JACK STANDING.

"BLOOD WILL TELL" is a two part release featuring Francis Bushman. It is a drama of Colonial days and also of the present, showing the hereditary trend of a man's fickleness and a woman's indiscretion.

Jack Standing, who was a matinee idol de luxe before entering the movies, is making quite a reputation for himself and may soon enter the ranks of feature players.

Two famous transcontinental travelers who recently completed a horse-back journey from New York to San Francisco, appear in the exciting two part drama, "Captured by Mexicans." The tourists are Don and Cleo Ridgeley. The drama is based upon an incident which befell the Ridgeleys during their long overland journey. While crossing the Yuma desert, which is on the Mexican border line, the Ridgeleys became involved in a skirmish between Mexican rebels and federals, narrowly escaping death.

In the two part drama, "A Passover Miracle," photo play patrons will find one of the most important contributions ever made to the films which depict racial customs. This photo play was produced with the assistance of the officials of the New York Jewish community (the Kehillah), and is based upon the Jewish fest of the Passover. Every detail in this drama of the elaborate ceremony attending the celebration that is held on Passover eve is absolutely authentic.

An Alaskan government agent attempts to rob his own wife of the funds which he has left in her charge, telling her that he is going away. In "An Alaskan Interlude" the wife cannot find out who he is, but all goes well when she learns that he did it for her.

In "A Ticket to Happiness" the hired man argues the "boss" should marry. The latter agrees and captures the choice of the foreman.

One of the most dramatic and pitiful was the world has ever known has been filmed for the edification of the motion picture patrons. The five part production, "The Boer War" gives a wonderfully realistic portrayal of the fight between the Boers and the English.

One of the unique features of this important production is that it does not attempt to take sides. The story is told with absolute fairness.

"Teaching Father's Lesson" is based on an old man who opposes his daughter's marriage, but, unobtrusively, she gets a house and lot in the bargain.

CHIEF JACKSON GENIAL HOST

McGee's Gift Used In Joint Celebration

Quite a Success

There was a delightful supper at the city hall last night given by the members of the Anderson Fire Department and a number of invited guests were present. The supper was given largely in compliment to the splendid citizen, Mr. J. L. McGee, who recently made a handsome present of a check to the fire department in recognition of the services of the men during the fire which destroyed his stables and but for the lucky and determined efforts of the firemen would have destroyed a large part of the city. In acknowledging the heroic and courageous work of the fire department, Mr. McGee has stated that "Every man was in his place and every man was doing his duty." It was a matter of regret to the members of the department that Mr. McGee could not be present, as he was ill.

The tables were loaded with fully helped plates, a regular dinner of the "old" style. The tables were "bulky" which means enough with some to spare. The tables were spread in the council chamber, which many voted was a good use, to which to devote this precinct of government. Mrs. Jackson, the splendid wife of the chief of the fire department, had the supervision of this part of the evening, and with the ladies who assisted her, gave a dinner that was appetizing and satisfying to all.

All of the firemen were present and the afternoon and several citizens. The presiding officer of the occasion was ex-mayor John E. Hood, who, after the firemen and helpers had distinguished as much as they could of the vicissitudes, and they needed no pressure at all on this occasion, presented several short addresses. Mr. Hood paid a glowing tribute to the bravery of the firemen, commending them upon the similarity of names of the chief of Anderson's fire department and the great Boston under fire who is immortalized in American history, "Stonewall" Jackson.

Dr. Frazer, chairman of the department, Mr. J. L. Hammett and all of the members of the council were called upon for short addresses and responded in a manner which showed their appreciation of the integrity and ability and courage of the chief of the department and his well trained and patriotic and active assistants. Mr. J. E. Burton spoke feelingly as the representative of Mr. McGee and William Banks, L. M. Cochran from among the outsiders were called upon for a few words.

Alderman Key's Glimmer made an eloquent reference to the firemen who had lost their lives and asked for a monument to be reared to their memories. Alderman McClure, acting upon the suggestion of Hammett and Alderman Carter called for a special meeting of the council to make arrangements for the firemen to be given a life insurance to the extent of five hundred dollars. Mr. Elmore, mayor, pro-tem, referred the matter to the fire committee. Mr. Hammett asked the privilege of the citizens being permitted to contribute to a fund to assist in defraying any expenses. This was approved with pleasure.

Chief Jackson, being too modest to respond to any of the deserved compliments which had been paid him, Mr. Hood made a few beautiful remarks in closing, endorsing the good citizens in whatever station of service or in whatever part of life he might be found.

The evening was closed with the singing of "My Country 'Tis of Thee." The resolution of all of the speakers was that Anderson has a capable, able and determined fire fighting force and that the city retain secure in the protection afforded by this company in an emergency as far as possible.

TWC AMERICANS WIN GOLF HONORS

Evans and Weber Near the Final Links in England

Sandwich, Eng., May 20.—The excellent playing of Charles W. Evans, Jr., of Chicago and Harold Weber, of Toledo, carried them through to victory in their respective contests today in the British amateur golf championship tournament and they now are the sole remaining representatives of the United States for the next round.

Francis Oulmet, the American open champion, Frederick Herrshoff, New York, and Arthur G. Lockwood, Massachusetts, lost their matches. In the fourth round tomorrow Evans will meet a Scotch international, who won his way to the final two years ago, and was runner up in the French championship the same year. MacFarlane is the best player that Evans yet has had to meet. Weber is drawn with Captain Cecil Hutcheson, another Scotch international, whose record is even better than that of MacFarlane.

Weber won two matches today, defeating his first opponent by a score of 2-1 and his second by two up. Oulmet's defeat by the youthful player Tubbs, of Little Stone, was unexpected, for Tubbs is little known outside of Little Stone. Tubbs was "sacred" there when he was 17 years old. Oulmet was off in his second and third shots today. His chief weakness lay in his failure to get distance in his approach in which he was often short.

Evans did poor work with his wooden clubs after the first nine holes, but he improved in putting, which had been indifferent going out. Although several times trapped, as he has well, winning the match by 3 up and 2 to play.

Herrshoff also finished strong in both his matches. He won handsily in the morning contest by four up and three to play, but in the afternoon he could not quite make up his bad start against the Hon. Michael Scott, the ex-champion of Australia and France, losing on the 18th green.

All the American players are planning to enter the French championship and all expect Travers to compete in the British open championship. "Chick" Evans makes was an interested spectator today, she followed her son about the course.
