"In order to make the subscriptions to class 'B' certificates immediately available, each subscription accompanied by an application for a loan must be accompanied by a New York draft to the order of the cotton loan fund, or in such manner as the cotton loan committee shall designate, said draft to be for an amount equal to 25 per cent. of the loan applied for, and upon the granting of such loan a class 'B' certificate for this amount shall be issued. MRS. CRAWFORD FREE OF CHARGE

Grand Jury Refused to Indict Her on Charge of Poisoning Husband.

(By Associated Press.) ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 27.—The Fulton county grand jury here today refused to indict Mrs. Mary Belle Crawford, charged in a warrant with poisoning her husband, Joshua A. Crawford, an Atlanta capitalist who died in 1909.

Mrs. Crawford is now free of the charge. The action of the grand jury today was the second "no bill" returned against her and, under the Georgia law, criminal proceedings cannot be brought on an old charge after a grand jury has twice failed to indict.

Mr. Crawford had been married only a few weeks when he died. His heirs later caused the warrant to be issued and instituted legal proceedings to obtain possession of the estate, valued at $250,000, which was bequeathed to Mrs. Crawford. This suit is still pending.

Letter From the People.

To the Editor of the Daily Intelligencer:

I don't desire to be a grouch, for of all the most contemptible people in this wide world, I think a real grouch is the objectionable. Nor do I wish to become a chronic fault finder, because all thinking men are aware that Shakespeare's words were true when he said, "It is easy fault finding." It requires no brain, no talent, nor self denial to set up in the grumbling business, but it seems to me that I have run across a problem that is unexplainable unless some of our wise city fathers come to the rescue. I was always taught that what ever was sauce for the gander was sauce for the goose. It seems as if it is different in our fair city. Our wise police department is so good as to furnish a patrolman for all busy points on our streets, to see that people observe the "Drive to the right" ordinance. This is a wise precaution perhaps, but it does look odd to see two well groomed men standing out in the street all day long just for the purpose of telling the few stragglers that failed to know that such an ordinance is on the book.

I thought they had the interest of the city at heart, to say the least of it, even when they called on a man about my size and personal appearance, to explain why he had neglected to block or hitch the horse that pulled the express wagon, while he went into a store to deliver a package. Even when the recorder called on him to pay into the city treasury five hard earned dollars, I only thought that the officers had been dreaming of the awful wrecks that could so easily be caused by the staid old horse running away with that heavy wagon down Main street.

I know that such carelessness has really been the cause of the death or serious injury of helpless women or poor innocent little children, for this reason I made really no kick about the fine. I just proceeded to learn how to block a horse. I think by this time I am adept at this art if nothing else. I do know how to fasten my horse every time before I leave him, even for one single minute.

As a boy I never objected to "seeing the bottle dance" or joining the several secret societies for which fun loving young folks are noted; because I was always thinking of the fun soon to come to me out of being the other fellow come through. That is the way I felt when that hard earned "fiver" slipped from my fingers. I said deep down in my heart then, I would not be the only "goat" and really got a little pleasure out of anticipating seeing the other fellow frown when he, too, had to take double dose of "recorder quinine."

Ever since that memorable day, I have watched to see the frown settle on the other fellow's face. I did not do this because I was anxious to see any one get in trouble, but in so much as it was to happen I thought it no harm to see the spectacle. Not a single day has passed but what several unsuspecting driver went in and left their horses absolutely foot loose on the square. I tried to make myself think that the traffic policeman as well as the others who were passing about were so

TORPEDO BOAT HELD BETWEEN SAND BARS

EMBEDDED SO DEEP IN THE SAND THAT ALL EFFORTS TO PULL HER OUT INTO DEEP WATER WERE ABANDONED—84 MEN ON BOARD, SOME WEARING LIFE PRESERVERS

(By Associated Press.)

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 27.—Held fast between two sand bars in Lynnhaven Bay where she struck early this morning during a severe northeast storm, the torpedo boat Paulding is tonight being pounded by high seas, which at times break all over the tiny craft. Anchored nearby is the auxiliary cruiser Panther, mother ship of the torpedo flotilla. She has a rope made fast to the Paulding, but the latter craft is embedded so deep in the sand that all efforts to pull her into deep water were abandoned for fear that she could not stand the strain.

On board the Paulding are 84 men, some of them wearing life preservers, very busy looking for some one to direct to drive to the "right and real close to the curbing too," that they failed to see the dangerous charges that was so liable to spread terror and devastation in a mad race down the crowded street.

On Monday the 19th, a friend and myself went down to make sure that horses were really left standing without block or other system of hitching. We saw teams on the square in this condition. I was still in hope the city government were in favor of feeding all out of the same spoon till the next day which was last Tuesday, when I actually saw the chief and honorable recorder turn off their course for one that was not satisfied with standing loose on the street proper, but had placed his feet upon the side walk and was actually poking his head into the faces of the crowd as they serged along.

Then is when I began to wonder. I asked myself the question if I had done anything that would put me "in bad" with these officers. If such has been the case it has slipped my recollection. I have tried to be a good law-abiding citizen of your city. I am a sober and hard working boy who is trying to make good in the cold hard world. If they "had it in" for the express company, for any reason it was no fault of mine. I don't shape the policy of that corporation. They don't often ask Life savers from Cape Henry station made several unsuccessful efforts to reach the Paulding today. The seas were so high they could not launch their life-boats.

The storm at midnight had abated and the sea was moderating. The torpedo boats Burroughs and uet also went ashore during the blow this morning. The Burroughs had a hole in the starboard bow and was picked up by the auxiliary cruiser Dixie. She later came to the Norfolk navy yard. The Juett struck a sand bar and had her starboard propeller broken off. She, too came to the yard. It was reported that the Paulding was not leaking, according to last reports received from the vessel.

fore taking any special move. So if it was a thrust at them the blow was misdirected. It hit nobody but me. I was the man who had to pay the fine out of forty dollars per month. It did go hard. Now I don't desire the officers to fine others, but I do ask them to explain through the columns of this paper why all horses do not look alike to them. I don't think there is a single man in the city of Anderson who ever saw a horse of the breed that my horse is ever run away at all. They just don't do that kind of stunts. Now I feel that this was an outrage, because I have to stop and go into the stores hundreds of times where others are called to leave their horses once and a while. There is but little involved in blocking a horse when you leave him, but my five dollars was dear to me, and I can't see why it is worth a fine of such magnitude, for me to do a thing that other people are doing every day—right under the very eyes of the very officers, and they failed to get even a reprimand. I am in favor of this law. I wish to see it enforced, but I do think they ought to stop horses from being left loose on the square, and else give me my five bucks back and apologize for the grief and worry they have caused me.

Respectfully submitted, T. H. BELVIN.

S. L. Eskew of Pendleton was in the city yesterday for a few hours.

Proof Positive

The Ad Man was rather startled Monday on entering the store of J. M. McCown in the Brown-Watson building by hearing one of the clerks of that popular new grocery store yell to the proprietor: "Don't give that man an ad, Mr. McCown, he will sell the entire store."

Upon being asked for an explanation, Mr. McCown stated that the little THREE INCH ad which had appeared in the Daily and Semi-Weekly Intelligencer ONLY, advertising "Rising Sun" flour, in barrel lots at $6.25 per barrel, had completely sold them out of that popular flour, and that they could have sold another carload of it, had they had the flour; "Mr. Sasseen, I almost had to take a stick to some of them, Saturday, about that flour; they wanted the flour after we were completely sold out, and when I told them it was all gone, they still persisted in wanting it. WE SOLD NINETY ODD BARRELS OF "RISING SUN" FLOUR SATURDAY FROM THAT AD IN THE INTELLIGENCER ALONE."

And yet some merchants (like farmers who work only ONE HALF of their fertile soil) don't advertise enough to get their share of the business that is ready at hand only wanting going after in the usual manner—advertising.

If business were half as bad as the pessimists claim; then instead of reducing their advertising appropriation, they should DOUBLE IT, because OVERHEAD EXPENSES are NOT going to SHRINK in proportion to the shrinkage in volume of business, hence the merchant should make STRENUOUS efforts to get the VOLUME OF BUSINESS, which is the ONLY WAY to REDUCE the per cent of operating expense.

The Daily and Semi-Weekly Intelligencer is the INTELLIGENT WAY.
