

"TOILS OF VILLIANY."

.... FEATURE PHOTO-DRAMA IN THREE PARTS--NATURAL COLOR

AT THE PALMETTO THEATRE--Thursday, April 9th.

Here's The Story :

FOUR BIG REELS Every Day 10c.

Richard Marvin, a circus owner, is with Alice Simpson, a tight-rope walker. He objects to her receiving attentions from Tom Collins. Alice falls to the ground and is rendered unconscious. The circus owner attempts to go to her assistance, but is hurled aside by Tom, who carries the girl to her dressing room. There he revives her and then takes her to her home. Consumed with jealousy, Marvin orders that the jockey be discharged. Dejected, Tom calls on Alice and tells her the bad news. She advises him to answer an advertisement in the newspaper, and he succeeds in securing a position with John Wilson, a noted race horse owner. He makes rapid progress in his new position, and is selected by Wilson to ride the favorite in a coming race. The circus owner learns that Tom is to ride and determines to wreak vengeance on him. He goes to Alice who has recovered from her injuries, but she refuses to receive him. Furious at being snubbed, he threatens to harm her lover unless she consents to see him. Frightened at his threats she consents. He attempts to embrace her, but she repulses him. Enraged, he tells her that he is going to kill Tom, and locks her in her room. Alarmed for the safety of her lover, she is powerless to warn him, as she is imprisoned on the top floor of the house in which she lives. The sight of the Umbrella, which she uses to balance herself in her circus act, suggests a way of escape and she decides to take the terrible risk. She crawls along the edge of the house and makes her way to a telegraph wire attached to the corner. Steadying herself for a moment, she begins her desperate trip. While below the people gasp in horror as they realize her frightful danger. Balancing herself with the aid of the umbrella, she walks along the slender wire to a telegraph pole and climbs down to the street. Frantically she hastens to the race track and learns that the villain has already arrived. She finds his trail and traces him to a secluded part of the race course where she perceives him crouching, pistol in hand, ready to shoot down the unsuspecting jockey as he rides by. She throws herself upon the murderous wretch and attempts to wrench the gun from him. Seeing the struggle, an officer comes to her assistance and wrenches the revolver from the villain just as Tom dashes by on his horse. He is overcome and dragged off to jail, while Tom flushed with victory and amid the plaudits of the spectators, is soon encircled in the arms of his sweetheart, who had so bravely risked her life to save her lover.

SENATOR E. D. SMITH

Has Been Speaking in Pee Dee Section.

Columbia, April 7.—United States Senator E. D. Smith, did not discuss his race for re-election while in the city today enroute to Washington for the Pee Dee section of the state where he has been speaking. The junior senator was in conference with several of his political lieutenants while in the city and appeared confident. He gave out no statement relative to the candidacy of his opponent Governor Blease. Senator Smith's friends are encouraged over the good news he has been receiving on his present trip through the Pee Dee, they say. They state they are confident that he will defeat Governor Blease by a good majority. The senator himself, however, while smilingly confident will not discuss his opponents chances but is leaving that until the joint debate this summer.

Senator Smith's cotton bill is well on its way to passage through congress and the immigration committee of which he is chairman has that bill before the senate. On both measures the junior senator has put in hard work and is anxious to get them through.

Items of Interest and Personal Mention Caught Over the Wireless on the Streets of Anderson

Thief Broke Out of Jail.
A. L. Welch told The Intelligencer Monday how proud he felt over capturing his chicken thief, a fat 'possum. Mr. Welch had a cage made for the old 'possum and the young one and Monday night he thought them safely caged up. Imagine his consternation yesterday morning when he went out to take a look at his captives and discovered in the cage nothing but a sack of 'possum hair, his prisoner having escaped. Mr. Welch had looked forward with much anticipation to the splendid dinner he contemplated having and consequently it was hardly safe to mention 'possum to him yesterday.

Handsome Furniture Has Been Installed.
Entering heartily into the "clean-up and paint-up" spirit of the day in Anderson, Parker & Bolt yesterday completed the installation of what is probably the finest clothes display cabinet in the city. The new cabinets arrived Monday and the Parker & Bolt force spent practically all of Monday night in getting the new fixtures placed. With the improved furniture it is possible for this well known firm to display its goods to far greater advantage and at the same time they will save some floor space.

Health Officer Is Well Pleased.
Health Officer Campbell said yesterday that he was much pleased over the splendid work being done in connection with the cleaning up of the city. Mr. Campbell said that he could not estimate the number of loads of dirt and rubbish that he had removed from the houses in all parts of the city and said that he expected still more demands to be made on him today. For that reason he will add two extra wagons to the usual city force this morning and, if these two are not sufficient still more will be put into commission and every effort made to move the rubbish as fast as it can be collected. Mr. Campbell said that the people in all parts of the city seem to have caught the spirit and that everybody is cleaning up on every side.

Prof. Burgess is Coming Here Today.
Prof. J. M. Burgess of Clemson college will come to Anderson today for the purpose of assisting in a rock farm demonstrator for this county in making experiments with the Babcock butter fat tester. Already there is a great improvement to be seen in many places and still more remarkable improvement will be manifested by Saturday.
