IMPEACHMENT HALTED

United States Judge Was Being Charged With High Crimes.

Washington, June 9.--"By virtue of my office as representative, I impeach Alston G. Dayton, United States district judge for the northern district of West Virginia, of high crimes and misdemeanors..." said Representative Neely of West Virginia, in the House today. He got no further. Republican leader Mann was on his feet in an instant making a point of no quorum, then a motion to adjourn by Representative Fitzgerald of New York, was carried.

Representative Neely who had waited in the House all day today to attempt the impeachment, probably will renew his effort Friday. He has prepared a long series of charges alleging official misconduct on the part of Judge Dayton. The case grows out of controversies that have been aired in West Virginia for months in connection with labor troubles.

MR. NORRYCE IS LAID TO REST

Beautiful Services Conducted At Home By Pastor and at Grave By the Elks

The funeral services over the body of Claridge W. Norryce were held on Tuesday morning at his late residence on East Hampton street, home conducted by Rev. W. H. Frazer, D. D., pastor of the church who had been for many years a member of the Presbyterian church. The services were simple and comforting, the music being by Mrs. Andrew, Mrs. J. B. Townsend and Mr. Dan Orr.

At the grave the services were conducted by Andrew L. Baker, D. D., D. D., pastor and moderator of the Elks. The burial was at the cemetery, and was presided over by Dr. L. Ross, assisted by Dr. J. B. T. Dickson and T. S. Stewart. The body was slowly lowered into its last resting place while the choir sang very tenderly the "Good Night" song, and the last resting place of this bright young man, a favorite among all the people of Anderson, was covered over with beautiful floral decorations. The words of consolation which were spoken by Dr. Frazer were very comforting to the bereaved family and friends.

"One whose sympathies are not easily excited" remarked recently that he has no sympathy for any one except the mother who is bending over a helpless sick babe. While that is a very pathetic sight, one which will excite the sympathy even of those whose hearts are not responsive to the daily wall of sorrow, yet we believe that in the falling of a young man or woman in the very presence of life's opportunities is equally as sad, and one which touches the heart with equally as strong demand for sympathy. We stand this morning in the presence of the broken column of youth, which had just been erected into its position and which stood at the threshold of life's great temple. Before the eyes of him whose memory we honor swept a grand vision of a life career. He had just entered partly upon his beginning. He had been receiving the inspiration of his first successes and those were pushing him on towards greater achievements. His career was cut short just as he was entering upon it.

Yet, we do not measure a man by the deeds that he did, nor by the honors that he wins out on life's battlefield. That was an unjust way of estimating. We measure him by the ambition that he had, by the ideals by which he was regulated, by the great life vision that broke upon his vista. We ask what purposes had he formed for the life career which seemed before him? How had he planned to use his life in the service of God and man? The answer to these questions gives us the true basis for the estimation of any one. Our brother had chosen one of the most important and one of the most exacting callings that life affords. He sat at his desk and gathered up the impressions of life which came through objective sources and from the visions which were given him and poured those out from his soul through the printed pages to influence and bless the lives of his fellow men. He had the ambition to serve men through the medium of the newspaper and we are today living lives that have been influenced to some extent through the form of thought and the visions of his soul. We judge him by what he wanted to do and by what his vision would have led him to do in the position which he occupied.

We come together not simply to mourn with the wife who has lost a husband, the brothers and sisters who have lost a brother, and the father who has lost a son, but we come to mourn as fellow-citizens who have lost a valuable member of society. One who craved the opportunity of service in the capacity of a moulder of thought and of sentiment, religious, social and political. One who, when he was writing in the plan of God from the activities of his career, accepted it without a murmur or regret; one who quietly and patiently awaited God's time and bowed to God's purpose. On yesterday morning a 3 o'clock while we were gathered around his bedside the Angel came and said, "Give Place," and bade his spirit leave its earthly tenement and wing its flight into the presence of God who is the arbiter of the destinies of all and who gave him his eternal restings among the things He had created. His life has been lived, his earthly career has been run and we can only say as we commit his body to the ground and commend his spirit to God: "Servant of God, well done. Rest from thy loved employ; The battle fought, the victory won. Enter thy Master's Joy."

Financial and Commercial

New York Cotton

New York, June 9.--The favorable average of today's weather and crop news inspired centering selling in the cotton market, but offerings were well enough absorbed at comparatively small retractions to give prices a more generally steady undertone and the close was steady at a net loss of 1 to 15 points.

A traveling expert reported on crop conditions from New Orleans and said that two thirds of Texas and one third of Oklahoma was in bad shape, but that farmers were rapidly working out their fields and that the balance of the crop averaged a good to excellent. There was also a more favorable advice from Central sections of the belt, but in some localities where the weather conditions were the least complained of, boll weevil were reported numerous.

Spot cotton quiet; middlings upland, 13.65; Bulk 13.90. No sales.

New Orleans Cotton

New Orleans, June 9.--The cotton market was nervous and narrow today. Weather conditions over the belt were favorable in some sections and unfavorable in others. At their lowest prices were 3 to 5 points under yesterday's last quotations and at their highest they were 3 to 8 points over. The net change for the day was a loss of 3 to 4 points.

The trade expected favorable weather and crop reports from the government and these reviews on the whole, were considered favorable. Cotton futures steady, closing: July 1364; August 1347; October 1269; December 1269; January 1270; March 1280.

Spot cotton steady, unchanged. Middling 13 15-16. Sales on the spot 1700; to arrive 250.

Cotton Seed Oil

New York, June 9.--Cotton seed oil was quiet today with prices despite the decline of lard, owing to very light pit offerings and investment demand for late months. Final prices showed practically no change from the previous close. Sales 6,300 barrels.

The cotton seed oil market closed steady. Spot 733 a 740; June 733 a 737; July 736 a 738. Total sales 6,500.

Liverpool Cotton

Liverpool, June 9.--Cotton spot firm; good middling 837; middling 779; low middling 731; Sales 4,000; speculation and export 300; receipts 10,699.

Futures steady, June 744; June-July 736 1-2; July-August 726 1-2; August-September 714; October-November 682 1-2; December-January 673 1-2; January-February 673; March-April 674 1-2.

Stocks and Bonds

New York, June 9.--Another small advance in stocks occurred today. While traders continued to show indifference to outside influences, sentiment was cheerful and the inquiry was broad. The good impression of yesterday's crop report was strengthened today by the favorable weekly weather review. Unofficial reports that the freight case would be ickly decided again did service as a bullish factor.

The outflow of gold continued at an unusually rapid rate. Engagements for Europe today amounted to $5,000,000, making $10,500,000 more in the first 30 days of the week, and a total of $30,000,000 for the movement. The same indifference was manifested however, today as heretofore.

Total sales of bonds, par value, $2,660,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Clark to Speak

Washington, June 9.--Speaker Champ Clark today accepted an invitation to deliver the commencement address on June 12, at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va., where the Speaker, when 23 years old, was the youngest college president in America.
