelled to brand a false statement made by some of these very men. Truth and justice and protection of my own reputation have compelled me sometimes to that course. If my acceptability as a minister depends upon my ability to despise the truth and to allow some of my brother ministers to disregard it in their dealings with me and my reputation, then I prefer to be unacceptable. I did not know there was such a benefit of clergy.

I do not claim perfection for myself—far from it. My mistakes have been many, and I am painfully conscious of them. Nevertheless, it has been my supreme purpose all these years to walk in mine integrity before God and men. Had I asked the Conference for forgiveness and besought it for mercy I would, today be in the pastorate. But my tongue would have cleaved to the roof of my mouth and my head have bowed in shame had I so abused myself. I do not owe the Conference nor any man in it an apology; my conduct toward them has been such that I do not have to seek their forgiveness or become a suppliant for their mercy. What I have said and done in the course of my ministry has been said and done in the fear of God, in the fulness of day. I have struck no man in the back; nor borne false witness against any man; and envied the position of none. My conscience is clear. I would have been a craven and a hypocrite, to have crawled in the dust before a body of men whom I had not wronged, whose moral and religious standards I had not lowered.

I entered the Conference because my sense of duty to God would not allow me to resist the call to preach. For twenty years I have striven to do my duty as a minister of God, eleven of these years as a pastor, and the remainder as editor of the Advocate. After I had been cleared of the cruel and outrageous charges made against me without warrant of law or fact I was urged by some to withdraw from the Conference. But my duty to God would not permit me thus voluntarily to abandon the high calling to which His voice had impelled me. By a small majority (hardly one third of the Conference) my brethren have refused to give me a field in which to labor. The responsibility must be theirs.

I thank God that I lay down the work with as clear a conscience as when I took it up. I came in a self-respecting and respected, Christian, and I go out the same way. My faith is in God, who has always sustained me, and who will keep me against that great day when I shall see Him face to face. A. H. Nettles in Southern Christian Advocate.
