

WITH THE MOVIES

Production of "One Wonderful Night" Begins in New York.

Francis X. Bushman, the widely known photoplay leading man with the Essanay Company, is the principal American hero. Hundreds of thousands of moving picture devotees, casting votes in the hero contest conducted by the Ladies' World Magazine, one of the Metro publications, have so decided.

The story "One Wonderful Night" written by Louis Tracy, is perhaps one of the best subjects for photoplay production ever penned. Mr. Bushman will play the role of John Deane Curley, the hero. The company will begin work immediately and most of the scenes will be taken in New York city. It is a wise exhibitor who will take advantage of the thousands of dollars that have been spent by the seven manufacturers, whose players were nominated for the role of the hero of this story. The picture will be of live reel length and will cover every scene and incident as related in the story.

This picture when finished will be seen in Anderson at the Palmetto.

Girl Loses Her Eyesight Bird Vendor Is Arrested.

From a photographic standpoint the scene in the "Dark" is perhaps the best ever in several months. The photography is superb. It has the crystal clear quality that makes it a standard of the best. The story has been well produced and the players handle their roles in a most capable and convincing manner. This attraction is booked for release Friday, June 12. The story is as follows:

Act I—It was only natural that Angela and Richard should become engaged. They were children together and had lived for one another. Their love was the true and budding love that has been born to live forever. Angela loved nature and when a bird vendor stopped her on the street one sunny afternoon she unhesitatingly purchased a canary and asked the man for a card, that she might recommend him to her friends. That night Angela was awakened by the singing of the canary and could not understand why the bird should be so fresh-hearted and merry at that late hour.

Her discomfiture was genuine, when she discovered that the bird was blind, and the next morning found her at the bird vendor's home seeking an explanation. She learns that all the birds are blind, that they are blind on purpose, that they sing better thus, and that it is easier to sell birds that have excellent singing quality. She becomes furious to think that such an ingenuit act should be inflicted upon the innocent creatures, and has the vendor arrested. Her brother, George, promising young attorney, prosecutes the case and the Italian vendor is flung in court.

ACT II—The day had been set for the wedding. Their new home to be was in readiness. Angela meets with an accident which costs her eyesight. Would Richard continue to love her, would he forget that they sing better thus, and that it is easier to sell birds that have excellent singing quality. She becomes furious to think that such an ingenuit act should be inflicted upon the innocent creatures, and has the vendor arrested. Her brother, George, promising young attorney, prosecutes the case and the Italian vendor is flung in court.

Fox Lake, Ill. last Saturday to produce a piece, entitled "Ambushed," Ripley Holmes, Gerda Holmes and two others decided to make the trip by automobile and left the Windy City about 5:30 Sunday evening. Every thing went along nicely until the chauffeur lost his bearings and took the wrong road, which later developed as being a lane to a farm house. The car, a heavy one weighing considerably more than two tons, became stuck in the mud. Three hours of labor finally succeeded in getting the car out and then they proceeded onward arriving at their destination about 4 o'clock in the morning. The question is was it the weight of the car or Holmes that caused all the trouble.

Kerrigan, Returning to Western Role, Pleases "Fans"

A boy and girl who love each other and the outdoors a villain who seeks to ruin between them and incidentally enrich himself financially and a camera; these are the principal actors in this thoroughly human and thrilling drama. The villain had put the blame for cattle stealing on the boy, but the eye of the camera told who the guilty party really was, and also where the girl's heart really lay.

Of the leading men on the screen today none compare with J. Warren "Jack" Kerrigan. He has the physique, the pose and he knows the west and its ways thoroughly. Lately, the demand has been so strong and persistent that Mr. Kerrigan appear in a series of these roles that first made him famous on the screen, that the Universal has completed, "The Silent Witness," and others to follow are in the mill. Naturally the Universal is confident that this play will prove immensely popular. The atmosphere of the west is vivid, there is a delightful romance in the story and the action is stirring.

Jack comes into the cattle town broker, looking for work. This he receives with a ranchman and in that ranchman has a pretty daughter, Vera, the position particularly appeals to the young cowboy. As the days pass, Jack and Vera become attached to each other much to the disgust and anger of the foreman, George, who seeks Vera for himself. This foreman is the secret head of a gang of cattle thieves and he has been planning raids on his own boss's ranch.

Jack, in the course of his work, comes to suspect the foreman, but can find nothing on him. The foreman, on the other hand, schemes to compromise Jack in the cattle raids with the assistance of a Mexican. They plant on Jack's saddle an iron used in making over the brand on the horses that have been stolen. Vera has purchased a small camera, the only one to be had in the town, on an afternoon she rides into the hills with Jack to take some pictures. They forget the camera on starting back home and in their return to town, before joining Vera again, Jack runs into the cattle rustlers, and he snaps a picture of them from behind bushes, with the foreman in the foreground. Soon after the rustlers are attacked by the cowboy. But the foreman escapes without being detected. Once back on the ranch the foreman tells Jack of being the leader of the gang and produces the iron camera which Vera had in the dark room developing her pictures. Among them she finds one of the cattle rustlers. A Jack is sent to be let out with a rope around his neck by the furious cow-boss, she rushes out and plays the impetuous picture. The Mexican is captured and the two culprits are led out to jail. Jack and Vera, later, find each other happy days together with Jack promised to the position of foreman.

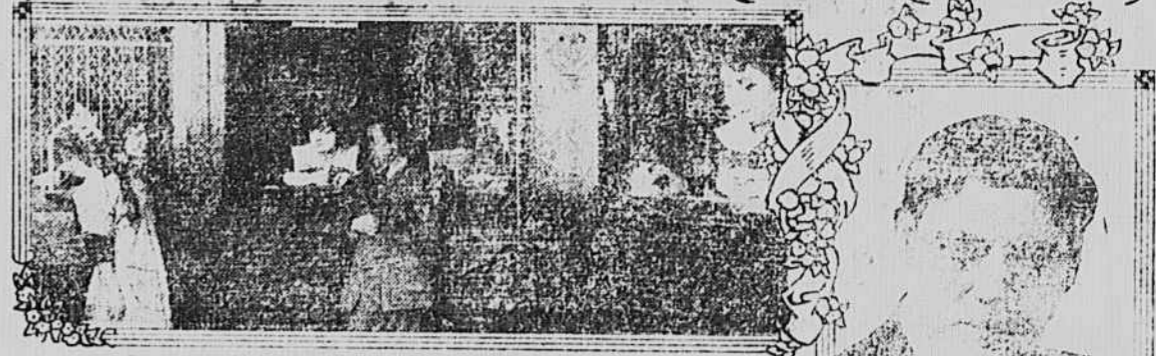

The picture appears in the Bijou next Saturday.

Auto Crime Seizes West Coast Playgoers

"Motrorilla" in an advanced stage has become endemic in the West Coast section of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company in Southern California. The lure of "hundreds" of miles of the finest kind of boulevard, and the almost of being are contributing factors. Not less than a dozen of the big photoplay stars at the universal studios have blossomed forth with new automobiles during the two weeks. As many more have been bitten by the motoritis bug and are expending their spare moments in looking over various makes of cars and in enjoying "demonstrations" outside at the expense of auto dealers.

SCENE FROM THE "OCTAVIUS" SERIES.

Another popular series of picture plays is the continued story of "Octavius, the Amateur Detective." The scenarios are the work of Frederic Arnold Kummer, and Barry O'Moore plays the leads.

"Closed Gates," a one reel psychological drama by Lois Weber, is being produced by Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Smalley, co-directors. This is the seventh picture in five weeks' work by the Smalleys.

FRANCIS CARLISLE.

Francis Carlisle is now playing heavy leads exclusively and doing them very well indeed. His best work is in the "eternal triangle" sort of pictures.

William Wolbert, director and leading man, is now turning out the third of his "Willie Valrus" pictures. "Willie" is a detective, and the new series by Wolbert deal with his escape and escapades. Bess Meredith, leading woman, is Wolbert's invaluable assistant in injecting comedy into the new series.

Two Los Angeles newspaper plants were mentioned by Orls Turner for the "Sulzbach" a two reel drama of newspaper life. "The Sulzbach" a new two reel story, will be Mr. Turner's next picture. After that comes "The Man Who Disappeared." Perriton must catch Earle, the superintendent of Turner's Construction company, before he starts west. The company is going to get a big contract by Lebery. Perriton and Earle can fight it by combining forces. Perriton cannot get to the station before Earle's train starts. How can he stop him?

Wallace Beery is perhaps one of the best known comedians appearing in motion pictures. His rapid rise in the photoplays is due only to his untiring effort to amuse and entertain lovers of the silent comedies. Before entering the picture field Mr. Beery starred in several musical comedies and on one occasion played Raymond Hitchcock's role. As a comedian Mr. Beery is expected to do the impossible, and if anybody is capable of it it is Beery.

The "Servant Question Out West" shows the rarity of girls in the west causes a family with attractive half maidens to lose them quickly by the matrimonial route. A clever comedy based on a vexing problem. On the same reel with "Doc Yak and the Limited Train."

The "Cap" by Richard Washburn Child, is the sixth story of "The Man Who Disappeared." Perriton must catch Earle, the superintendent of Turner's Construction company, before he starts west. The company is going to get a big contract by Lebery. Perriton and Earle can fight it by combining forces. Perriton cannot get to the station before Earle's train starts. How can he stop him?

West Coast directors, was the first to lead with a racy looking Regal roadster, which she drives herself. Not to be outdone, Bob Leonard, expended several weeks of hard-earned salary for a seven passenger Buick. Others who are now dodging speed cars and paying monthly gasoline bills are Jack Kerrigan with a speedy Mercer, William Lucas with an Oakland, General Manager Isadore Bernstein with a six cylinder Lozier, and Francis Ford, Charles Gibby, Grace Cunard, Phillip Smalley, Ford Sterling and several others in as many different makes of cars.

Among those who are contemplating the purchase of cars are Anna Little, William Wolbert, Herbert Rawlinson, Louis Glum and William Worthington.

Bijou Theatre

...PROGRAM...

Week Beginning July 6th, 1914.

Monday.

"THE MASK OF AFFLICTION" Felbr. There are scenes in a mine, including explosions, fire and flood. Two reels of absorbing interest. "UNIVERSAL IKE, JR., 'BEARLY' WON 'HER'" UNI. IKE. The presence of three live and mischievous bears in this film story will make a huge success with the children... Let them come.

Tuesday.

"LUCILLE LOVE" NO. 10. COLD SEAL. More of Lucille's highly colored adventures in the power of the rascally Hugo. He treats her first cruelly and then tenderly, so that observers are beginning to think they will get married at the close of the series. The installment closes with Lucille's rescue from Hugo's clutches by a bandit, the scenes being laid on a Mexican ranch. "THE FATAL LETTER" JOKER. Max Asher goes on a hunting trip in this number, pretending that he has left home to get away from the tobacco habit. Other incidents follow rapidly in this comedy.

Wednesday.

"THE LAW UNTO HIMSELF" TEX. It is hard to tell in this two-part picture whether the title applies to the man who steals the pretty wife of the Italian peasant or to the Italian in America who finds and kills him. Featuring Bob Leonard and Hazel Buckham. "BILLY'S RIG" STERLING. A Sterling Juvenile comedy.

Thursday.

"A SINGULAR CYNIC" VICTOR. Two reels of farce and most of it amusing. The backgrounds are in a beautiful seaside summer resort with Florence Lawrence and Nat Moore. "SOPHIE OF THE FILMS" NESTOR. In this number the laundry girl who ventured into the movies is told to jump out of a burning house by the desperate manager who wants to get rid of her. This makes good burlesque and is the funniest number yet put out.

Friday.

"THE FORBIDDEN ROOM" 101 BISON. A three reel number that is horrible in the same way that Poe's stories are horrible, and is for an audience that will enjoy a strong mixture of the weird and terrible. Fourth reel to be selected.

Saturday.

"THE SILENT WITNESS" VICTOR. This is a two part Western Drama featuring J. WARREN KERRIGAN and Vera Sisson. Kerrigan photographs the foreman and his pals changing the cattle brands. "THE FLIRT" STERLING. Another Sterling Juvenile comedy. Very funny.

NEW LAW FIRM

Messrs. Watkins and Prince to Practice Together. According to formal notice given today, Messrs. T. Frank Watkins and Sam'l L. Prince have formed a partnership for the practice of law. Mr. Watkins is a son of the late Jno. C. Watkins, clerk of court, and is a graduate of the University of Virginia. He has built up quite a fine practice here. Mr. Prince is a son of Judge Geo. E. Prince, a nephew of Jno. G. Clinckensales, and a grandson of the late Rev. D. Samuel Lander, founder of the Williamston Fomalis' College. Mr. Prince taught in Lander College while studying law, and by nature, training and experience he is well equipped for his life work.

High Price for Cotton. New York, July 4.—The first bale of 1914 cotton marketed in the United States, weighing 332 pounds, sold on the cotton exchange here today for $460, or $1.27 3/4 per pound. It classed as strict low middling spotted. It came from Lyford, Texas.

DANGEROUS TO DRINK POPSKULL

Belton Man Arrested and Jailed On Charge of Giving Poisonous Liquor.

Frank Thackston was arrested yesterday by the Belton municipal authorities on a charge of having given John McCoy some whiskey containing a drug or poison, but was later in the day liberated. Thackston was sent to the Anderson county jail but when McCoy was reported as recovering members of his family asked that the man held in the Anderson jail be given his freedom.

Report has it that the two young men took a drink together Friday night and that shortly thereafter McCoy became very ill and for a time it was suspected that Thackston might have instrumental in bringing about this sudden illness, with malicious intent, but this theory has since been discarded and last night it seems that there was but little to the happening.

Judge Visits Woman. Paris, July 4.—Madame Henrietta Calliaux, who on March 16 last, shot and killed Gaston Calmette, editor of the Figaro, was visited today in prison by Judge Lewis Alhanel, president of the criminal court which will try her. The judge read the indictment to the prisoner. When asked if she persisted in statements she previously had made to the investigating magistrate, Madame Calliaux replied in the affirmative.
