ALL TOWNS SEEM READY FOR LEAGUE

Proposition of "Outlaw" Association Has Met With Hearty Favor Everywhere

So far as Anderson is concerned, and seemingly all other cities in the new Georgia-Carolina Association, the only thing now lacking in this undertaking is some one to start the ball to rolling. In Anderson it is believed that the fans will do their part and if some one can be found who will take the initiative and start the proposition going the rounds, he will meet with ready response.

Columbia and Augusta have practically given up all hope of getting into the South Atlantic Association and both of those towns are strong for the proposed league. Anderson people are favorable, while in Anderson and Greenville there is no doubt about the willingness to enter.

Some of the other sports writers, Spartanburg and Columbia, have the following to say: "While there has been little talk in Spartanburg during the past few days concerning the feasibility of this city putting a team in the Georgia-Carolina league, other towns of the proposed circuit are including Spartanburg. The idea of an 'outlaw' league, advanced by T. C. Williams, of Columbia, through the columns of The Herald last week, is meeting the approval of the sports writers of the various towns proposed for the six-city circuit."

The Columbia State has the following to say concerning the proposed league: "Outlaw league is now the phrase. Outlaw is what all the cities are working for, and direct information from those on the inside of the situation says that the outlaw league is a sure thing. The circuit will be composed likely of Columbia, Augusta, Spartanburg, Greenville, Anderson and one more city. Rock Hill, Florence, Greenwood, Sumter and Athens, Ga., have been prominently spoken of for the sixth member. Within a few days a meeting will be held. At this meeting minor details will be worked out."

Columbia will not be represented at the annual meeting of the South Atlantic league in Savannah tomorrow. S. W. Brown said last night he would decline the invitation tendered him to be present. Information from Augusta says that Augusta will not pay one cent for readmittance to the league and that Augusta is ready for the outlaw league. "First of the outlaw seasons will not be an extended one. It is planned to start play about May 1 or June 1 and play about three months. Steps will be taken for an alliance with the Federal league. "Inter centers in the new organization and development of the plan will be watched with interest." The sports writer of the Columbia Record writes as follows:

"After weeks of waiting, Augusta has at last awakened to the need of a baseball club in that city, and promoters there are making great effort to organize an outlaw association which will affiliate with the Federal league."

"The proposed outlaw circuit will be composed of the cities of Greenville, Spartanburg and Anderson, Columbia, Augusta and either Athens or Sumter. Reports indicating an enthusiastic response to the proposal of Augusta interests, principal of whom is E. C. Kalbfleisch, have been received from each of the cities mentioned. The name proposed is the Georgia-Carolina league."

"To T. C. Williams, of Columbia, Baseball association, is given the credit of first suggesting affiliation with the Federals. "The general belief is that the cities which desire to enter this circuit are in position to put a club in the field without unreasonable delay. "It is a foregone conclusion that the release of the territory surrounding Columbia and Augusta will not be brought from the South Atlantic league, in the minds of many fans here, who base their conclusions upon the refusal of Augusta to pay the legitimate claims against that territory in their effort to re-enter the Sally. That leaves the situation where it is necessary to organize an outlaw circuit, or let baseball severely alone."

"Pending developments at the annual meeting of the Sally league magnates at Savannah Thursday, no further effort will probably be undertaken here looking to the organization of this proposed new circuit. Claims of Columbia and Augusta will be laid before the officials, without recommendation, according to President Corish. The general expectation is that no favorable action in these matters will be taken. "The baseball situation regarding Columbia and Augusta has reached a point where it seems necessary to organize a new league. This is an undertaking that will require considerable effort, but no reasons are at first apparent why this proposal should not be pushed through to a successful conclusion."

A CARD OF THANKS

I wish to express for myself and family our heart felt thanks and appreciation for the sweet words of sympathy and deeds of love, from the many friends who have watched and prayed with us in the serious illness and death of Roy, and assure you that we have been comforted and strengthened as we have walked through the valley of the shadow of death. Those who watched in his suffering know better the value of his life. His prayers and songs will abide in our memories. He was indeed sunshine in our home and his going away has left us in the shadow. W. B. HAWKINS, Townville, Jan. 29, 1914. The Macon Telegraph says some chickens look as if they had been hatched from cold storage eggs. But even that kind of a chicken would be a delicacy these days. Mrs. Helen Gould Shepard celebrated her first wedding anniversary by giving a dinner to five thousand homeless men.
