WHAT ASSOCIATED PRESS DOES FOR THE READERS

NEWS IS GATHERED FROM THE FOUR CORNERS OF THE EARTH—HOW REPORTS ARE RECEIVED.

Can the average reader of The Intelligencer mention off-hand any business that is represented in every city and country on top of the civilized globe? Can the reader bring to mind any institution placing men in every nook and corner of the entire world with the sole duty of looking out for that one organization? It would probably be a rather difficult undertaking for any one to mention such a business but for the benefit of the readers of this publication who are ignorant of this fact it may be stated that the Associated Press, the greatest news-gathering organization in the world has its representatives on the spot wherever a news story may "break" in the entire civilized world. No place is too large, no place is too small, for the Associated Press to be represented, and wherever civilized people are found, there will be found a man who is always ready to look out for the interests of the "A. P."

The Good Old "87" Call. On the stroke of 6 o'clock each evening the telegraph instrument in the Intelligencer office flashes three times the old familiar call to the ears of the trained operator the message "87." In every office where the Associated Press gives service the preliminary call is heard and to the operators this signifies the question "Are you all there?" When the "87" comes in every operator answers his key and in the main office come hundreds of "O. K." responses from all over the circuit. The chief operator in Atlanta then sends "G. E." or "Good Evening to you, all," and then the night's grind is begun.

Without the good evening call, no operator could bring himself to start the work of the night, because with the friendly message pealing forth from the wires a bond of brotherhood and good fellowship is established between the hundreds of men who are sitting at their typewriters, their green fingers poised to begin pounding out the "grind" of the world's greatest events which have transpired in the last 24 hours.

When the evening's work begins the operator is the busiest man around the printing onesies—shrdl shrdsr—the newspaper office and nothing short of life or death could take him from his duty at the key.

Bulletins briefly informing the telegraph editor of the biggest "stories" of events to come up during the night, are the first things received over the telegraph wire, and these are followed by the financial news and the market news from the sending operator comes the message flashed three times "The Night Report."

This tells the operator in the Intelligencer office that the grind of the evening has begun in earnest and that the news stories will begin to come, the word of the lawmakers in Washington, the execution of a few hundred rebels in Mexico, the discovery of a huge gold mine in Alaska, the murder of a magazine in one of the country's principal cities, a declaration of war between foreign countries, a signed statement from the President relative to the administration's policy, the progress of a murder trial on which the eyes of the country may be centered and hundreds of other stories which will hold the undivided attention of the reader over his breakfast the next morning.

It should be understood that in the transmission of this telegraph matter practically all of the news sent is in the Phillips code. The ordinary telegraph operator using the Morse code could possibly catch the word out of ten, but for the most part it would all be the same as Greek to him. The Associated Press has a code of its own, which its owners must know perfectly before they can hold a position. For instance, in sending the words "The President of the United States" the sending operator flashes merely one word "Pobbs" and when this is received the Intelligencer operator must write in on a full, without mistakes on his typewriter the words forming the message given above. To give the Intelligencer readers an idea of what the code is the following abbreviations and their meaning might be given as a small part of the hundreds of words that the operator must use dozens of times each night: R. X. N., Recommendation. K. T. Y., Controversy. F. N. F. Y., Plenipotentiary. C. M. X., Circumstances. U. X. C., Under these circumstances. I. C. C., Interstate Commerce Commission. W. A. M. C., Ways and Means Committee. U. T. A. F., Under the auspices of the. S. C. O. T. U. S., Supreme Court of the United States. Q. P. T., On the part of the. In the old Morse Code every word is spelled out, but as shown above

ABBEVILLE ROAD'S PROSPECTS BRIGHT

MASS MEETING TO BE HELD THERE WEDNESDAY.

LOCAL MEN ATTEND

It is Hoped to Get the Matter in Such Shape That It Will Go to Success.

A delegation of business men will leave Anderson Wednesday morning for Abbeville to attend the mass meeting, to be held there at 11 o'clock in the interest of the Abbeville-Anderson Interurban project. Among those who will probably go are A. S. Farmer, Chairman of the Railroad Extension Committee of the local Chamber of Commerce and Secy. W. A. W. of the same body, M. N. Patterson, original promoter of the proposition and — Tate of the Tate Hardware Co., and others. An attempt will be made in Abbeville to raise sufficient money at the mass meeting to finance the first 16 miles of the projected interurban, or that part between Abbeville and Antreville. All stores in the city of Abbeville will close Wednesday for four hours, so that subscriptions may be taken, and it is believed that between $75,000 and $100,000 will be raised, which is enough with free rights-of-way and donations in the way of grade work to put the first 16 miles through, and begin work on it.

If Abbeville is successful in the matter the plan is to finance the remainder of the line, 17 miles to Anderson through means secured in this city and by landowners between here and Antreville, and to use a like plan to finally extend the line all the way from Easley to Augusta.

Speakers in Abbeville

Abbeville, March 2.—A mass meeting of the citizens of Abbeville county interested in the proposed new electric railroad to run from Easley through Abbeville to Augusta will be held in the opera house on Wednesday, March the 4th, at 11 o'clock at which ex-Gov. Shepard, J. W. Thurmond, A. E. Parker of Edgefield, P. A. W. W. and Frank Watkins of Anderson and others will make addresses. It is proposed to raise $100,000 before the application is made for a charter. Considerable interest all along the route is being manifested, and the prospects for the line are excellent. All the merchants of Abbeville have agreed to close their stores from 11 until 2 o'clock in order to attend the meeting.

At a recent meeting of the Abbeville Benevolent Association the following officers were elected: President Mrs. J. C. Ellis; vice president, Mrs. S. C. Seal, and Mrs. C. D. Brown; treasurer, Mrs. C. C. Gambrell; secretary, Mrs. T. H. Farman.

ABBEVILLE SADDENED

By the Death of Mrs. Warren Smith and Ernest Gary

Special Correspondence. Abbeville, March 2.—The sad news of the death of Mrs. Warren Smith, of South America, reached her family here on Saturday. Until her marriage to Mr. Smith, who holds a government position in South America, she was a resident of Abbeville, being the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Seal.

Mrs. Smith was very much beloved by her many friends here and much sympathy is felt for her grief-stricken family. Her remains are expected to reach Abbeville on the 9th for interment. Judge Eugene B. Gary received a telegram on Sunday evening telling him of the death of his son, Ernest Gary, who was a student at Washington and Lee University. While walking with a friend, Cadet Smith, Ernest stepped out on a pond of ice to test it when it broke with him. He went under and efforts were made to rescue him but it was impossible as the ice was so thin. Ernest was just an oob but was a great favorite in Abbeville, and friends here and all over the state
