FEASIBLE PLAN IS SUGGESTED

Bank Loans On Warehouse Receipts May Be All That Is Necessary

St. Louis, August 21.—The feasibility of accepting cotton warehouse certificates as security for bank loans, will be investigated by a committee appointed at a meeting of the St. Louis Business Men's league today.

The meeting was called to discuss means of protecting the cotton crop while the export market is curtailed as a result of the war.

Festus J. Wade, president of the St. Louis clearing house association, said that a normal price of $50 a bale the cost of carrying the surplus of three million bales would be $150,000,000. He said that $105,000,000 is available to the banks under the Aldrich-Vreeland law and that all that was necessary to insure returns on the three million bales would be strict regulation of warehouse certificates, preferably by local business organizations.

Mr. Wade said St. Louis is prepared to issue warehouse certificates for 250,000 bales.

SLOWLY BUT SURELY, GERMANS ADVANCING

marched through Brussels.

"The first troops to enter the city were the famous Black Brunswick Hussars, wearing the well known death's head badge.

"Their horses were exhausted. Then came a phalanx of German infantry which took possession of the Brussels barracks and heights. Regiment after regiment quietly piled their arms, looking rather weary, but determined and fit. They behaved in an exemplary manner."

London, Aug. 22.—The Reuter Telegraph Company's Amsterdam correspondent sends the following detailed account of the advance of the Germans across Belgium this week. The account was taken from Antwerp. It reads:

"Tuesday morning the great advance movement began along a line extending in a broad V from Diest to Tirlemont and St. Trond. The Belgians retired from St. Trond as the Germans outnumbered the Belgian advance guard. The first Belgian battle line extended 25 miles and included Diest, Haelen, Geetzbezt, Neeritter and Tirlemont.

"Tirlemont was guarded by cavalry detachments only, while on the other end of the line the burden of defense at Diest was taken by bicycle sharpshooters.

Drew First Blood.

"The battle started at daybreak on Tuesday near Geetzbezt, where the Belgians gained the first blood by bringing down a German aeroplane. At 6 o'clock the Germans opened the attack with large forces of cavalry, supported by infantry and artillery with machine guns. Within a few minutes a fierce battle was raging along the six mile frontier.

In the north the German right wing attacked Haelen and Loxbergen. In the south it attacked Budingen. The main attack was aimed to break into the Belgian lines at Geetzbezt, where the mounted cavalry poured in a terrific fire annihilating the German advance column. Thereupon the German cavalry executed a daring flank movement around the Belgian position, necessitating the slow retirement of the Belgians on Budingen, where Count Dursel was killed.

The most remarkable stand was made outside Budingen by two Belgian squadrons of 240 men who opposed for a long time 2,000 Germans.

On the extreme north the Germans stormed the town furiously and destroying a large part of the city.

Late Tuesday the Belgian headquarters having learned the enemy's strength from the aviators, decided further resistance along this advanced line would be foolish and ordered a gradual retirement.

Wednesday a tremendous battle along the whole line continued. The hottest fighting was near Aerschoot, 23 miles northeast of Brussels, where the carnage on both sides was terrible. The advance guard of two Belgian regiments made heroic stands, but was forced to retreat at seven o'clock in the evening.

At 11 o'clock the Germans reached Louvain in motor cars armed with machine guns. The Belgians continued to fall back in good order, administering severe punishment to the enemy all the way. The retreat took them through Malines and thence to Antwerp."

London, Aug. 22.—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Ghent, Belgium, who has been traversing the French advanced posts in the Meuse river valley will be against Namur and nearby places, where, he says the Germans are mobilized for a slashing effort to plunge their great army into France.

An army now on the way from Rochefort, the correspondent thinks will be hurled squarely against the French frontier.

"The Germans," the correspondent continues, "already have made tentative assaults at every point along the Meuse wherever its crossing is feasible. This war is no child's play. Solemnly I warn the English that this is only the beginning of a time of a great strife.

"The English army, I think, must eventually accept the heaviest burden of the fighting. We have a handful of men here on the fighting line, but more must come and man / lives must be sacrificed to dam the encircling flood. I guarantee that the battle for the mastery of France may begin tomorrow."

GEORGIA ELECTION

There Will Be a Hot Time in the State Convention.

Atlanta, Ga., August 21.—The hottest convention fight Georgia has known in a decade is promised on September 2 at Macon when Thomas W. Hardwick and Governor John M. Slaton fight it out for election as United States senator. It is now assumed that neither will have enough votes to win on the first ballot, and that the Felder vote or a large share of it will be necessary for nomination.

With nearly all the returns in Hardwick and Slaton appear to be running about neck and neck. Governor Slaton appears to have a large plurality of the popular vote. Felder is running a rather bad third.

Governor Slaton announced to his friends that he would go to the convention prepared to fight.

"The interests of the counties that voted for me will be in the hands of the delegates named to the convention," he said. "We shall go to that convention prepared to stand by our guns to the last man."

"The last returns indicate that we have carried between 150 and 160 convention votes and I expect to be elected on the second ballot," said Mr. Hardwick.

The Fulton county committee rather framed up against Slaton, who carried the county easily. Under the law the friends of the successful candidate for governor name the delegates, and this was left to St. Elmo Massengale, manager for Judge Harris. But there will be no contest on Harris and Massengale sent in a list of six stalwart avowed Hardwick men including himself. After a hot debate the delegation was instructed to vote for Slaton as long as he desired his name to remain before the convention, but an effort to let Slaton have a voice in choosing the delegates failed.

INDICTMENT ASKED

Unscrupulous Dealers May Be Committed to Jail.

(By Associated Press.)

Washington, Aug. 21.—There were strong indications today that at least six grand juries in as many different localities soon will be asked to return indictments against food dealers alleged to have raised prices in a conspiracy to violate the Sherman anti-trust act.

Juries are almost certain to be asked for indictments in Chicago, Washington, Brooklyn and three other cities, the names of which the department at present will not reveal. In Chicago an immediate effort will be made to jail offenders.

Despite the unwillingness of the officials to discuss the investigation it was learned tonight that information had been received concerning beef packers in Chicago which may result in prosecutions.

Department of justice agents, it was said, have discovered that packers are shipping large quantities of meats across the Canadian border. At the same time meat prices are advancing. It was understood here today that the packers have not taken kindly to the investigation.

The rise in the sugar prices has led to renewed interest among department officials in the investigation of the supposed connection between the so-called sugar trust and the beet sugar interests.
