Football Special

To Atlanta. W. R. Taber, traveling passenger agent of the Southern Railway, with headquarters in Greenville, was in Anderson yesterday on official business. Mr. Taber stated that the Southern will operate a "football special" from Clemson to Atlanta on Thanksgiving Day to accommodate those wishing to see the Tech-Clemson football game which is staged at this time every year in the Georgia city. The special will leave Clemson at 6:30 a. m. Thursday morning and returning will leave Atlanta at midnight of the same day. The round trip fare will be $2.60. Unless there are enough Anderson people going to see the game to warrant the Blue Ridge Railway running a special from here to Seneca Thursday morning, to connect with the special, those who go from this city will be forced to spend Wednesday night in Seneca in order to catch the special. Capt. J. R. Anderson of the Blue Ridge Railway stated yesterday that a special train would be run from here to Seneca if there were as many as 50 people to make the trip.

Real Pullman Car is Here.

Andersonians yesterday saw a real sure enough Pullman car, and a dandy new one, too, brought to the city on the noon train arriving from Belton. The palatial car is parked at the Blue Ridge yards, where it will remain until Wednesday afternoon, leaving at that time for Florence, where a great gathering of Shriners will be celebrating day. The sleeper will arrive at Florence Thursday morning, and leave there at 2 a. m. of the following day, arriving at Anderson at 11:50 o'clock Friday morning. Anderson Shriners, or many of them, always participate in the Thanksgiving Day gatherings of the members of Omar Terpie and it is needless to say that they will visit the metropolis of the Pee Dee along with other members of the clan all over the State on next Thursday.

Charged With Serious Offense.

Charged with making use of a horse without the consent of the owner, which constitutes a very serious offense, Will Bell, colored, was yesterday given a preliminary hearing before Magistrate Broadwell and bound over to the court of general sessions for trial. It is alleged that the defendant went to a local livery stable Saturday and took out the horse of one William Smith, colored, who lives on the plantation of Mr. Theo. Watson and drove it off. It is not charged that the negro made any effort to steal the horse, nevertheless, in the event he is found guilty of the charge against him, he will receive a sentence of not less than six months, which is the minimum, or a heavy fine.

Earle, of this city, and Lee Solger, of Charlotte, appointed some time ago to reach an agreement, if possible, as to the loss sustained in the burning of the Fowler garage on West Whitner street in several months ago have been unable to reach an agreement, and that a third party, T. Fowler to represent him in the proceedings, while the insurance companies appointed Mr. Folger.

Names Kick On Col. Watson.

Believing that certain duties of the commissioner of agriculture, commerce and industries, viz., those pertaining to agriculture, could best be performed from the office of the commissioner in Columbia, a prosperous farmer of Honeska Path last night called up the Intelligencer and stated that he desired to register a kick against the cross country excursion which was recently made through this section by certain parties who were preaching the gospel of sowing grain, when the time for the planting of this had passed.

REVIEW OF SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT WORK

IN COUNTY TO BE USED IN ANNUAL REPORT STATE SUPERINTENDENT

INTERESTING DATA

Vast Amount Information is Put in Concise Form By J. B. Felton.

A brief but comprehensive review of school improvements in Anderson County for the scholastic year of 1913-1914 was compiled yesterday by County Superintendent of Education J. B. Felton and forwarded to State Superintendent of Education Swearingen for publication in the annual report which that official will shortly issue.

Mr. Felton's review of improvements made by the rural graded schools is interesting, to say the least, and the work noted speaks well for the progressiveness of the county. A concise statement of these improvements should prove not only interesting but valuable to the general public, as it gives in a nutshell information which is usually spread over considerable space. The summary of school improvements which Mr. Felton has forwarded to the State superintendent of education is as follows:

"The school improvements in Anderson County have been very noticeable from a number of points of view, in fact, 1913-1914 has witnessed the most marked improvements in the way of building new school houses, buying new furniture of every description, voting of special taxes, enrollment of more pupils, and everything that goes to make school life from every point of view better for the children of the county.

"During the year 1913-1914 Anderson County built 14 new buildings, at a cost of something like $75,000 or $80,000, and during the present year two or three new buildings have been destroyed by fire and lightning and in each case both have been rebuilt with as good if not better dwellings.

"We have consolidated in several instances two or three small schools into one rural graded school, and in each case this has been done with the making of each of these schools at least a three-teacher school with a term of seven months, and each of these new schools have an enrollment of something like 100 pupils.

"During this past year a number of the districts of this county have voted a special tax of from four to eight mills and in other cases it has been increased from two or three mill tax to four or more.

"We have at present eight high schools in this county that are receiving high school aid from the State, and Anderson County is the only county that received the maximum amount of this aid, namely, $3,000. Lebanon is the only rural high school in the county and its enrollment is at present something like 120, with 40 of this number in the high school department. Possibly such an instance does not occur elsewhere in the State.

"During 1913-1914 we had 26 rural graded schools that had two or three teachers and in some cases more than three. These 26 schools received from the State for graded school aid $6,400 in 1913-1914. Again Anderson County received more from this source than any other county in the State. We hope, however, to have 85 of these rural graded schools in 1914-1915.

"There are a number of schools in the county receiving term extension aid but we hope, however, to make all of these rural graded schools in the near future.

"We have several districts in the county that will erect new buildings and probably several consolidations are possible as soon as financial conditions will permit. Among the schools in which this is possible are Bethel district No. 55, Meritt No. 15 and Hall No. 14. One of these districts now contains four schools, one three and the other two. Lebanon and White Plains will both probably build a six room building and an auditorium in the near future.

"The Hammond district has just completed the best two-room building with equipment in the State. It has every modern convenience of the city school and a term of nine months, with almost every child in the district enrolled.

"The Rural School Improvement Association of this county has certainly been of a very decided benefit to the schools in their several communities, and it is due in a very large way to their untiring efforts that so much has been accomplished and their continued cooperation we expect to make their work account for more during the present year than was even done during the past year. As in all ways the case, when we get the ladies to work with a determination we always get results. Cooperation is the watchword of today, and this such as we have in Anderson County we will get the results we are working for, namely, to make our schools so efficient, our school houses and grounds so attractive that every child in the county of school age will attend school for a term of not less than eight months in any school of the county.

"When business conditions return to normal the strides in education in this county will surpass if possible the things that have been accomplished during the scholastic year of 1913-1914."

Elevator Plans Mature Tuesday

If Anderson county does not have a grain elevator in operation here before next Spring it will be the fault of Anderson county planters and the business men of the city.

A raising big grain meeting has been scheduled for this city and Judge J. S. Fowler, chairman of the movement and in charge of Tuesday's meeting says that he is expecting the farmers to realize the importance of the meeting and to answer the call for the meeting here. He expects all the farmers of the county, financially able to assist in any way with the scheme, to attend the meeting and he is counting on the co-operation and support of the business men of the city.

The grain elevator proposed for this county will cost in the neighborhood of $10,000 and it is believed that 25 of this amount will be secured within a few minutes Tuesday.

Describing what an elevator is and why it should be built here, J. Cooper Stratton of the Burrell Engineering & Construction Company of Chicago, gives the following description of an elevator:

"A building built of concrete or wood whereby all kinds of grain can be received from the farmers in sacks or bulk, weighed, cleaned, graded or loaded into cars for shipment. The cost of same varies owing to capacity, machinery, equipment, etc. concrete costing more than wood.

"The power is either steam, oil, gasoline or motors.

"The machinery equipment used at all times are: Power, legs, dump and bins, scales (wagon, automatic) cleaner, sheller (in corn district), man lift, belts, buckets, boot, heads, and transmission machinery to run same; sprocketing, either wood or steel. All to be arranged so as to reduce the operation to a minimum cost.

"These houses are used as a collecting station where the farmer can bring his product to market in small lots, hold same until same can be shipped in carload lots.

"The up-to-date elevators require practically no manual labor, all being done by machinery, and one station can be run by one man even in harvest time. The farmer brings his grain to the elevator, drives upon a dump scale, weighs his wagon, his load is dumped, weighed back he drives away without getting off the wagon. The grain falls into the sink where it is spouted to the log, which carries same to the top and it is spouted anywhere the operator desires.

"The operator is the one who, after receiving the grain from the farmer, cleans, grades and puts the grain in the best market condition and disposes of same.

"Grain Elevator construction being a specialty of itself, it is preferable to call upon people who have made this their study, thereby saving oneself the troubles which occur from building with unskilled in this branch of construction. Also, as the elevator building is built to suit the site and community, a stock plan is not used."
