The Weather.

Washington, June 2.—Forecast: South Carolina—Partly Cloudy Wednesday and Thursday probably occasional thunder showers south portions.

So many pretty chances to rain have been let go by.

Ice cream for the next trades day for the farmers.

The weeping willows cast a shadow on Teddy's River of Doubt.

Anderson county is on the honor roll strong at Winthrop College.

Sir Thomas Lipton has only been tea-sing. Now he is advertising tea.

Philadelphia has a pitcher named Tincup. He is not on Tucker's team.

Some resignations have a string tied to them. Huerta's had a well chain.

As a summer resort season we do not see Mexico advertised very extensively.

Anderson welcomes the visitors to the missionary conference at Anderson college.

June 13 will be the "alfalfa day" in Orangeburg. Agents for safety razors please keep away.

Clemson College's textile exhibit at Boston made the people up there sit up and take a lot of notice.

Knights of the grip—the traveling salesman. Knights of the grip and the handshake the candidates.

If anybody wishes to find that lost war in Ulster, pay us 25 cents for a want advertisement and we will find it.

Gov. Blaise is right in calling upon the voters to enroll. Every democrat should get ready to go to the polls in August.

It is unfair to Governor Blaise to drag him into the gubernatorial campaign, but the coat-tail swingers have no heart.

There is a difference between suffragists and suffragettes. The former are people. The latter are just criminals in skirts.

The best way to see the agricultural country in the whole world is just to take a turn around Anderson county. It is the bestest best.

Echoes of the reunion are all of the pleasant kind. Anderson did herself proud and the occasion was handled beautifully by the Chamber of Commerce.

Somehow or other, that office of secretary of state seems to have no seekers and it is a cinch. Nothing to do but have your shoes shined three times a day.

DESERVED A VACATION

The directors of the Chamber of Commerce did well to give a brief vacation to the hard-working secretary, Porter A. Whaley. Mr. Whaley has had a number of difficult undertakings in the last few months, concluding with the reunion, which was handled so successfully and happily. The people of the whole state are grateful to Anderson for giving the old soldiers a reunion in which no strong drink was offered them.

NOW IS THE TIME

We think it was a strong cord for the Chamber of Commerce to play in asking President Fairfax Harrison to consider a route through Anderson to the double tracking of the Southern between Charlotte and Atlanta. This was the best route from a construction standpoint as well as from a standpoint of trade development.

But, even if the Southern fails to give ear to the appeal of Anderson in this matter, the earnestness of the men of Anderson is sure to make an impression and we may secure favorable audience on other propositions.

One matter which Anderson is very desirous of getting from the Southern railway is a railway line to Clemson College. This will require but two miles of track. It does not seem that such a thing ought to be begged for. A short line from Pendleton to Calhoun, via Clemson would strengthen the Southern's business in that whole section.

But the main thing that Anderson wishes is the completion of the Blue Ridge. Col. A. B. Andrews has said that he expects to live to see the completion of the line of which he is president and on which he began his railway experience as a boy before the war. We would like to see the Colonel live always, but as this is an impossibility we suggest that he commence to build the line right away.

It was urged by the Southern officials at a meeting of the business men here two years ago that the Southern had no reasons at that time for not completing the Blue Ridge. One was the tightness of the bond market, and the other was the fact that some company had blocked their right of way in the Tennessee mountains. Both of these objections have been wiped out. The right of way matter has been settled although it requires the Southern to go to more expense in building the road. The matter of the bonds has been settled, because we have been told that the company has just floated some $2,000,000 in bonds. It will require about $3,000,000 to complete the Blue Ridge. We have been informed, and we believe that the Southern will not have to raise all of this, for South Carolina cities will assist in floating the bonds.

This road when completed, would be the easiest grade and the most economical haul from Cincinnati to the sea, and yet the mileage of the railroad company would not be reduced to the extent that the company would lose very much in freights.

Catch the flood tide of success, and push the extension through while the country is prosperous and happy. The railroad company that puts a line through Anderson and puts this town on a trunk line will get the business of Anderson forever and a day.

HUERTA THE FOX

It appears that old fox Huerta is about to put one over on the constitutionalists and the diplomats. He has tendered his resignation, but his representatives in making a statement refer to him as "President," and he has never been recognized as such. He wishes to resign because he says so himself. Just as Teddy said he would not drink a third cup of coffee, Teddy didn't, and Huerta will lose the job if he has to be kicked out.

The following from Niagara Falls indicates the chicanery of the proposition submitted by Huerta yesterday:

"By subordinating personalities and declaring themselves in favor of treating internal as well as international questions while not yet yielding their national sovereignty, the Mexican delegates, it was generally agreed here, had launched a strong argument against the Constitutionalist position. The general view that if the Huerta representatives had found no impropriety in dealing here with the internal Mexican situation, the world generally would not approve of technical objections to the same course coming from General Carranza.

"Whether an armistice could be arranged was another topic of interest. The mediators are known to feel that if the Constitutionalist are sincerely desirous of restoring peace in Mexico they could arrange an armistice for ten days or two weeks without causing military preparations. The mediators believe that the next two or three days will develop clearly whether the constitutionalists are really seeking peace.

"The explicit statement from the Huerta delegation encouraged the 3 diplomats greatly in that it set before the world as practically accomplished one of the principal points in the dispute between the United States and the Huerta government—the elimination of Huerta.

"The responsibility if the program should be upset now the mediators feel, will devolve on the Constitutionalist. One of the three envoys said today that the mediators from the outset had recognized General Carranza as a factor in the international Concrete evidence of this, he declares, was the tendering at the outset of the mediation negotiations, of good offices to him on a par with General Huerta and the United States.

"The mediators, it is understood, have, in their note sent to Carranza at Washington tonight, reiterated that the chief points in which they are concerned are a suspicion of hostilities in the civil strife and a discussion of Mexico's internal as well as international affairs. The Zubaran communication and its reply will be made public tomorrow.

"The decision to send the reply was reached after the American delegates conferred with the mediators. The Americans were so encouraged by the prospect of reopening the correspondence that they felt justified in going ahead with the peace plan worked out previously to the injection of the Constitutionalist controversy."

COOPERATION IN THE FARM BUREAU.

Unless farmers are sufficiently interested in farm bureau work to form an effective organization, which truly represents the farming interests of the county, there is small chance of the county bureau meeting with great success.

It is not enough for professional and business men to interest themselves in the work; the farmers must feel that the bureau is theirs, that it is a means by which they can cooperate in securing for the community at large every possible benefit, and not an institution for conferring benefits on them individually. A county organization imbued with this spirit is a necessary preliminary to successful work by a county agent. We have it in Anderson.

A Striking Serial Story.

No one of our readers can afford to miss the opening, or any other, installment of "The Land of Broken Promises," by Dane Coolidge, which we will print serially. It is a story of the present Mexican revolution, which gives a vivid description of the conditions in that war-infested nation. We are indeed fortunate in being able to print it at this time.

BEAUTIFUL AFTERNOON FROCK

This charming gown was built of sheer hand-kerchief linen elaborately embroidered by hand. The sash of embroidered linen is the salient feature of this up to the minute frock.

CAMISOLES AND CHEMI-VESTS

Camisoles, which are brassieres made with the little shoulder caps, encircle the body with a tiny frill of net above, not reaching above the arms, with ribbons over the shoulders. This lace is fastened to a narrow piece of doubled net, with heading through which ribbons run. Very thin lengthwise strips of embroidery may form a camisole, with lace three inches wide across the top. They fasten on the left side. Little chemi-vests to be worn next to the flesh are made of nainsook, crape, china silk, lawn, etc., and are twenty-four to twenty-nine inches long and without an inch of extra material.

HAD 471 BALLOTS And Then Had To Call For a Primary For Congressman. (By Associated Press)

Asheville, N. C., June 2.—After being in session four days, and taking 471 ballots, the tenth district democratic congressional convention at Waynesville today adjourned, adopting a resolution providing for a district-wide primary August 15, to choose a democratic nominee for congress from this district.

There were five candidates before the convention, Robert R. Reynolds, and the incumbent James M. Gudger, Jr., holding practically all the votes. The other three candidates held enough votes to deadlock the convention, and the primary plan was finally selected as the most feasible solution of the deadlock. In the event no candidate receives a majority of the votes at the primary in August, a second primary will be held August 29.
