HAPPY FAMILY SIT AT TABLE

INTELLIGENCER FORCE AND FRIENDS AT DINNER FOR CO-OPERATION

The Men Who Will Make the Paper Dined by the Board of Directors

Characterized partially by formality but more distinguished by the happy air of good-fellowship which seemed to pervade the banquet hall the officers and employees of the Anderson Morning Intelligencer gathered last night at the Elite Cafe on North Main street to celebrate the first night on the new morning newspaper for the most progressive city in the South. The occasion was a happy "get-together" affair and the new men felt before they left the table that they had known every man present for months instead of hours. The supper was splendidly served. Gas Antonikas, the proprietor of the Elite, surpassing himself in an endeavor to make the "newspaper guys", their wives, sisters and sweethearts, feel at home.

Following the conclusion of the substantial repast, M. M. Mattison, president of the Intelligencer Company, took the place of toastmaster and made a few introductory remarks which were very timely and most happy. Mr. Mattison said in part:

"The occasion that brings us together tonight—the launching of a real, live daily paper—is an auspicious one for the city and county of South Carolina.

"For a long time, there has been a demand here for a live, progressive morning paper, and the company which recently purchased the Intelligencer plant, encouraged by the support which the semi-weekly has received during the past few months, has decided to supply that demand.

"The launching of The Daily Intelligencer, with full Associated Press service, can but spell big things for the Electric City and the banner county of South Carolina.

"It has been demonstrated time and again that the people in this progressive section of South Carolina will stand for nothing but the best, and do not mind paying for a thing when they get value received.

"This is a pretty bold step we are taking, one that requires some nerve, and I may say, some money, but the backers of this enterprise, relying upon that support which they are going to merit, and upon the loyalty and efficiency of The Intelligencer force, have decided to go forth, burning the bridges behind them, and the man who pays his subscription for one year, five years or for any period, can do so with the assurance that on six days of every week during his subscription period, he will receive a newspaper which will measure up to his very requirement.

"I am told by Manager Smoak that tomorrow morning's will be a 24-page issue, and that 5,500 copies will be printed. It has been decided for a while to mail the daily to the 4,500 subscribers of the Semi-Weekly throughout this section, and without any extra cost, which will mean for a month or more an average daily circulation of something like 5,000, which means an opportunity for our advertising friends that they will not be slow to grasp."

The toastmaster then introduced as the next speaker, General M. L. Bonham, one of the board of directors of The Intelligencer. General Bonham was never in better form than on this happy occasion and delighted his audience with his bits of humor, at the same time making every man's blood tingle when he spoke of the patriotism which was expected from those connected with the new undertaking.

William Banks, editor of The Intelligencer, followed General Bonham. Mr. Banks spoke feelingly of his hopes and ambitions in which he was sure he had the support of every one grouped around the festive board. He plans and aspires to make the publication one of the foremost in the State and promised that with the assistance of the people of Anderson this would ultimately be accomplished.

W. W. Smoak, business manager, followed Col. Banks and beginning with the news-boy who deliver the papers, Mr. Smoak stressed the importance of every single duty, whether seemingly important or not. He assured his hearers that what has already been accomplished is merely a start on better things yet to come. He proposed with the assistance that he knows he has to strive to make the publication a credit to the city of Anderson.

Among the other speakers from the Intelligencer force and staff were Richard Cheshire, Jr., and D. Watson Bell, following which Porter A. Whaley, secretary of the Anderson Chamber of Commerce, was introduced. Mr. Whaley said that the fondest dream he had entertained since assuming his duties in Anderson had been fulfilled with the announcement that Anderson was to have a progressive morning newspaper and prognosticated that it would shortly be one of the city's most highly appreciated institutions.

The last speaker of the evening was F. M. Burnett, director of the Anderson Y. M. C. A. Mr. Burnett was enthusiastic in his remarks concerning the outlook for the new matter and takes it as a foregone conclusion that the new paper will be a success. He sees a broad field for such an undertaking and feels confident that The Morning Intelligencer is to supply a long-felt want.

The banquet demonstrated conclusively the fact that the officials of the company already think much of the people engaged to work with them in making Anderson a bigger and brier city and those employees are already more than enthusiastic over the men for whom they are working. The following is the register of those who participated in the evening's pleasures: W. W. Smoak, W. W. Smoak, Jr., Richard L. Cheshire, Jr., Theodas C. King, Euclars Adams, Caroline E. Vance Porter A. Whaley, Marie M. Norrin, F. M. Burnett, Sarah Hayes, Mrs. William Banks, M. M. Mattison, M. L. Bonham, G. W.

SELTON WILLIAMS MAY LAND THE JOB

Washington, Jan. 12.—It became known here Monday that the President is very seriously considering appointing Secretary Houston one of the members of the new regional bank commission. Secretary Houston was very much interested with Secretary McAdoo in the framing of the bill. He has been talked of among bankers as a probable member of the reserve board, and members of congress interested say they would not be surprised to see President Wilson name him.

Among other prominent men named in Washington for places on the board are Paul M. Warburg of Kohn, Loeb & Co., New York; James G. Cannon, of the Fourth National Bank of New York; and George M. Reynolds, of the Continental and Commercial Bank of Chicago.

With the return of the President Tuesday it is expected that final decision will be made on the appointment of a comptroller of the currency, who is ex-officio a member of the reserve board.

It was regarded more probable than ever Monday that the President would nominate John Skelton Williams, who is assistant secretary of the treasury. Among Secretary McAdoo's callers Monday several members of the Senate Finance Committee, and it was reported that Mr. McAdoo is desirous of finding out how Democrats on that committee look upon Mr. Williams.

 Anderson, S. C., Jan. 12, 1914.

"You have my very heartiest good wishes for the success of your new venture. With warm personal regards."—Albert S. Johnstone, Secretary of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

"I congratulate you upon having arranged everything to bring out The Anderson Intelligencer as a morning paper next Tuesday. Anderson county has the greatest enrollment of any other than York county. I have asked some of the Anderson girls to write you the news from Winthrop College from time to time."—Dr. D. B. Johnson, president of Winthrop Normal and Industrial college.

"I congratulate The Intelligencer on its enterprise in establishing a daily. Wish you success."—John Lowndes McLaurin, Bennettsville, S. C., former United States senator.

"Congratulations to The Intelligencer upon its daily issue. With kind regards and best wishes."—Col. Jno. K. Aull, private secretary to the governor of South Carolina.

Eugene Grace Died Accusing His Wife
 Atlanta, Jan. 12.—All questions of the sincerity of Eugene H. Grace in accusing his wife of shooting him seems to have been silenced forever by the whisper of Grace as he lapsed into unconsciousness Saturday. Mr. Grace died Monday morning at 1:45. "It was Daisy who shot me," Mrs. Grace has been cleared in open court. The law has pronounced her innocent. The secret of the mysterious crime will in all probability remain forever a secret, but on one thing there can no longer be any doubt and that is that Eugene Grace believed his wife was guilty.

Pendleton Election; Ballenger For Mayor
 Pendleton, Jan. 12.—Special: At the municipal election held here Monday, the following officers were chosen:

 For wardens—W. M. Green, J. D. Smith, 51; S. L. Baker, S. Trescot, 42; A. Z. Wilson, C. Campbell, 28; B. H. Sadler, W. L. Garvin, 38.

THANKS, NEIGHBORS
 Wm. Banks, Editor The Intelligencer, Anderson, S. C.
 (Night Message) Greenwood, Jan. 12.—The Greenwood Index wants to congratulate you on your enterprise in issuing a morning daily in Anderson. With you as editor we know the paper will be a great help to your city and county.
 THE GREENWOOD INDEX.

Members of the Legislature Are Much in Evidence in Columbia Now

Columbia, Jan. 12.—Special.—Law-makers are thronging Columbia tonight ready for the annual session of the legislature which convenes tomorrow at noon. The hotel lobbies are alive with the hum and bustle incident to the annual gathering.

Primary reform will overshadow other measures, in the opinion of many members. Several proposed bills dealing with regulation of primary elections are tucked away in the wings of members and will be offered at a later date.

Representative Wilson of Newberry, has a bill proposing changing the governing inheritance tax.

SPARTANBURG, THE NEW LEADER OF THE DISSEASURES IN THE LOWER BRANCH IS HERE. Representative Stevenson and others of the anti-administrative leaders came in tonight and will be in their seats.

RYAN-NORRIS.
 Townville, Jan. 12.—At the home of the bride on December 14, Miss Erin Ryan and Mr. Norris were married by Rev. Broomfield. Miss Ryan was one of Eibertson's most charming young ladies. Mr. Norris is a young man of sterling qualities and most successful farmer and is held in high esteem by all who know him. Mr. and Mrs. Norris are at home to their friends in their new home "Mountain View," near Friendship church.

PETERSON-ASBELL.
 Townville, Jan. 12.—In Laurens at the family residence on Harper street on Dec. 29, at noon, Miss Jessie Lilian Peterson and Mr. Edilson Capers Asbell, of this place, were married. Rev. L. P. McGee of Greenwood officiated. Only the family and a few friends were present. A luncheon was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Asbell left for Charlotte, Columbia, Augusta and other places. Mr. Asbell is cashier of the Bank of Townville. Mrs. Asbell is the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wofford Peterson and is a very accomplished young lady. She taught here several years after her graduation at Winthrop College. Mr. and Mrs. Asbell are expected here on the 15th; their new home on King street is being furnished and made ready for them.
