MISS A. W. FINNSTROM IN THE RICHEY CASE

Stated That Man Was Guilty and Did Not Recommend Executive Clemency

(Columbia Record.)
"I believe that R. A. Richey is the guilty man, but I do not mind if he is pardoned; for I am tired of the whole thing," is the statement Miss A. W. Finnstrom, matron of the Door of Hope, this city, made to the board of pardons, according to her version of the incident given to a reporter of The Record this morning, which directly contradicts the recommendation of the board of pardons. Miss Finnstrom also stated that W. R. Echey, brother of R. A. Richey, "continuously week after week" approached her in the endeavor to get the matron to recommend a pardon for his brother, until she "was sick and tired of the whole thing."
Miss Finnstrom stated that the girl prosecuting witness, while Miss Finnstrom was present, after severe cross-examinations by both Governor Blease in the executive office and subsequently by the board of pardons which it was in session, iterated and reiterated that R. A. Richey, the girl's father by adoption, was the man guilty of ruining her.
"If I have been quoted to the effect that I stated R. A. Richey is not guilty and that I recommended a pardon for him, it is a mistake, for I never said either," said Miss Finnstrom in her interview.

FINANCIALLY EMBARRASSED

American Ambassador Has Used All
Money in His Possession Cashing Checks.

Paris, August 3.—The pressure of Americans desiring assistance became so great today at the embassy, that Ambassador Herrick, who was unable to talk with each individually, made a speech to them.
He said that Paris was as safe a place for them as London. He would be pleased to add them to leave Paris he said, but it would be difficult for them to depart for several days.
The ambassador added that he was sorry that he could not supply anyone with money or cash any checks, that he had used all of the considerable sum of money he had obtained Sunday cashing checks.
The halls of the embassy office building are piled high with the baggage of Americans who have been turned out of the hotels.

MAROOINED IN PARIS

Party of Americans, Representatives of Southern Commercial Congress——Can't Leave Capital.
Washington, Aug. 3.—Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida, with about fifty other Americans, representing the Southern commercial congress are now marooned at the American embassy in Paris. Word of their plight reached Senator Fletcher's friends today.
The delegation had intended to remain in Europe thirty days longer, but cancelled their plans and are endeavoring to get passage to the United States.
Among those in the party are: Mrs. Fletcher, Dr. Clarence J. Owens, director general of the Southern commercial congress; A. J. Matheson of Henricville; S. C. and Miss Matheson; Quincy A. Kennedy; Williston, S. C.; E. S. Henry; Asheville; N. C.; E. O. Lutz; D. S. Henderson; Alton, S. C.; and Mrs. Henderson, E. L. Smith; Roanoke, Va.; and Jerry Rodgers, Petersburg, Va.

$20,000,000 IN CLEARING HOUSE CERTIFICATES ISSUED

day in the history of the country on which such a variety of comprehensive measures was put into force. Banks of large cities throughout the country decided to issue clearing house certificates to furnish an additional medium of circulation in settlement of transactions among banks. Many million dollars of Aldrich-Vreeland currency were shipped to financial centers. The recent enormous outflow of gold to Europe was believed to have been stopped effectually.

It took several hours of rapid work this morning to put these steps into operation.

Until that had been accomplished, the financial district was under a strain, but as the hours passed without serious difficulties the tension relaxed until at the close of the day Wall street was abnormally dull.
Withdrawals from banks were not large enough to signify widespread public uneasiness.
As a result of today's action there now is in circulation more currency than at any previous time in the history of the country. Clearing house certificates of $20,000,000 were issued today and it was expected that further large amounts would be demanded shortly. During the 1907 panic the maximum amount of certificates issued was $103,000,000.
During the time the clearing house certificates are in circulation the weekly detailed bank statement will not be issued.

Stock exchange brokers today settled down for a long period of inactivity, for it was the general opinion that the market would not be reopened for several weeks. Commission houses reported a considerable demand for stocks from investors.

Efforts were made to stop transactions in stocks by irresponsible private concerns, some of which, taking advantage of the suspension of the exchange, endeavored to set themselves up in business. A committee of stock exchange brokers was appointed to appeal to newspaper publishers to reject objectionable advertisements from such persons.

MYSTERIOUS DEPARTURE

was so fully loaded that coal showed above hatches.
When the North German Lloyd line let it be known late today that she was to leave port it was said that she would not sail before midnight, or later. Four hours before this time, however, the Kronprinz left the pier and steamed down the harbor. Not only had her superstructure been painted gray, but it was reported that after the vessel had crossed the American three mile neutrality zone, her entire body above water would be given the same color. Her crew numbers 350 men.

Another war move in connection with shipping in this port was taken today when the French government requisitioned the steamer Echembeau, which arrived here tonight, by ordering this French line vessel turned over to the French consul. The Echembeau will become a French transport, it is believed.
Died Rumor.
Official of the North German Lloyd line said they had received no cable messages as reported that the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, carrying $13,000,000 in gold had reached a German port.
The movement of ocean-plying vessels is becoming smaller each day. The White Star line sold tickets that would not promise to send its ships out. The French line accepted reservations but not money. La Lorraine of this line was expected tonight to sail Wednesday and the St. Paul of the American line, crowded almost to the rails, on Friday. The American and White Star line announced that their vessels would not touch at Cherbourg.
The Fabru line, sending ships to Mediterranean ports, today cancelled all its sailings. Tomorrow's sailing of the Lusitania under American command contract to carry mail, was cancelled today. If La Lorraine sails Wednesday she will carry the Lusitania's mails.
General trans-Atlantic vessels reached port today. They include the Rochambeau, the Anchor liner Columbia, from Glasgow, the Scandinavian-American liner Frederic VIII from Copenhagen, the Europa, Italian line, from Naples.

The German cruiser Karlsruhe, reported to be in the neighborhood of this port, is of 4,900 tons displacement, and of 56,000 horse power.
Only the running lights of the Kronprinz Wilhelm were up as she passed out of the harbor. Instead of bearing to the northward as trans-Atlantic liners usually do, the Kronprinz headed southward.

SOMETHING OF BELGIUM.

The Little Nation That is the Object of Germany's Attack in Order to Get Advantage of England.

A small European state lying between France and Holland, and in square miles is 11,737. Population 7,451,903. The population is of mixed German and Celtic origin. It is the most densely populated country in Europe, being 589 to the square mile.
Agriculture and mining constitute the chief sources of its national prosperity.

The chief manufactures are linen, woollens, cotton, silk, lace and metals. The value of exports in 1909 was $560,000,000, imports $740,000,000. Trade with the United States was valued at $71,000,000 and $55,000,000 respectively.

The Roman Catholic is the dominant religion. The government is a limited constitutional and hereditary monarchy and was established in 1830. The history of Belgium dates from 1831, when the South Netherlands parted from Holland and became an independent kingdom.

The present ruler of Belgium is Albert I, who was born April 8, 1875, and was the nephew of the late king Leopold II, who died Dec. 17th, 1909. King Albert married in 1900, Duchess Elizabeth of Bavaria, and his two sons Prince Leopold, born 1901, Prince Charles, born 1903, and a daughter, Princess Marie Jose, born 1906.

At the outbreak of the Franco-German war in 1870, the Belgians, fearing risks both from Prussia and from France, mobilized their army, but in a special treaty arranged by England, both belligerents recognized anew the neutrality of Belgium, guaranteed in 1831 and 1839.
Whether Germany will respect the above neutrality treaty in the present crisis is not known, but if she does not, England will immediately take a hand, as she guarantees the neutrality of Belgium, and the acquisition of Belgium as German territory would be a menace to England.

as he entered the hall he was received with a roar of cheers from his opponents, paying tribute to him as the head of the navy.

It had been expected the prime minister would be the spokesman of the government, but Sir Edward Grey was chosen because of his more intimate acquaintance with Great Britain's connection with the triple entente.

Announcement of the definite policy of the British cabinet, which the prime minister was expected to make in the Parliament was postponed.

John Burns, president of the local government board, resigned last night from the cabinet, owing to disagreement over the war policy of the British government and a late report said that Viscount Morley, lord president of the council, was considering resigning.

Sir Edward Grey in the commons, reviewed the situation and although he used qualifying phrases, his words were taken generally to mean that Great Britain is committed to war.

The German ambassador at Paris was ordered by the Emperor to demand passports, which lines up France with Russia, Serbia and Montenegro against Germany and Austria-Hungary.

Mobilization Complete.

The mobilization of most of the countries of Europe has been virtually completed. Holland has been invaded at Limburg by the German troops, according to report, and the Dutch people are said to be flooding the country to prevent the passage of the soldiers.

Germany has issued a white book, justifying her action with respect to Russia, and at the same time German diplomats at London are using their utmost efforts to win Great Britain to a position of neutrality.

Few reports of actual military movements have been received owing to the censorship.

Silently Waiting.

Great Britain has mobilized her forces and is silently waiting for events. Today she is not a belligerent power, nor is she a neutral one.

The government has given France assurance that the British fleet will not allow the German fleet to attack the French coast. It has not pledged itself to contribute an army to the continental war.

The British government regards with the deepest distrust Germany's violation of Belgium's neutrality, but makes no declaration as to whether it considers that measure provocation for war.

The pronouncement of government policy—the result of two days almost continuous deliberations—was made to the House of Commons late today by Sir Edward Grey, secretary of state for foreign affairs, the trying hour of suspense for the British people is prolonged indefinitely.

Pleads Germany's Cause.

Meanwhile the German embassy in London is exerting every effort of diplomacy to induce Great Britain to hold aloof from the conflict and to bring public opinion to Germany's side. The counsel of the German embassy issued a strong appeal for the neutrality of Great Britain asserting that Germany would agree to keep her fleet from attacking the northern and western coasts of France if England would pledge neutrality, and argued that England would gain more in the end by standing outside the European war and using her influence as mediator when the moment was ripe.

Referring to this suggestion the British foreign secretary said:
I have only heard that shortly before I came to the house. He raised his voice and rapped the table before him sharply, declaring: "But that is far too narrow an engagement."

Sir Edward Grey dispelled the shadows of doubt which flickered over the triple entente in the minds of many liberals by exposing some milestones in the history of the rapprochement, revealing it as essentially a national one with France, without definite obligations.

Finally, on one tremendously vital question—a question upon the answer of which the British empire and the whole world are hanging—whether the government considers that the German policy compels Great Britain to wage war, the foreign secretary left an impression of doubt.

Inference Drawn.
That doubt may reflect the mind of a cabinet not wholly unanimous, and the interpretation drawn by many is that Sir Edward Gray's speech to Germany was a hint that if she will keep her soldiers off Belgian soil and her battleships away from the coast of France, that will be the price of Great Britain's armed neutrality.

The first outbreak of patriotic enthusiasm since the possibility arose of England becoming involved in the war, occurred in London tonight, as crowds of Englishmen and Frenchmen in West End, waving flags and singing national anthems. When they reached Buckingham palace, in response to a great outburst of cheering, the king, queen and Princess Mary appeared on the balcony and bowed acknowledgment of the enthusiastic demonstration of loyalty.

Long Live the King.

This did not satisfy the crowds, which chanted: "We want King George," and sang "Rule Britannia." This finally brought the king and the queen out again. They were accompanied by the Prince of Wales and received another noisy greeting. The demonstration lasted several minutes and for a long time after the royalties had retired the people continued to sing patriotic songs.

King George and Queen Mary were heartily cheered when they drove in the parks in the afternoon and great crowds remained around the palace, the House of Parliament and Downing street.

The people generally, were undemonstrative, apparently being more curious than excited. Occasionally there was cheering as some cabinet minister passed and when the guards at the palace gates were changed. But on the whole, Londoners preferred to spend the holiday in their usual quiet manner.

Anxiety Shown.

An evening drew on, however, and anxiety increased as to the attitude the government intended to adopt, the people became more excited. Winston Spencer Churchill, as he walked from the admiralty to the commons, was greeted with cries of "Good Old Winston."

Premier Asquith was greeted in a similar manner and was escorted from his home to the precincts of the House by a cheering crowd, and other members of the cabinet, as well as members of the House, received cheers as they passed into the historic building to hear what England intended to do in the hour of her crisis.

John Redmond, Irish Nationalist leader, came in for a splendid reception as he left the House, the news of his speech, in which he said that every soldier could be withdrawn from Ireland, having preceded him.

Field Marshal Lord Roberts, the Marquis of Lansdowne, and Andrew Bonar Law, leader of the opposition, who visited the prime minister in Downing street, soon were surrounded by a great crowd which followed and cheered them, but the ambassador, including the German representative, who went to the foreign office several times and the Russian representative who sat in the House during Sir Edward Gray's speech, were little known to Londoners and passed unnoticed.
