SAYS ELEVATOR PLAN "IS VERY FEASIBLE"

CONSTRUCTION MAN TELLS OF WORK

GOOD FIELD HERE

Thinks That Anderson Farmers Will Immediately Approve Scheme and Lend Assistance

"Feasible? Of course it is entirely feasible," said J. Cooper Stratton of the Burrell Construction and Engineering company, when seen yesterday by a reporter for The Intelligencer and asked about the plan for building a grain elevator here. The gentleman constructing the elevators for the Chicago concern knows all there is to know about grain elevators and he talked interestingly about the prospects for putting in a plant here.

Mr. Stratton came to Anderson for the purpose of appearing last night at the meeting of the directors of the Anderson chamber of commerce. He talked at length yesterday to a reporter and explained in detail the working of the grain elevator idea. Mr. Stratton says that there is absolutely no question about the success of the elevator if it is started here and that he believes Anderson people are going to take to the idea. He points out that it is possible for grain to be handled in the old manner, by using a "scoop" and employing a large number of laborers but says that all over the country this plan has been discarded by more progressive communities because it is more and necessarily very expensive and the same work is done in a shorter time and at a less cost when machinery is employed. Again machinery is always to be depended upon, while negroes are not.

Talking of the work done by the elevator, Mr. Stratton points out that the grading of grain is very important. Just as there are several different grades of cotton, so are there several qualities of grain and all these must be sorted and classified.

Mr. Stratton has plans with him for an elevator such as Anderson will need. It has a capacity of 25,000 bushels but this capacity can be largely increased by using the two "legs" of the elevator. The "legs" refer to that part of the apparatus used from hoisting the grain from the receiving point up to the floor and into the different channels, troughs, etc., through which it should go on into the cars on the railroad. These "legs" will handle 2,000 bushels of grain per hour and will load a car on the railroad tracks in less than one hour.

It is proposed to construct a building here of wood with an iron covering and to fit it up as completely as possible. The cost of the proposed undertaking is about $10,000.

The concern represented by Mr. Stratton is one of the largest of its kind in the United States. President Burrell of the company has but recently returned from Australia, where he went at the request of the Australian government, to explain the system followed in grain elevators, and representatives of the Burrell company are now in South America, assisting the people of that country to get grain elevators in operation.

ANDERSON BOY RECEIVES HONORS

Milledge L. Bonham, Jr., Selected as Judge Military History Prize Contest.

The following clipping from The Reveille the students' paper of the Louisiana State University, will be read with interest by the many friends of Dr. Bonham in this section of the State:

"Dr. Milledge L. Bonham, of the Department of History and Political Science, has been chosen as one of the judges in the military history prize contest which is now being conducted.

A prize of $200 will be awarded by the association in 1915 for the best unpublished monograph in military history submitted to the committee before September 1, 1915. The document must be based upon original and independent investigation into some field of military history of the United States. While any American war may be chosen for the essay, the committee has suggested that preference be given to the Civil War.

"The article must deal with a campaign, a battle, a phase or aspect of a campaign or battle, with the fortunes of a corps or division during a battle, or with such subjects as mobilization or organization of volunteers; the material, transportation or food supply of an army, or strategy and military policy.

The other judges are: Captain A. L. Conger, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas; Allen B. Boyd, Liberty of Congress; Professor Fred Marrow Flagg, University of Nebraska; and Albert Russell Hart, of Harvard. Each of these men is an authority in his line. Dr. Bonham was chosen because of his high standing as an authority both in history and military tactics. —The Reveille.

STRONGLY FAVOR GRAIN ELEVATOR

DIRECTORS OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE MET MONTHLY MEETING Favor Pushing Grain Elevator Plans—Endorsed Flour Mill. Condemned Mail Service.

At the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the chamber of commerce held last night, the proposition to locate a 25,000 bushel grain elevator in Anderson was enthusiastically endorsed. The whole matter was gone into in detail by J. Cooper Stratton, elevator expert of Chicago, who explained the manner of operating, maintaining and handling the matter. The board passed the following resolution:

"Whereas, figures submitted to us indicate that at least 1,000,000 bushels of grain will be harvested in Anderson county next year, due to the great increases made by the farmers in grain planting; and whereas, this board knows of no one thing which will be of more general good to the county and city alike than the working out of a comprehensive plan to handle this great crop.

"And whereas, diversified farming in Anderson county is of all things most desired and is now beginning to get a permanent foothold, meaning in our opinion, new wealth for the country and a new era in farming of vast importance.

"And whereas, a special committee composed of representatives of the Farmers' union and of the chamber of commerce are at work on a plan to locate in this city a 25,000 bushel grain elevator, the importance of which can not be overestimated.

"Therefore, Be it resolved, by the board of directors of the chamber of commerce in executive session this 12th day of November, 1914, that we heartily endorse the move to locate a grain elevator; and we promise our support and influence towards the securing of the same; on the proposed job, cash-grain-delivery plan, now being worked out.

(Signed) T. FRANK WATKINS, Vice Chairman.
