DON'T STOP THE CANVASS FROM COUNTY TO COUNTY

John J. McMahon Makes An Argument In Answer to the Agitation Started By The Charleston News and Courier

Editor The Intelligencer: I must express my strong disapproval of the suggested discontinuance of the county to county campaign meetings. Those making this proposal are harking back to their old irremediable opposition to the primary itself and their preference for the convention system. They are reactionaries, out of harmony with the progressive thought of the times.

If you believe in the primary, you must believe in the county to county campaign meetings. There is no other way of giving the candidates an opportunity to be heard, or of giving the people an opportunity to see the men from whom they are to choose their officers.

It sounds very well to say, "Let every candidate make his own campaign schedule." But the people have something else to do besides attend meetings, and with a dozen or more candidates for Governor and United States Senator, to say nothing of the candidates for other offices involving great issues, such as education, taxation, law enforcement, railroad regulation, agricultural promotion and pure food protection, a score or more of separate meetings will be necessary in each county if every candidate with views to present, is to have a chance to say and to contribute to the thought of the campaign for the solution of our problems.

The official schedule of meetings serves the purpose of economizing the time of the people, in hearing the candidates and of assuring to the humblest and most unknown candidate a large audience such as he alone would be powerless to draw. The people of each county, in the remotest section, are given ample notice of when and where to assemble and devote one day or two or more days, to informing themselves on public men and measures.

Uninformed men who might be attracted only by one candidate may unexpectedly hear words of truth from another. It will be a perversion of opinion and bring them into the freedom of a chamber of understanding. The discussion is the only antidote to prejudice. Let all the people hear and learn to think. We want publicity, not suppression.

The primary system as organized in this State was a model. It was 20 to 30 years ahead of the birth of the system in the States of the West and the North. The present weakness in our primary system is due to the fact that it was adapted to a simple agricultural stable population and consequently has no safeguards whatever against the dangers of a changing, moving, congested population. Formerly nearly all our voters lived where they were born and were intimately known to one another. Now cities, towns and villages have multiplied, and there is no longer the old time personal acquaintance as a check on false impersonation or other mode of fraudulent voting.

There is now need for strict rules for listing the voters and making sure that they are actual residents. These rules we lack entirely. The newer systems of the West and North are adapted to these modern conditions, and are backed and buttressed by the authority of the state law. What is now in the great majority of the states a much admired new system, with most improved and up-to-date methods of efficiency is with us an old system, that has seen its best days and has entered upon its last days of decay. Unless it is reconstructed on modern lines, it will rot and die unless rescued and reconstructed on modern lines.

The call to us is to reform the primary to safeguard it—to make it an unerring instrument for ascertaining the will of the people of South Carolina. Let the friends of primary reform try to stifle popular thought by shutting off discussion before the people.

It is unfortunately too true that the campaign meetings are not an enlightening and as elevating as they should be. That is the fault of the candidates—it is a fault that can be cured only by its own exposure in public. The time will come when the people will be disgusted with the name that passes for public discussion on the stump in South Carolina. Then the people will demand in earnest the abolition of campaign meetings, and the abandonment of discussion and the multiplication of meetings. The truth shall make you free.

THE GEORGIA TRIBUNE Will Probably Make a Lot of Money on Its Crops. Atlanta, April 16.—On Wednesday of next week, April 22, the state prison commission will sell at public auction at Milledgeville, the cotton that has been made during the season on the state farm. The crop totals 212 bales, which is expected will bring top notch prices as cotton is higher now than it has been at any time earlier in the season. The annual sale of the state's cotton is always an interesting event, and prominent buyers go to Milledgeville from all parts of the state to bid on it. The proceeds go directly into the state treasury. The prison commission is making considerable progress in its policy of putting the state institutions on a more nearly self-supporting basis and the various industrial plants are working out fine. A printing office outfit was recently established at the Boys Industrial School and under the direction of Supt. Lovorn, the boys will get a regular monthly publication.
