The People and the Sentinel.

We have already declared that THE PEOPLE was not established and would not be conducted in a spirit of hostility to the Sentinel. Our course has shown that we were sincere in making that assertion. Notwithstanding our disclaimer, the Sentinel, in its last issue, repeats the charge that this paper is the ring organ, fomenting disturbances, and upon the statement made by itself some weeks ago, that unpleasant personal relations existed between its editor and some of the two of the staff and stockholders of this paper. Now, the great majority, if not the entire number of our stockholders, comprising some of the most estimable citizens of the county, feel no interest and take no part in matters of this nature, and they do not regard themselves as bound by or responsible for any utterances of a hostile character that may have been made by individuals. They do think that they have the same right to be interested in the publication of a paper that they have to engage in mercantile or agricultural pursuits. We do not desire or intend to enter into a newspaper war with our neighbor; we have other work to do. But we do propose to lay the whole situation, as we understand it, before the public, submitting ourselves to its decision, but not bowing to the arbitrary restriction of the Sentinel. With the exception of a brief interval, that journal has been for more than twenty-five years the official organ of the county. It has, therefore, grown to consider itself entitled by prescriptive right to all the public printing, and naturally considers any interference with the revenues it has derived from such a source as a trespass upon vested privileges. The law imperatively requires, in certain cases, the publication of such legal proceedings as are necessary for the information of citizens and the protection of their rights, and it prescribes the fees to be paid for such legal advertisements. The Sentinel, as we are informed, refused to accept the charges laid down in the fee bill as adequate compensation for its services. As a private enterprise it placed its own estimate of value upon its labor and received larger fees than are authorized by law. A comparison of the charges laid down in the fee bill with the schedule of rates adopted by the Sentinel last summer and disseminated in circular form among the lawyers and officials of the county will furnish convincing proof that the frequent complaints of its extravagant charges, made by people who were at its mercy, were well founded. If any one interested in this matter will examine the record of past indebtedness of this county it will be found that the claims of that paper against the county were, in a majority of cases, in excess of the legal rates. We do not deny the right of the Sentinel to make any charge it may see proper, but it is our conviction that the true interests of every community are opposed to monopolies in any and all pursuits and professions. We publish such official advertising as is given to us at legal rates, which barely pay expenses. Such advertisements as are of general interest and given to the Sentinel we publish for nothing but the benefit of our readers. We do not complain that it receives pay for the advertising that it gives to it. That journal, however, while exacting pay for its special public advertising, offers to insert the advertisements of the Sheriff and Probate Judge free of charge, and complains that we receive pay for publishing them. Now the animals of the Sentinel towards us is shown in the offers it makes, and the intention of that paper is so plain that it is hardly necessary to point attention to it. That paper hopes to raise a storm that will compel the public officers to withdraw their patronage and countenance from us, and expects that we will, in consequence, die of financial weakness while it is yet morning. If the Sentinel could attend the funeral of THE PEOPLE it would be happy, for it would have no rival, the golden days of its monopoly would return, it could adopt and circulate another schedule of rates which the people would be obliged to pay and which would perhaps compensate that journal for its temporary loss. But, in all candor, we assure our neighbor that we are in good health and expect to live many years and work shoulder to shoulder with him in promoting all worthy enterprises. So far from injuring the Sentinel we are gratified to know that it is now a better paper than it has ever been, and for its improvement we claim some small share of credit. We even have hopes that, if our neighbor will let us alone, and devotes himself assiduously to the duties of his profession, he will after a few years of additional experience succeed in making a good paper of the Sentinel. Let us have peace between the hatchet, smoke the pipe of peace and labor to give to the banner county two of the best newspapers in Radical Rasals.

At the close of the extra session of 1875 an undrawn surplus of $4000 for legislative expenses remained in the State Treasury. Cardozo then treasurer, proposed that he with S. F. Lee, GRAVES, WOODRUFF and JONES should draw and divide the amount. Woodruff prepared a certificate in the name of G. L. FRANKFORT, a fictitious person intended to represent Cardozo. The certificate was signed, the money drawn and divided as proposed by Cardozo. Upon a charge of conspiracy to rob the State founded on this statement of facts Cardozo was prosecuted. Lee, WOODRUFF and JONES turned State's evidence, GRAVES having left for parts unknown. The case was tried before Judge Townsend, at Columbia, and the hearing occupied some five or six days. A jury of five white and seven colored men brought in a verdict of guilty. The case will probably be carried to the Supreme Court on exceptions. The fact, however, that a jury composed of democrats and republicans has found Cardozo, who was Chamberlain's right hand man, guilty is conclusive proof that half the tally of radical corruption has not been told, and gives us hope that DANIEL will soon come to judgment.
Congressman SMALLS has changed his opinion of Judge Townsend and the average colored juror since Cardozo's conviction. He voted for the judge and the colored man voted for SMALLS, but SMALLS is not willing to be tried before such a court on the charge of accepting a bribe from PATTERSON. He thinks perhaps that he is still important as a member of the board of State canvassers was last winter. He may have been a bad pilot in the past but we think he will go into dry dock before he gets to sea again.
Since writing the above the jury in the SMALLS case have brought in a verdict of "guilty."

National and State News.
The Richard grand jury found a true bill against Whittemore.
Col. J. F. Treutlen is Chief Constable. Col. Butler having resigned.
Daniel W. Voorhees, democrat, succeeds Morton as Senator from Indiana.
The 29th Inst. has been appointed by the President as Thanksgiving day.
Twenty-five colored ex-members of the Legislature are ready to swear that they were bribed to vote for John J. Patterson as United States Senator.
The State Fair now in progress is to be a success. The attendance is very large. Barwell has sent up a goodly delegation. Gen. Bamberg, the handsomest married man in our county, commended the military parade.
Col. John H. Kinsler is the democratic nominee for the Richard Senate seat, vacated by Beverly Nash. Corwin of Newberry and Gaillard of Charleston, radical Senators, have resigned. So has Minor, the Representative who carried his trade into politics and with his jack play-in shaved Whipper out of his fortune one night.
In the elections held last week the democrats carried New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia and Mississippi. The republicans carried Massachusetts, Connecticut, Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota, Kansas and Nebraska. In New York the democrats elect State officers while the republicans get control of the General Assembly.

In Congress the bill to make the silver dollar a legal tender for debt has passed the House of Representatives and will probably pass the Senate without serious opposition. The army appropriation bill makes provision for 22,000 men, 5,000 less than were provided for in the last bill. Representative Finley has introduced a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution to the effect that the President and Vice-President shall be elected by a direct vote of the people. Gen. M. C. Butler is stopping at 1215 F street, and Col. D. Wyatt Allen and John H. Everts at 621 F street, Washington. Direct letters to them at those numbers if you have occasion to write to them.

Blackville Notes.
Well, the great show has been to town and gone, leaving behind them dim panoramic memories of spotted diamonds, spangled women, calico horses, seeds of disease and germs of immorality, which in future will bear fruit of remorse and regret if nothing more dreadful, carrying with them their own plunder of red wagons, gilded chariots, humped-back ox and other animals, and enough of the people's money to have made our county fair a certain success, educated a whole batch of children or laid the foundation of an immigration society. But our people seem to like best to send their money as far away as possible and consequently on the 7th they were here from all parts, and the streets swarmed with all ages and sexes of every-eyed Africans, anxious to see the party they will have when they go to Liberia. They looked long and anxiously for the famous "flag-jack-tree," but that is a wonder yet to be added to Mr. Cole's African curiosities. The show was wonderfully well patronized, and although a great many more wondrous were shown on the pictures than under the canvas, yet of course there was enough to elicit the admiration of the "hot fellow" and was quite splendid "ad captivandum vulgum." There was also the inevitable "side show," with the fat woman, the hairy Circassian girl with the big snake and that "side show non" of all "side shows," a sharp swindler. He had his decoy and several of those who did not "know how" was themselves "hown" found out by a bitter lesson of experience. There was any quantity of whisky sold and drunk; two or three "scrimmages" among the drunken, a little blood shed, but nothing serious; six or eight matches kept busy, the guard-house filled up, and an interesting and protracted Mayor's court that night. Thus ended the day of the "big show," thus which, was excepted, nothing more deplorable ever earned any country. May the one on the 7th long be the last.

On Friday night last the dwelling of Mr. D. P. Baldwin, a jeweller of this place, was burglarized. The thief entered the bedroom of Mr. Baldwin where he and his wife were sleeping, and took from under the bed a small trunk in which Mr. B. usually packed away all the watches and valuable jewelry which he had on hand. The burglar entered by hoisting the sash, having previously taken off his shoes. A large brick was left by the bedside which was carried on the old man if he awoke and made a noise. The thief travelled towards Augusta and a short distance out of town burnt the trunk. Among the watches in the trunk was a watch belonging to ex-Auditor Knopf.

Gen. Bamberg paid our town a visit on Friday last. He is looking well and was in his usual good spirits. He is making every preparation for his visit to Columbia where he has command of all the military that will assemble at the State Fair. We wish him a pleasant time and hope to see him at our County Fair.

Saturday last was unusually quiet for that day and this season of the year, owing no doubt to the fact that nearly everybody was here on the Wednesday before, and that an Association was going on at Gen's Branch Church. Quite a number of folks from up ahead passed through town on their way to the Association.

We understand that a private boarding house is soon to be opened on Dexter street, one door above Martin Keeler's, with Miss Sue Lambeth at the head of affairs. The location is a convenient one and we have no doubt Miss Sue will give those who patronize the new enterprise entire satisfaction.
A certain party from the "finished town" spent the night of the show, with a friend in this place and on arising early next morning he slipped a suspicious-looking bottle on the carpet in the room in which he slept, and being fond of an "eye-opener" he went for said bottle and took a real good pull of hair wash. His eyes did not open "worth a cent" but the lacrymal springs did. Some people seem to think that noses are only meant to wring with a red-wadded handkerchief!

A gentleman wandering up the railroad the other evening found a box with an express card attached marked "100 doz. eggs." He thought he would examine the contents and for that purpose knocked open the box and was made hastily to retreat before the fusillade of bursting rotten eggs. This incident has a moral but I shall leave each reader to draw it for himself.
