

Lake That Was Made by the Sliding of a Mountain

Photograph shows the great Gros Ventre lake, in Wyoming, formed when part of Sheep mountain, at the right, crashed into the Gros Ventre river canyon from the south, damming it up to a depth of nearly three hundred feet and backing the river up for nearly seven miles.

OVER ONE HUNDRED DAYS WITHOUT RAIN

The siege of dry weather experienced by the farmers in some sections of Barnwell and Allendale Counties this summer has caused a good bit of dry weather talk and the following from a Greenwood paper should be of interest here:

The present dry spell is a piker compared to droughts in years of long ago according to figures in 1893 by a newspaper, a clipping from which was furnished the Index Journal by Mrs. R. M. Fuller. The clipping, supposedly from an Abbeville or Augusta paper, was handed down in the Britt family by James E. Britt of the McCormick section who died in 1886.

Under the heading "Dry Spells," the paper enumerates droughts from 1621 to 1883 and points out the year 1762 as the driest that ever occurred in America when no rain fell from the first day of May to the first of September making 123 days without rain.

The old newspaper report follows in full:

Dry Spells—Dry spells are all the talk now. Those who think that the dry spell, in every summer is the longest ever known will do well to read the following:

In the summer of 1621, 24 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1657, 75 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1630, 41 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1662, 80 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1674, 45 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1688, 81 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1694, 62 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1705, 40 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1715, 46 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1728, 61 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1730, 92 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1741, 72 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1749, 108 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1755, 42 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1762, 123 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1773, 50 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1791, 82 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1802, 23 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1812, 28 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1856, 24 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1871, 42 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1875, 26 days in succession without rain.

In the summer of 1876, 26 days in succession without rain.

It will be seen that the longest drought that ever occurred in America was in the summer of 1762. No rain fell from the first of May to the first of September, making 123 days without rain. Many of the inhabitants sent to England for hay and grain. This year 56 days have elapsed between rains and a little sprinkling only spoiled a record of 68 days.

GREENVILLE FIREMAN COMES OUT FOR KARNAK

"I've Only Taken Two Bottles Of This Wonderful Medicine, But It's Already Made A New Man Of Me," Says Davis.

"When I think of the years that I was in misery from that miserable stomach trouble with gas, heartburn and that burning sensation all through my intestines, and then to have two bottles of this Karnak make me feel like a well man, I could almost shout for joy," says Floyd Davis, popular Greenville, S. C., fireman, of Fire Dept. No. 2.

"It used to be that right after eating I would bloat up and I would feel like I was on fire inside and was so miserable I didn't want to do a thing but lie down.

"I had a terrible bad case of constipation, too, and this spring I began to get in a bad rundown condition, with severe attacks of headaches. Why, before I began taking Karnak I had headache every day for two weeks.

"A friend recommended Karnak so highly I started taking it. I took Karnak Pills, too. And say, that indigestion and constipation just faded away.

"Why, I don't have the slightest touch of stomach trouble, indigestion, gas bloating, heartburn, or constipation now, and I don't know what a headache is. I just seem to be built up into a brand new man and I am gaining weight steadily and sleeping like I did when I was a boy.

"No sir, nobody ever suffered with stomach trouble more than I, and after the way this Karnak brought me relief and ended that miserable suffering I know it's a real medicine."

Karnak is sold in Barnwell exclusively by Mace & Deason; and by the leading druggist in every town.
