Missouri Pacific's Change of Hands Slight Rally as Result of Covering

(By Associated Press.)
New York, April 30.—Quotations in the stock market today, after several hours of uncertainty, until the final rally, which was accompanied by an outburst of activity, trading was dull.

Most of the time the level of prices was above yesterday's close, but the market was disturbed by a pressure against some of the weaker stocks. Steel shares, held under a pessimistic outlook, showed reports of improved trade conditions were emphasized by announcement of further price reductions. Prospects of a strong bank statement and the improving outlook for general condition of the business, however, influenced the money market. Offerings were larger and rates for short periods were raised.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales for the day were $145,000. United States bonds were underbid on call.
