Institute Was Not Held Here.

Owing to the demoralized condition of affairs here yesterday, superinduced by the election, J. W. Rothrock determined that the idea of holding the Farmers' Institute in this city yestrarmers' Institute in this city yestterday was not feasible and accordingly he notified the speakers at Clemcon college not to come. Mr. Rothrock said last night that he would try to arrange for a later meeting to be held in Anderson. The Institute will be held today at Long Branch and the people of that section say that the attendance will be good.

Again Election

Was Only Talk

Yesterday in Anderson was much similar to the day before in one respect, Election "done" was all that one could hear and The Intelligencer office was crowded all day long with voters, anxious to get the earliest news possible. One voter, much disgruntled with the governor, sent him a felegram yesterday morning, in accordance with reports, in which he told the chief executive that he (like voter) hoped he would never hear of Bleaseism again. Bleaseism again.
