CLEMSON COMMENCEMENT

ter the close of the commencement exercises.

Clemson College, June 8, 1914.—The commencement exercises Sunday were record breaking in several respects.

The exercises began with an anthem sung by about thirty voices that had been carefully trained under the leadership of Prof. W. M. Routten, director of the band at Clemson.

The preacher at once got close to every student by saying that he came fresh from college to be a pastor at Clemson. He spoke of his pleasure in returning. The text was "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation."

The Bible is being discussed today by the mightiest intellects of the world. The Bible never grows old; it is always applicable to the needs of all ages.

In the past men thought of salvation as the saving of individuals from sin in this world and from perdition in the next.

There is much to be done. We are being told that our political life is rotten to the core; that our commercial life is false; that social conditions are evil; that our children are being robbed of their birthright of play and knowledge and happiness.

Agricultural Department Gets Over 50 Per Cent. Now

The past season has been the most successful Clemson College has ever experienced. Clemson is truly the farmers' college.

An important feature of the work of the agricultural department is the conducting of scientific experiments, the object of which is to collect data that will be of value to the farmers, truckers, fruit growers and stockmen of the state.

To carry on the work of the agricultural department successfully, many thousands of dollars have been spent on apparatus and equipment. The buildings of the department comprise an agricultural hall, a large brick building; the veterinary building; a three-story dairy building; farm machinery building; two large greenhouses; and the best equipped dairy barn in the south.

The Branch Experiment Stations. Clemson college maintains two branch experiment stations, one located on the coastal region near Summerville, and the other in the Pee Dee section, within a mile of Florence.

The results of the experiments being conducted at this station are far-reaching in their importance. The soils respond exceptionally well to fertilizers and elaborate experiments are being made to determine the fertilizer requirements of the soils of that region.

The const station is well equipped with improved farm machinery, work animals, barns, tool sheds, an artesian well, and a comfortable residence for the superintendent.

Transferable Distinction. Markley (to pestering insurance man)—"Look here, when you talked to me last year, you told me that the company you were with was the best in the world."

Nothing Short of Calamity. Holding a glass of clear honey in his right hand, father observed impressively: "It cost the little bees many a weary trip to fill this with sweetness from the flowers."

On His Way. "Why doesn't that dachshund come when I call him? The idea of sulking on me." "He's coming as fast as he can," said the man's wife. "He's got his front legs started."

Jimmie Archer Hurt. New York, June 8.—Jimmie Archer, the Chicago Cubs' catcher whose arm was injured in Saturday's game, was examined today by a specialist, who said Archer would be out of the game for a month or six weeks.

The Tragedy of Drowning

So many fatal accidents are reported in the newspapers, and many of them from drowning, which could be easily avoided if a useful lesson in such emergencies could be remembered.

It is human nature to act without reason in the presence of sudden fear, or sudden danger. Presence of mind, poise and habit of a thoughtful state of mind, under all circumstances often would avoid accident by drowning.

I have often seen persons who could not swim, float on water much over their depth, and especially in this easy running water. I saw a man who could not swim sink out of sight in water over his depth, and he walked to a place where his head came above the water, and thus was saved.

Those frantic efforts lessened his chances of escape. Sixteen years ago I know of five children who sank in mid-stream of the swollen Keowee, from an overturned wagon who were rescued unharmed by two cool mountaineers, standing upon the shore watching them cross the stream.

Whitmore Incident. (Newberry Herald and News) We were present at the Whitmore meeting on last Saturday when Governor Bleasoe spoke. We heard the tilt between Mr. William Coleman and the governor. We regret that it took place. We are constrained to say that we do not think the governor was justified in his attack on Mr. Coleman.

From all that we have seen, and heard of Mr. Coleman and his mill he has been kind enough to the employees of the mill and has done what he could for their comfort and betterment. He has encouraged the building of a good school and the levying of taxes to maintain it, the greater part of which are paid by the property of the mill.
