Many shepherds report as good results from feeding silage to sheep as are reported by dairy men and beef cattle feeders.

Sheep in the summer are gross feeders, rapidly cleaning the land of orush and weeds, but in the barn and in the feed lot they are extremely dainty in their eating.

SILAGE A GOOD FEED FOR EWES AND LAMBS SECOND MEETING WAS HELD

[Prepared by United States department of

The use of corn silage as a reed for sheep has attracted the attention of most farmers only during the past few years. Although a few sheepmen fed sliage many years ago with good results, most flockmasters have been slow in giving it a trial.

Owing to the wonderful increase in the use of siles on farms and owing to the cheapness of sllage as compared with other succulent feeds, such as roots, farmers are constantly raising the question regarding the feeding of silage to sheep. A great deal has been said of the bad effects upon sheep, but these have arisen either because an inferior quality of slinge was fed or on account of carelessness on the part of the feeder in not feeding it properly.

A good quality of slinge is extremely palatable and can be fed to all classes of sheep with good results. It must be borne in mind, however, that slage which is either very sour, moldy of frozen should not be fed.

The amount of slage reported in feeding trials varies from one to five pounds per head per day. The amount to feed depends upon the class of sheep and the character of the other feeds comprising the ration. As a general rule from two to four pounds per head per day is considered as much as should be fed.

Lamb feeders have found slinge a very satisfactory feed, and the amount

The Cheviot has proved a valuable sheep on American farms and makes 2 good cross on native stock. The ewes are the milkers and good mothers, losing few lamis. fed ranges from one to three pounds per day. Where lambs green full feed of grain, such as corn, and are receiv ing a fair allowance of har they will as a rule only consume from one to two pounds per head per day.

In reeding breeding owes before lambing a daily atlowance of from two to three pounds should be considered a maximum quantity. After lambing the amount can be slightly increased in feeding sliage or any other succu-lent feeds it must be horne in mind that the value of such feeds to a targe extent is to act as an appetizer and to keep the digestive system in good condition. Under ordinary conditions where aliage is fed it should not consti tute more than one half of the entire ration and it should be fell with other feeds that will properly balance the ra tion for the purpose intended.

However, Mr. McIntyre received two telegrams Tuesday morning from John Golden, head of the organization department, in which the man doing duty in Anderson was called to come to Georgia. Tuesday night Sheriff Joe Ashley took the tolegrams and went to the meeting at the Fauince mill, where he read the messages and explained why it was not possible for Mr. McIntyre to be present. The Anderson sheriff agsured his hearers of his hearty sym- house of representatives, commenting nathy with them in their efforts to
