

New Movie Camera and Projector Invented

John P. Berggren has invented and George K. Spoor of Chicago is developing a "natural vision, life size, third dimension" camera and projector for the movies that it is believed will do away with eye-strain and distortion. Only natural acting and real settings can be used. At left are Mr. Spoor, Mr. Berggren and Betty Byron examining the camera. At right, part of the projector.

Olar School Closes Successful Session

Olar, June 7.—One of the most successful years in the history of the Olar public school came to a close Thursday night when 13, eight boys and five girls, received State high school diplomas.

The address to the graduates was made by Dr. John G. Clinkscales of Wofford college. Dr. Clinkscales used as his subject "The Boy and His Pup." A pup, says Dr. Clinkscales, is born into the world a perfect animal with teeth, claws and ability to care for itself in a large measure and in a few months time it is grown, while a boy is born into the world a mere bundle of possibilities absolutely dependent upon mother, father and teacher to make the man.

Dr. Clinkscales stressed the importance of keeping in mind man's superiority over the lower animals and called upon the graduates to use this power, the mind, soul, education, to the glorification of God and benefit of humanity.

The auditorium was filled to overflowing and despite the warm weather, the audience listened attentively to the sound advice of the speaker, sprinkled throughout with masterful eloquence and rich Irish wit.

R. Fair Goodwin spoke briefly upon the school's accomplishments and its future needs.

The Rev. J. A. Cave read the list of pupils making the honor roll during the school year, and awarded a number of block letters and stars to members of the athletic teams. The only medal offered by the school was won by Ally Gray of the graduating class. J. Carl Kears, of Bamberg, after some very appropriate remarks presented diplomas to the following: Judson Browning, Myrtle Barker, Willard Barker, James Brant, B. B. Cave, Gary Chitty, Estelle Collins, Teddy Bennett, Ally Gray, Louise Kears, Agnes Mobley, Lester Williams and William Morris.

The Barnwell People-Sentinel.

Best Wishes for Success
The editor of The Barnwell People-Sentinel acknowledges the following letter from the Epes-Fitzgerald Paper Co., of Columbia:

"We note with interest in today's 'State' that you have taken over the 'Sentinel' and we write this letter to wish you much success in the new enterprise. If at any time we can be of service to you please do not hesitate to call on us."

Better Able to Serve.

From The Williston Way.
At a meeting of the stockholders of the Barnwell Sentinel last Saturday morning, an offer of B. P. Davies, Editor and Publisher of The Barnwell People was accepted and henceforth the two papers will be combined and published by Mr. Davies under the title of The Barnwell People-Sentinel.

Mr. Davies purchased the plant, good will, subscription list, etc. of the Sentinel, which is the oldest paper in Barnwell County, having been established in 1852. The People was established by the late Major John W. Holmes in 1877 and upon his death was purchased by the present editor and owner, who was associated with Major Holmes.

The consolidation of the People and Sentinel is carrying out the practise in a number of towns where there are two papers when one can better serve all parties. This was recently done in Edgefield where the Advertiser purchased the Chronicle.

The Barnwell consolidation leaves only two Barnwell County papers, both of which should be better able to serve the interests of the county but at the same time there will be regret at the passing of a paper with the splendid history of The Sentinel. That the name has been preserved in the new paper is good news to the friends of The Sentinel which under Major Boyd Cole and more recently under the direction of Judge John K. Snelling worked hard for the upbuilding of Barnwell County.

For a while The Sentinel was edited by Dr. W. M. Jones and later had in Miss Kate Simms the only woman editor of a paper in this state.

Unfair Competition.

Clothing merchants in nearly every city and town in the country are subjected to a form of unfair competition from which they and the public should be protected. Certain clothing manufacturers, who use the cheapest materials and employ the cheapest labor, send salesmen through the country to sell clothing by samples. The clothing seldom comes up to the samples, and the fit is seldom if ever what it should be, but the people who buy from the traveling salesmen are helpless for by the time the clothes are delivered the salesman has gone to new fields. The swindle is an old one and a plain one, yet hundreds and thousands of persons are victimized by it every year. Local merchants are permanent.

Barnwell, S. C.

They pay taxes on their stocks of goods and they pay license taxes for the privileges of doing business. Why does not the cities and towns that tax them also give them and the public protection against the swindlers?

A simple method would be to require the traveling gentry who take orders for clothing for the sweat-shop manufacturers to at least give bond in sufficient amount to make good any legitimate claims on account of misrepresentations of defect in goods or workmanship. If this were done this particular form of fleecing the simple-minded soon be suppressed.—The Spartanburg Sun.
