

LAWMAKERS OF SOUTH CAROLINA

PART OF MESSAGE IS STRICKEN OUT.—COMMITTEE REPORTS TO SENATE.

MANY BILLS INTRODUCED

The Judiciary Committee Considers Only Legislative Matters in Controversy Between Senator Tillman and Governor Bleas.

Senate—Monday.

An executive session of 15 minutes on Spartanburg appointments opened the senate's session Monday night. The calendar was cleared of uncompleted matters. Among the new bills introduced was one by Senator Laney, Senator Banks and Senator Beaumgard, the senate committee appointed to investigate the needs of the State Hospital for the insane, providing for the sale of the present hospital and its removal to the State Park.

House—Monday.

A substitute bill for the several measures providing for changing the primary law was reported in the house Monday. The substitute measure will have the centre of the stage when the house takes up the matter of changing the primary law.

Senate—Tuesday.

The Christensen bill to require the filing of reports by teachers, principals and superintendents of schools was passed after being amended and after considerable debate. Senator Appel led a fight against a section of the measure requiring private schools to return reports, which resulted in a compromise.

House—Tuesday.

By two votes the house killed the bill to require editors of newspapers and periodicals published in South Carolina to throw open the columns of their journals on demand of any and every one who considered that anything appeared therein had reflected on his character or standing in the community and providing a penalty of a fine and $500 and imprisonment for 30 days for failure to print free any communication which did not contain obscene language from the person who took the trouble to write it and send it to the editor.

Senate—Wednesday.

By a vote of 25 to 14, which came as a test motion, the senate passed to a third reading the Sinker bill, transferring the property of the Medical College of South Carolina to the state and establishing a state medical college, following opposition mainly on the part of the finance committee on financial grounds, and after a spirited debate. The bill had already passed the house.

House—Wednesday.

Hazing in any college in South Carolina will become a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $50 or imprisonment for not longer than 30 days if the senate passes the bill which the house sent to third reading after a debate.

warehouse bill and continued it until next session.

Mr. McQueen of Marlboro spoke in favor of his measure, drawn with a view to obviating the flaws found by the supreme court in a similar act passed by the general assembly in 1912. A companion bill, introduced by Senator McLaurin, is pending in the senate.

Senate—Thursday.

Thursday's sessions of the senate were of a tentative nature. Nothing, so far as bills are concerned, was definitely decided upon. The warehouse bill was continued until next year at this morning's session; the Sinker medical college bill passed the body, but the author moved to reconsider the vote in order to substitute the house bill later; and other bills were debated.

House—Thursday.

The house passed the appropriation bill to third reading, after consuming the major portion of the morning and all the night session in considering it. Relatively few changes were made in the bill by the house.

House—Friday.

The Weston bill to allow the city of Columbia to execute a mortgage of the South Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical society was passed over the governor's head, this being found to be the only advisable way of settling the matter in view of the governor's recall of his veto in the first place.

Senate—Friday.

The Weston bill to allow the city of Columbia to execute a mortgage of the South Carolina Agricultural and Mechanical society was passed over the governor's head, this being found to be the only advisable way of settling the matter in view of the governor's recall of his veto in the first place.

House—Friday.

The house, by a vote of 98 to 6 passed over the veto of the governor the act to authorize the State Agricultural and Mechanical society to execute a mortgage on its property to the city of Columbia to secure certain bonds.

Senate—Saturday.

The judiciary committee of the senate made its report on the controversy which early in the session arose between the governor and Senator Tillman. The committee recommended that so much of the governor's message on Senator Tillman and the press as did not pertain to legislative matters be stricken out and recommended further, that the senator's report in reply to the governor be not printed in the journal.

Senate—Saturday.

The Weston bill authorizing the railroad commission to employ an inspector at a salary of $1,800 and $400 for traveling expenses to inspect the roadbeds, rolling stock and general equipment of the railroads operating in South Carolina was passed to a third reading.

House—Saturday.

The house received a special message from the governor, which said that the favorably reported claim of James Henry Rice for $1,900 for services as chief game warden should not be paid.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Roper-Keith.

One of the most enjoyable occasions that has occurred in the Orlenoy section for some time was the marriage of Mr. G. M. Keith to Miss Olive Roper on February 14, 1913.

About 2 o'clock p. m. a few of the most intimate friends of the bride and groom began to assemble at the home of the bride's parents. At 2:25 to the sweet strains of a wedding march rendered by Miss Frances Jones, the happy couple were ushered into the hymeneal altar preceded by Mr. Earle Keith, Miss Irene Hendricks, Mr. W. T. Chastain, Miss Bessie Jones, Mr. James Anderson and Miss Alma Jones. In the presence of the above named couples and the immediate family of the bride's parents, the happy couple were placed in the center of the altar. Over them hung a large bell of evergreen and white artificial flowers. Rev. W. C. Seaborn then in his most graceful manner performed the ceremony which joined Mr. Keith and Miss Roper into the holy bonds of matrimony. Immediately after the ceremony the guests were ushered into the dining room where the table was loaded with all kinds of delicious refreshments. At 4 p. m. the happy couple, amid a shower of rice and old shoes, left for the home of the groom's parents, where a grand reception awaited them. The bride is a charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Roper. The groom is an accomplished son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. M. Keith. The groom is to be congratulated on winning such a fair helpmeet and the writer joins with their many friends in wishing them a long and happy life.

CORN SHOW CLOSES

FIFTH NATIONAL CORN EXPOSITION IS A SUCCESS FROM EVERY VIEWPOINT.

OF GREAT VALUE TO SOUTH

Many Exhibits Showing The Progress of Rural Life Development—How It Will Help Farmers of South Carolina—Exposition School.

Columbia. — After affording the farmers of the state a three weeks' liberal education, the fifth National Corn Exposition closed its doors.

From every viewpoint the exposition must be considered as a success. The attendance was most gratifying and the advertisement given South Carolina, by the fact that the biggest agricultural exposition in the country was held within her confines, can not be measured in terms of dollars and cents.

But the most permanent good done the state was the awakening of the farmers of South Carolina to a realization of what systematic and scientific agricultural methods can accomplish, and the theories demonstrated as practicable at the Corn Exposition will doubtless be incorporated into the internal economy of thousands of this state who owe their living directly to the soil.

For while nominally a "corn exposition," everything appertaining to modern agriculture had a place in the building. South Carolina, too long a one-crop state, was given a chance to perceive what diversification of crops really means.

The exhibits were of the highest order, 24 states sending the choicest products of their fields for the inspection of the exposition visitors. The exhibit of the United States government of agriculture was the most elaborate ever sent out by the government.

The importance of the exposition was realized by the leading men of the nation, and its great aid in furthering the cause of scientific agriculture was recognized in the visit of James Wilson, secretary of the agriculture of the United States, and of the entire agricultural committee of the national house of representatives.

Industries allied to farming held important conferences in Columbia during the term of the exposition. The American Breeders' Association held its annual convention in LeConte College at the University, the American Berkshire congress convened at Columbia and the annual meeting of the South Carolina Live Stock Association was held in connection with the exposition. The show of the South Carolina Poultry Association was held here.

The midwinter conference of the National Farmers' Union was attended by President C. E. Barrett and other officials from every state in the South.

The National Corn Exposition probably marked the greatest gathering of men and women in the United States who are working for the betterment of agricultural conditions and the improvement of rural community life.

Several hundred young boys and girls, members of the corn clubs and tomato clubs, who had won prizes for proficiency in agriculture in 12 Southern States, were the guests of the exposition during the first week. These young prize winners attended the exposition school of instruction and were taught lessons that will be invaluable to them in their after life.

A charter has been issued to the Johnsville Hardware Company with a capital of $10,000. The officers are: S. B. Poston, president; C. C. Richardson, vice president; W. P. Generette, secretary, and Arthur Rogers, treasurer.

Compulsory Education

Last Wednesday was a red letter day in Columbia for Pickens county. One of our representatives in the legislature put thru a compulsory education bill—the first in the history of the state, and one that was thought to be impossible. But Mr. McCravy, with energy and ability, won for the state and county a victory which will grow brighter as the years go by.

This is considered the most important piece of legislation in South Carolina in several years, and it is thought will pass the senate.

A dispatch from Columbia says: "Representative McCravy is receiving many letters of congratulations from all sections of the state upon the passage of his compulsory education measure. He made a hard and able fight for the measure."
