Winston Churchill, Forty Years Old, Trying to Maintain the Traditions of British Navy.

Winston Churchill, half an American, has just celebrated his fortieth the Belgians auccessfully when Antbirthday. On him as head of the werp was under siege. But lately admiralty has devolved the defense of the British Empire in the greatest the British people have unbounded war the world has known. Churchill has so far escaped criticism for the part he has played in the management of the war, with the exception Asking Too Much. A man rambled into a village cafe, selected a table and to! I the attending waiter to bring him a half duck. Fifteen minutes want by. Then another fifteen, and yet another. Finally the man at the table began to show symptoms of impatience.

"What can I do for you, sir?" asked the waiter, going over to the table in Chronicle-Telegraph.

FOLDERS

response to an imperative call.
c cafe, "What about my order?" demanded

OF A KIND AND QUALITY

RESULTS

Prompt Delivery

Satisfactory Service

Reasonable Prices

CATALOGS BOOKLETS STATIONERY

CALL US

TELEPHONES:

693-L and 321

We will cheerfully submit designs and estimates

The Anderson Intelligencer Advertising and Printing Anderson, S. C.

BINDING

RULING

BLANK BOOKS

THAT SECURES : :

PRINTING

A Peaceful Nation Unprepared for Peace.

Ida M. Tarbell is beginning in The Ida M. Tarbell is beginning in The American Magazine a new series of articles entitled "The Golden Rule in Business." In her article in the December number, entitled "Keeping Men at Work," she shows how careful planning and scientific management can provide steady employment for men in place of the seemingly necessary laying off of hundreds of men essary laying off of hundreds of men in critical times such as the present She cites many instances of business in the United States which are being operated on this principle. The introduction to her article follows:

"War thrusts a sure lance into a nation's weak spots, be that nation neu-tral or combatant. Hardly had the first sound of the European crash reached us last August when to every-body's lips sprang the horrified com-ment, 'And we without ships!' A peaceful nation unprepared for Peace!

"But closed seas were not the only weakness the European war disclosed in this country. As quickly we were face to face with a vast out-of-work throng—true it might be short-lived, but again it might not. The worst of it was we had no plan for handling the situation. If it had been necessary we could have promptly raised an army in an orderly, well-though-out fashin an orderly, well-though-out fash-ion. Individuals, states, the Federal government would have known the im-mediate and logical steps to take. But when it came to the greatest business of Peace in the time of calamity—keep ing men and women at work— nobody knew what to do, unless to contribute o a soup kitchen.

"There were employers without a sense that patriotism as well as policy demanded that their wheels should demanded that their wheels should run; there were communities that looked apathetically on the closing of factories, as if they had no urgent duty in the matter. States, for the most part, were helpless: so was the federal government. Thus it was revealed on the instant that there is in this country no organization for handling labor. It takes care of itself, groping hither and thither as instinct, rumor, hope, greed may call. When the demoralization of panic, disaster, war, comes it is the first to feel the pinch, for industry, like money, is a natural for industry, like money, is a natural coward. In times of trouble it seeks a hiding place."

"Gentlemen," began an innocent-faced old man as he approached a couple of men waiting on a corner for a car. "I was kicked by a cow a few weeks ago, and I find that my mem-weeks ago, and I find that my memory is not what it was. Perhaps you will answer questions."

"We will," was chorused, according to the Pittsburg Dispatch.

"If I hadn't been kicked by a cow, I shouldn't have to trouble you."

"Oh, no trouble at all."

"She kicked me in the back of the head."

"Too bad."
"She kicked with both heels

"Yes?"
"And it was two days later before come to."
"Yes, but the question you wanter

'Yes, the question," Sure it won't

"Yes, the question," Sure it won't bother you to answer?"
"Certainly it won't."
"Then gentlemen, for what reason do we celebrate Hallowe'en?"
The men looked down, and then looked up, and then looked at each other. Thus fer a long minute and then they turned away and left the man who had been kicked by a cow They couldn't answer his question.

POLEY CATHARTIC TABLETS

(he Majors (hristmas

HE major felt a vague sense of personal griev-ance. It was Christmas morning. Everything was most agreeable at the hotel. As he had distributed his customary gold pieces to the "bells," the telephone girls, the check-room boys, his waiter and the head waiter, and the charabermaid on bis floor; he felt oddly disturbed.

"Carter, my boy," he told the tall, gray-haired image in the mirror, "You're getting sentimental. You're thoroughly disappointed because there isn't a soul in the world who can call out a 'Merry Christmas' to you, and mean it from the bottom of his heart. You're like a boy with nothing in his stocking. I'm ashamed of you. sir; I am indeed."

Yet that didn't help matters. He wandered around the deserted hotel corridors in the morning feeling utterly lost. Nearly every one seemed to be going out to dinner to some place where he was urgently desired. Four times he strolled over to the deak and looked casually up at his box, but there were no mail and no presents for Maj. Robert Lee Carter.

The last time he had really decided to give up and ring up some business associate to take dinner with him at the hotel. But he saw a let-ter in his box, and the clerk handed him a curiously shaped parcel, rather bulky and oval. He took it up to his own rooms, and opened it with a funny little thrill of anticipation.

By George, he was wrong. There was somebody, he didn't know who it was, but there was somebody who had remembered him. The last wrapper fell off, and he stood staring down at a little homemade willow basket, filled with mistletce. A card on top read, "Love and Merry Christmas from Pam."

from Pam."
Pam? He remembered no Pam. He opened the letter for enlightenment, and as he read, his heavy gray cycbrows drew closer together; and every now and then he ejaculated,

"God bless my heart jand soul!"
"You won't remember me at all, but I'm Pamela Grayson, and my mother was your sister's 'aughter, so I'm your grandniece, e.g. Mother died about a year ago, just after we came north, and I have been here alone ever since. I didn't even know you were alive until cousin Florrie, of Carter's Landing, down home, wrote and told me to share this mistletce with you, for she had gathered it in the old oak grove where you used to go when you were a little boy. Here's wishing you a merry, merry Christ-mas, and I wish I knew you, because it does certainly get fearfully lone-some here in New York holiday time when you haven't any one of your

The telephone bell rang sharply just as the major was about to say "God bless my heart and soul" once ngain. But he lifted the receiver, and

Virginia. Now, instead of my joining ing in the oddest, happiest way. And he leaned back in his deep leather chair, and lit a cigar, and watched the smoke rings form overhead, and smiled up at them. He had four sissmiled up at them. He had four sisters. Pam's grandmother had been the youngest. And now somehow, they were all gone, as he thought, "the way of the roses," and he was alone. He had rather lost track of all the nieces and nephews and grand-nieces and grandnephews. Sentiment does not thrive in the New York atmosphere, yet as he looked at the letter, he telt an odd glow of pride, and he held the little hasket of mistletoe out at arm's length, smiling retrospectively. Many a time he had gone up to the old oak grove to gather it for his mother to decorate the great hall at Christmas. and now this little Pam—thell at Christmas. and now this littie Pam—

The major rose suddenly with quick intention. Five ministes later he was en his way up to the address in the lotter. Upstairs two flights he climbed, and tapped at the low top door with six modes; card:

"Pamela Grayson."
She stood at the casel with her back to him, a his blue apron on, and she was singing.

"Oh, holy town of Bethlehem,

How still we see thee He.

Above thy deep and dramines sleep

The silent stars go by."

The major stood at attention, but when she turned and caught slight 22 him, she gave a little car of joy.

"Uncle Boht How did you came as seen to me?"

Eh, but she was bonnie, thought the major approvingly; very much like her grandmother in her girlhood, soft brown bands of hair around her small head, and wistful, childish gray eyes. It took him about ten minutes to coax her into a "real" dress, as she said, and down into the waiting

And how fast she talked. There were years to catch up, she told him, and as long as there was only the two of them left in New York to uphold the pride of the Carters-

"There's one more, child," warned the major. "But he is very distantly connected, very. He is about your nineteenth cousin, but he is to dine with us, Ralph Carter."

Pam sat very still, and did not speak, looking straight ahead of her. "Ever hear of him?" asked the major.

"I just love his shadow," said Pam solemnly. "If it's the same one. I've tried and tried to paint pictures that would sell, and finally I coaxed an old dealer on the avenue to let one of my Virginia gardens stand in his window awhile. You know Aunt Annabelle's rose garden with the sun dial, and the old white coach house in the back? Well, it was snapped up by a Mr. Ralph Carter. And he wanted to know if I had more Virginia scenes. So I sent down the oak grove at sundown along in November, with a big orange harvest moon stealing over the edge of the hill, and he bought that. And now I'm painting the old fiseged walk under the grape arbor, with it all sunshiny, and Mammy Marthe Ann coming along from the outdoor kitchen with a big covered platter of fried chicken, and he's going to take that."

The major leaned back his head, laughing and shaking with pure en-joyment. Up on the Hudson, at Hastings, stood Raiph Carter's bachelor home, and he had made it almost a replica of the old one in Virginia.

at the Easel With Her Back to Him.

Successful in every way in New York, he had clung to the old southern traditions almost fiercely, this tall, lean, clear-eyed lawyer.

"And so he's been binging your pictures all over his walls," exclaimed the major. "God bless my heart and soul, child. This is certainly a merry Christmas for us all."

rigain. But he lifted the receiver, and smiled at the voice that answered his hail.

"Delighted, Ralph, delighted, my boy, but you see, I am going to have a young lady guest here to dinner with me, my grandniece, sir, from the major's reception that me, my grandniece, sir, from the major's reception that the distribution of the girl's project came to her. "You may have it at your own terms," she said impulsively. "Oh!" For a moment the girl work through the great hole.

"Delighted, Ralph, delighted, my boy, but you see, I am going to have a young lady guest here to dinner with me, my grandniece, sir, from the major's reception room and she wondered what this distinct the woman gasped, as the coormity of the girl's project came to her. "You may have it at your own terms," she said impulsively. "Oh!" For a moment the girl work they went through the great hole.

"Bix dollars!" the woman gasped, as the coormity of the girl's project came to her. "You may have it at your own terms," she said impulsively. "Oh!" For a moment the girl work through the great hole.

"The dinner was to be very select and private up in the major's reception to her." "You may have it at your own terms," she said impulsively. "Oh!" For a moment the girl work through the great hole.

"The dinner was to be very select and private up in the major's reception to her." "You may have it and gold corridors of the great hole." "Oh!" For a moment the girl work through the girl work through the girl work through the splendid red and gold corridors of the great hole.

"But the work through the splendid red and gold corridors of the great hole." "Oh!" For a moment the girl work through the splendid red and gold corridors of the great hole.

"But the work through the splendid red and gold corridors of the great hole." "Oh!" For a moment the girl work through the splendid red and gold corridors of the great hole.

"But the work through the splendid red and gold corridors of the great hole." "Oh!" For a moment the girl work through the splendid red and gol

He was all she had wanted him to you in your bachelor spartments, supposing you join us, and try and compensate to her for having a surely old chap for a dinner partner. Name's
Miss Pamela Grayson. Come right down."

Then he smiled, and kept on smiling in the oddest, happiest way. And

"You don't know how good it is to find some one of your very own," she said, when the major had gone out after the dinner was over.

after the dinner was over.

"Don't I?" said Raigh, smiling down at her. "I've put in about fourteen years up here, and only the major to give me a cousinly greating now and then. I'm mighty giad to find another one, even if she is a nine-teenth one. The major tells me he's going to take a house for you and himself."

"Why," Pain caught her breathquicaty. "I didn't know that."

"So I will see a great deal of you. I hope."

He stopped and looked into her syes. Someway they wavered under his gaze. The major's woice halled them.

"God bless my heart and sout, boy, ear." You see she's under the mistle-toe. I hung it there on pursone."

Ralph stooped, and presess a kiss on the warm, half-everted pink cheek while the major drank their health. "And to our next Christmas together, the little Pam, and you, my boy, and this old chap who'll never be lonely again."

"To aext Christmas," pledged Ralph. "Will you him me then, Pam."

WE YEST TO BE WATER

A Silber Tea Caddy By SOPHY F. GOULD

kinds were grouped attractively. There was little in the window to interest a mite of a girl earning a paltry $6 a week, yet of a sudden her eyes, a moment before so tired, lighted excitedly, and a casual observer might have noticed how exquisitely beautiful they were. The tired line of her mouth also relaxed, and hopefully she stepped closer to the plate glass and peered for a long, concentrated moment at a sliver tea caddy of quaint design. After a second's hesitation she opened the door and walked bravely into the little shop.

"The tea caddy?" she asked of the woman who greeted her inquiringly.
"How much is it?"

"The little silver one?" The woman looked her surprise, as she noted the shabby black coat and much worn skirt. "You wanted to buy it?" ahe asked kindly, for something in the girl's eyes made her know she was in earnest. "It is $25."

"Twenty-five dollars!" the girl gasped, and as suddenly as it Lad come the brightness left her eyes. "Twenty-five," she repeated. "I'm afraid I could never afford that." She gripped her pay envelope firmly and, turning, walked out of the shop. In her tiny room, as she cooked her neager dinner over the gas plate, and later, when lying wide awake in her narrow bed, she thought of the beautiful tea caddy. She thought until it became a cherished ideal, vested with wonderful scenes among the great people of the world.

The following day she neglected her lunch, and hurried to the shop to once more view the wonderful caddy.

When she entered the woman greeted her warmly, for the expression in her eyes had proved haunting to the her eyes had proved haunting to the woman all the past night.

"Did you really want to buy the caddy?" she asked, as she handed it to the girl, "for if you do--"

"I must buy it," she interrupted, as she took it reverently in her two hands. "Dut I can't pay the money all at once." She hesitated.

"Flow much could you pay?" The woman suddenly understood the girl's

"Perhaps we could come to

"I have $2 that I have saved, and I think I can spare 50 cents each week. I only make $6," she added, apologet-

"Six dollars!" the woman gasped,

"Oh!" For a moment the girl held given. it to her breast, then she handed the money without regret to the woman. E. WII money without regret to the woman. In the days that followed the woman became very fond of the girl, for she came often to gaze with awe upon the silver enddy of quaint design, and in the short visits the woman learned to know what a difference an ideal can make in a life. In watching the girl's love for the thing that kept her poorer than she need have been the woman found her own life broadening.

On Christmas eve a young man persistently tried to buy the caddy, until the woman finally told him the story of its sale. He listened in wonder, and then asked for the name of the girl, who seemed so great a marvel that he wanted his mother to see and help her.

help her.

The same evening after the young man had left, the girl made her final payment, and with a wild joy throbbing in her heart carried the tea caddy home, and with it a beautiful build hot holly, a festive touch from the younge.

She had pinched hard to save the so cents each week, but her reward was great, and worth the happiness the ideal had stways given her.

It was again Christmas eve, and a dainty woman, wrapped in a soft for cost, opened the door of the little shop, and with extended hand as ne to the woman. "Merry Chrismas!" she exclaimed, "Don't "ou remember me?" In the deep, windows even there was something familiar, and suddenly the woman throw her arms about the gir, and parting over her head expled the man.

"We have just been married," he explained. "By mother found her for me, and we wanted to come to thank you the wick, you have some."

D eliable

For every ache and pain is a reliable remedy. You can cure the difficulty if you only act in time and act with wisdom. A lazy, torpid, sluggish liver is, without a doubt, responsible for more aches adn pains than any other thing, for to it we trace constipation, biliousness, indigestion, headache, etc.

R. L. T.

the bottom of the difficulty-the liver -and form there strengthens the cafre system. A trial proves it.

50 cents and $1.00 per botle at your druggists.

Manufactured and Guaranteed by

Evans' Pharmacy

Condensed Passenger Schedule TEDMONT & NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY. Effective November 8th, 1914.

Arrivals-

Charleston & Western Carolina Railway

To and From the NORTH, SOUTH, EAST, WEST

Leaves: No. 22 . . . 6:00 A. M. No 6 ..... 3:35 P. M. Arrives:

No. 5 . . . . . 10:50 A. M. No. 21 .... 4:55 P. M. Information, Schedules, rates, etc., promptly

E. WILLIAMS, G. P. A Augusta, Ga. T. B. CURTIS, C. A., Anderson, S. C.

CHARLESTON-CHICAGO SLEEPER Through Pullman Sleeping Car Service

SOUTHERN RAILWAY Premier Carrier of the South Effective Sunday, November 22nd, 1914. Sleeper handled on CABOLINA SPECIAL Nes. 27 and 28.

S a. m. Lv. Garleston Ar. 9:40 p. m. 2:55 p. m. Lv Coumbia Ar 4:45 p. m. 4:36 p. m. Lv Spartanburg Ar 1:45 pm 7:30 p. m. Lv Asheville Ar 9:20 a m. 2:05 a. m. Lv Knoxville Lv 5:10 a. m.

13:05 a. m. Lv Knoxville Lv 5:10 a. m.
16:55 a. m. Ar Chicinnati Lv 6:35 a m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 8:55 a. m.
9:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 9:10 p.
15 d. m. Ar Chicago Lv 9:10 p.
16:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 9:10 p.
16:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 9:10 p.
16:00 p. m. Ar Chicago Lv 9:10 p.
17 p. M. Greenville, 8
17 p. A. Greenville, 8
18 p. M. C. or W. E. McGee, A. G. P. A. Columbia, 2. C.