To Our Young Men.

Have you ever asked yourselves the question, "What are we doing towards discharging our duty to the State?" If you have, in how many instances have the answers produced pleasing sensations? Alas! we judge but in a few. There are many young men in the State who do not regard that they owe any duty to the Commonwealth, and, rather, believe that everything—the peace, harmony and stability of government—is of force simply for their pleasure and protection. They are willing to take no step, perform no labor for the advancement of the interests of the country, unless they are paid for it. And yet week after week they are willing to idle away their time, loafing around bar rooms and places of dissipation, depriving the few who are not drones in the busy hive of the pleasure of pursuing their avocations—a nuisance to every man who has anything to do and a disgrace to themselves and family. How much better it would be for such men to settle upon some occupation in life and persistently follow it to the end. Not only would they be benefited in health and in conscience, but, instead of being only consumers they would soon reach the dignity of producers, and so, with credit to themselves and advantage to the community, help to build up the country.

There is no walk of life, in the South, in which labor and brains are not needed. The preacher, the farmer, the lawyer, the doctor, all would be vastly improved by a little more learning and attention to duty and labor in their respective callings. Some one of these walks must be selected by every man in our country, and in no one of them are ignorance and idleness at a premium for no one of them will a man be fitted if he wastes the precious years of his golden youth in idle and vicious habits, such as liquor drinking, card playing and so forth. Dissipation ruins more young men and is a greater calamity to the country than disease has ever been. There are many young men who are not addicted to liquor drinking or card playing, that are as much given to idle and vagrant habits as their less sober brethren. This last character of dissipation generally finds expression in a most elaborate devotion to the fairer sex. Now, while we are an ardent admirer of the sex, while we believe that from a moral standpoint men are as pignies by comparison with the better half of creation, and while we hold that men are improved by contact with the ladies, we do earnestly protest against this constant and seemingly purposeless, intercourse between the sexes. Under our present changed circumstances young men and women have a great deal of work to do, and they are not able, after being up until eleven and twelve o'clock for several consecutive nights, to discharge their duties properly without injury to themselves. Somebody has said that it is better for a man to eat two meals a day and have a full night's rest than to lose any considerable portion of his sleep and eat a half dozen times in the twenty-four hours.

South Carolina, in all her glorious history, has never needed the intelligent services of her sons more than now. The ignorance in our country, which is one of the consequences of the social and political disruption we have just passed through, is frightful to contemplate, and while Carolina's sons are as ardent in their patriotism, as eager in their anxiety to serve her as in days of yore they lack that intelligent direction they once possessed. Everything rests on the shoulders of the young men. A great responsibility is upon them, which is every day growing in weight and importance. If the young men fall in their duty the white plume of proud superiority gallant old South Carolina has ever worn will lower before those of her sister States. Young men, we say go to work! Let no idle inclinations seduce you from the path of duty! Do your work well and do it proudly, and one of these days, when Carolina calls upon you, in the councils and in the field you will surely meet with your reward—that reward all men receive who have ever held duty to their State to be of paramount importance.

REVEREND OAKMAN.—From Charleston we receive the sad intelligence of the death of this estimable gentleman which occurred on Sunday night, 14th inst., after a protracted illness. We know of no man whose loss will be more keenly felt or sincerely deplored by his friends. In the death of Mr. OAKMAN South Carolina has lost one of her purest patriots, and society one of its most estimable members. Mr. OAKMAN leaves a wife and several children to mourn his loss, who, in the dark hour of their affliction, have the warm sympathy of all to whom the deceased was known.

NATIONAL AND STATE NEWS.

It is said that ex-Secretary Bristow will be Minister to England.

The True Southern favors the repudiation of the larger portion of our public debt.

In the last four years the peanut crop in the United States aggregated 3,329,000 bushels.

The recent election in Ohio resulted in a democratic victory. This means another democratic Senator in Congress in the stead of Stanley Matthews.

The hearing of the return to the writ of habeas corpus in Patterson's case was set for yesterday before Judge Humphrey's. Attorney-General Conner left Charleston on Saturday night for Washington to represent the State.

It now transpires that Gen. John M. Harlan, the leader of the republican party in Kentucky, but said to be an able lawyer and a man of unblemished character, will be appointed to fill the vacancy on the United States Supreme Bench.

Yellow fever has been raging in Beaufort for the past month, but the latest accounts seem to indicate a decrease in the ravages of the fearful malady. Mr. Center, a son-in-law of Mr. C. C. Cooper of Graham's has fallen a victim to the fever.

Messrs. E. R. Allen and L. B. O'Brien, of Allendale, engaged in a personal altercation a few nights ago, in which, it is reported, the latter was worsted. Mr. O'Brien then challenged Mr. Allen to fight a duel, which, being promptly accepted, the two went to Augusta for the purpose of carrying out this intention. Arriving at Augusta both were arrested and placed under bonds to keep the peace.

Samuel J. Randall, of Pennsylvania, was nominated by the democratic caucus on Saturday evening last for Speaker of the House of Representatives in Congress, his name being presented to the caucus by Hon. A. H. Stephens of Georgia. The indications are that the more extreme republicans will attempt to organize a strong opposition to Hayes' administration, and endeavor to do all they can to hamper him. It is not likely, however, that they will succeed in their nefarious designs.

N. G. Parker, at one time State Treasurer, was arrested in New Jersey on Saturday last under a requisition from Governor Hampton, and is now in Columbia to answer for his past conduct. Nash, the black Senator from Richmond, has become so much embarrassed by the action of the Investigating Committee that he has thought it advisable to resign his seat in the Senate, turn State's evidence and return about $6,000 of his stealings to the State. Nash is the dusky coon who pretended that he was offered and refused a bribe of $100,000 to vote for Tilden. Nash is of a witty turn of mind and no doubt meant the assertion as a huge joke.

A PLAIN TALK WITH FARMERS.

Their Advantages and Opportunities.

IDLEWILDE, BARNWELL CO., OCT. 12.

Editors of The People:

With your permission I wish to ask a few questions for the consideration of the farmers of our county.

The laboring part of the people, or farmers, if you please, have the greater part of the burthens of taxation to bear. The manufacturer, the merchant, the banker add their insurance and taxes to the price of their wares, and when the farmer buys them he pays their taxes. The man who borrows the banker's money pays the taxes for the banker. Can the farmer add his taxes to the price of his produce? No. He has to take what he can get, let it be much or little, while every acre of the farm, every horse, calf, pig and lamb is listed for taxation; no smuggling or hiding property from the Assessor on the farm. Other occupations can, and I believe do escape from paying their just proportion of taxes. Can these things be remedied? If the farmers of South Carolina would turn their attention to these matters they could bring about a reformation that would save millions of dollars to the people. Let us unite upon some plan and move forward instead of wasting our time in discussing partisan questions that result in putting this or that lawyer, doctor, merchant or loafer in office. Let us elect men who know what a dollar is worth by the drops of sweat that are lost in earning it. What do the farmers want to accomplish? All this. Strength and knowledge. Low shall they be gained? By combination. How knowledge? By personal observation and study, by consulting together and by reading the experience and observation of other men. How shall they combine? In any way that will bring their united strength to bear to resist common evils and to gain common benefits. There is already a powerful organization, the Patrons of Husbandry, which can be made to be all and to do all that we can ask of any organization.

The order is a mighty engine and it only needs fire and wise direction to make it accomplish what we desire. In what way does this order assist the farmers? It unites together those who have common interest, it gives them opportunity for consultation; it makes friends and co-workers of those who otherwise were strangers. What should the farmers wish to know? All that pertains to their business; all that pertains to their duties as men and citizens. Where shall this instruction be sought? From many sources; but I have found the Grange the best of all. Every farmer should be a Patron and take at least one good agricultural paper or magazine. How much does a good farmer's paper cost? From three to five cents a week. How much reading matter does it contain? The equivalent of a hundred pages of an ordinary book. Every farmer, not only for the enlightenment and recreation of himself and family ought to take one or more, but to protect him from sharpers. These are hard times. Is it good economy to be ignorant? No.

LUKE.

Sunday in Williston.

[From Our Regular Correspondent.]

Messrs. Editors of The People:

Sancho Panza said, "blessed be the man who first invented sleep." I say "blessed, thrice blessed be he who gave us Sunday."

And such a Sunday as this, the 14th of October, the beginning of our glorious Indian Summer, that "later Spring beyond recall."

This day should be marked with a white stone for many reasons; the principal one being the rare intellectual and spiritual feast, given us by our beloved and revered pastor, Rev. Lucius Outberr, preparatory to administering the Lord's Supper to those members of this and other churches of the same faith in good standing who felt their need. The service was begun by the singing of the 617th hymn by the choir and congregation, softening minds and hearts, opening a way into our cold hearts for that earnest, humble, fervid petition that rose for those new and all untried converts, and O blessed charity! for those who have so resolutely closed their hearts to the stirring, loving appeals made them to "come out on the Lord's side."

The text was the first clause of the 10th verse, 2nd chapter of Paul's Epistle to the Colossians: "And ye are complete in him," the thought being divided into two grand heads. First, the nature of the union existing between Christians and their Saviour; second, the completeness of that union. I most sincerely wish I could give you a few of the leading thoughts that flowed with such earnest eloquence, and though both time and space forbid lengthened description, I must transcribe some so far as to repeat one, and it is a striking one and fraught with deepest interest to every Christian heart, namely: That often, very often, our spiritual starvation and want of that joy which is not only our inclination but our duty, should prompt us to have in that sacred union with our Saviour; closer than parent and child, closer than bride and bridegroom, closer, dearer than any tie our earthly mind can grasp, is that we do not seem to realize the grand and perfect completeness of it.

"Not Heaven is gone, but we are blind with tears. Grouping our way along the downward slope of years."

Our little church is sadly in need of some repairs, which the ladies of the congregation propose to have made. To raise the necessary funds they intend to give an entertainment and hot supper about the first of November, to which we, on our own responsibility, extend you a most cordial invitation, and promise to do all in our power to make it pleasant for you, Messrs. Editors.

This is a Sunday letter, but next week look out for a real lively, rattling, business letter, "Deo volente." W is so full of life and so much going on for a country correspondent to say that I have to "on breaks" to keep myself from transgressing. Good bye till then.

Sprara.
