LOOTERS RUINED THE WABASH LINE SAYS TOWNSEND

With Startling Speech Congressman Asks For Inquest into the Matter

(By Associated Press.) Washington, June 30-Representalive Townsend, of New Jersey, today offered a resolution in the House making startling charges regarding the financial charges of the Wabash Pittsburgh Terminal Railway Com-Commerce Commission investigation ed. He asked the investigation with properties and franchises the company had acquired in any way since its organization in 1904. In a speech Representative Townsend declared that "no other story of high finance, as alleged facts are presented to me, sets forth such a tangled tale of contracts and spoilation as this.

His purpose, he said in bringing the matter before Congress was that such investigation might lead to partial retribution, at least of the investors, punishment of the "looters' and to reestablishment of the corporation "on a sound and healthy bas-is."

Representative Townsend said that on June 21, last, a newspaper reporter showed the sale of 3,000 bonds of the Wabash, Pittsburgh Terminal Com-pany's 4 per cent bonds on the New York Stock Exchange at 7 1-2 cents on the dollar. These bonds, he asserted were part of an issue sold through New York bankers at from 90 to 92. "There in stock exchange figures," the representative said, "is the story of the wrecking of the Wa-bash, Pittsburgh Terminal Railway Company, whose bonds were disposed of at from 90 to 92 and bought by life insurance companies, savings banks and numerous private investors, who have seen their property wrecked and have been unable to redress."

The resolution which was resolution which was resolution which was resolution which was resolution.

The resolution which was referred to the rules committee, requests the interstate Commerce Commission to ascertain on what assets in excess of been made to protect the bond purchased its issues of $30,000,000 first mortgage bonds; what brokerage agencies were utilized; what representations made as to the security of the bonds; the amounts disposed of to the securities.
