told his hearers that he knew what cotton mill conditions require, he knows what the farmer needs and while he as unwilling to make any promises, he intends doing the best he can for the county if he is elected.

Col. L. T. Campbell haid that he was no stump speaker and would not attempt to make any speech. He is a farmer and believes that he has the ability to fill the office, at the conclusion of his address he refused to answer many questions as to how he stood on the race for the Senate.

T. P. Dickson, of Anderson, re-stood on the race for the Senate.

T. P. Dickson, of Anderson, reviewed his career, telling of what he has accomplished. He told his hearers that he had no political record for them to criticise. He favors giving the magistrate authority to try the liquor cases, thus saving the county money, and will push such a bill if elected and favors raising the standard of education. In reply to the question who are you for? Mr. Dickson said that he would vote for the best man. Miss Ray Masters of Anderson R. F. D., was shopping in the city yester-Dr. W. I. Sam M. Wolfe of Anderson, asked Sam M. Wolfe of Anderson, asked for a fair chance for the best man at the polls, regardless of any factionalism. He favors blennial sessions of the legislature and favors the addition to Cedar Springs institute of a department for backward children, where the mentally deficient can be trained. He reviewed his general to Anderson county and says that he is anxious to assist with legislation calculated to help the farmer. When asked who he would vote for for the senate, Mr. Wolfe said that he was gaing to yet for the best way. going to vote for the best man.

told his hearers that this was his 12th time to appear before the voters seeking an office. Seven times he has been sent to the house and he wants to go again. He favors a more economic government, he wants some legisla-tion to improve conditions at the asy-lum, he wants better roads and better country schools and characterized the bill providing for the lection of the county commissioners in this county as improperly drawn. When asked, at the conclusion of his speech, asked, at the conclusion of his speech, about the race for the United States senate, Mr. Watson told his voters he was going to vote as he pleased.

said that the office to which he aspired is nothing more nor less than a business man's job and he knows that he can fill it. He has no word of criticism to offer in regard to Judge Micholson, but he believes that Mr. Nicholson has had the place long enough. He promised the people that if elected, he would give some Anderson man the job of clerk and not grab all the salary of the office and he promises not to ask for the office and he promises not to ask for the office and he promises not to ask for the office and he promises not to sak for the office and he promises not to sak for the office and he promises not to sak for the office and he promises not to sak for the office and he promises not to sak for the office and he promises not to sak for the office and he promises not be senate was asked. Mr. Cheshire replied that all his hearons knew he was going to vote for the Governor.

W. F. Cox rehearsed his record, told of having held the job at one time and asked any of his hearers to find anything the matter with his record, either as an office holder or as a business man. When the crowd demanded his position on the senatorial race Judge Cox told them that he expected to vote for the best man and advised them to do likewise. He made a very strong appeal for law and order which was well received.

He declared that he was no partisan and said that he would not lower himself to the level of a demagogue and array class against class. He outlined the following as the things he stands for: equilazation of the tax rate improvement of the school system, a better enforcement of the laws, biennial ses-sions of the legislature the inicative sions of the legislature the initative and referendum, and the doing away of factionalism and uniting the white people of the state. When asked the question as to whom he would support for the United States senate, Mr. Sherard said that he is opposed to boss rule, either in the state or the county and advised his hearers against letting factionalism run away with them. He said that he is going to support the best man in the race.

SUPERVISOR

The first candidate for the office of supervisor was W. J. Johnson who gave his hearers an outline of his con-ception of the duties in this office and declared that he had the ability to fill it, if elected. Thomas B. Kay began his speech by saying that he is a supporter of Governor Blease. He believes that every portion of the county should there equally in getting some of the tax money through road work and said that his policy, if elected to the office, would be "build no new roads until the old ones are worked."

Mack King the incumbent, was given a hearty reception by the crowd. He told of his service in the general assembly and of being appointed supervisor and then told of what he has done since he was placed in that office. He says that he has worked the county roads from one side of Anderson county to the other and hear Anderson county to the other and has distributed the county's money as evcounty's money as evenly as possible. He says that he has instituted a business system, has saved the county money, has reduced the indebtedness of the county and will reduce it still more, saved every nickel that he could and has given satisfaction. He got a good round of applause when he finished. C. F. Martin told his hearers that the office of supervisor demanded a business administration and promised that it would get it if he should be elected. He believes that every section of the county should have a share of the county should have a share of the road work and promised that this would also be done if the people choose him for the office. He stated stated that he is a pusiness man and
