The Next Presidency.

It is not likely that the next Presidential election will be thrown into the House of Representatives, but it is quite possible. At any rate, it would be a comfort to either party to know that the majority of delegations was on its side. If it be true that Florida has one Democratic Congressman and one Republican, and that the chances favor the Republicans in California, we are confronted with either a bare Republican predominance or a possible tie.

The Washington Star adduces tables to show that there will be a tie in the next House on a vote of States, that consequently the House would not elect, and the functions of President would devolve upon the President pro tempore of the Senate. Assuming that California will go Republican, that party will have a majority of Representatives in nineteen States. The Democrats will have majorities in the delegations from eighteen States, with Indiana a tie, having six Republicans, six Democrats and a Greenbacker for its Representatives. This Greenbacker Congressman, Mr. De La Matry, thus becomes a very important personage. It is assumed that he will vote with the Democrats—indeed in a published speech he is reported as having given that assurance—thus giving Indiana to that party, and making a tie of States in the House.

Some who claim to be his personal friends, however, insist that he would, in the contingency stated above, vote with the Republicans, and thus exercise a greater power than Judge Bradley on the Electoral Commission. Assuming that the States in 1880 will stand as they do to-day, the Star figures up a majority of Republican votes.

The Republicans, it must be admitted, stand the better chance for getting the one State necessary; but they may be mistaken in this. There are chances of a tie also, and then the Greenbacker, De La Matry, may become the central figure, for a time in American politics, to be alternately blessed and cursed, which ever way he may vote. Then again, the dead-lock may be unbreakable, leading to the Presidency of a Democratic Senator. We incline to believe that the contest will be decided by the people; but it must be confessed that there are elements of danger, in any event, which cannot be disregarded, and which it will take all the good sense and patriotism of the people to maintain towards a peaceful solution.

As the South was a peacemaker in 1876, she will, if occasion arise, bear the olive branch again, although the Radical extremists are doing all they can to provoke her beyond endurance. —[Chronicle and Constitutional.

Fatal Affray in Union—A Bar-keeper Killed by a Rough.

SPARTANBURG, November 20.—News received here to-night from Union, S. C., gives the particulars of a shooting affray there yesterday, which has terminated fatally. It seems that Jas. B. Peake, proprietor of the bar-room on Main street, near the Union Hotel, being under the influence of mean whiskey, met James Turner, ex-deputy sheriff and bar-tender, in the street near his saloon. Some words passed between the parties, and Peake became enraged and cursed Turner. A fight ensued, in which Turner knocked Peake down twice, he himself getting slightly cut on the cheek. Outsiders interfered and prevented further violence at that time. Peake turned into his saloon, muttering something which seemed to be a threat. Turner walked across the street to the hotel, but soon returned and met Peake coming out of his front door. The marshal being near tried to take Peake off, but Turner drew his pistol and shot him in the abdomen, inflicting a mortal wound. The marshal at once arrested Turner and placed him in jail, where he now is. The shooting took place yesterday at 2:30 p. m., and Peake died to-day at 12:30 p. m. Peake was known as a desperate character, being very offensive when under the influence of liquor. Turner is also a kind of rough, and is thought very little of by respectable citizens.

Gen. Gordon's Triumph.

ATLANTA, November 19.—The Senatorial election took place to-day, and General Gordon was almost unanimously elected, and without a convention of the Houses, carrying every vote in the Senate and all but five in the House of Representatives. Strenuous efforts were made to organize an opposition, but without success. No man in the Senate could be found who would nominate another candidate, and four of the five voting against him in the House were Independents from the Seventh Congressional District. This is considered the greatest political triumph ever achieved in Georgia.

They "pulled down the blind" in Pennsylvania.

It is not the servant girl who is under arrest in Allentown, Pa., for opening her mistress' letters, but exactly the reverse. The servant received letters from her lover, and the mistress yielded to curiosity and read them.

Sam Lee Arrested.

SPARTANBURG, November 20.—This morning Charles Mayrant, Esq., a highly respected citizen and lawyer of this place, took out a warrant for Samuel Lee for not keeping open the office of the Judge of Probate of Sumter county, as required by law. Lee was arrested and taken before Trial Justice Walsh, who required him to give bail in the usual sum of $500. Lee refused to give bail unless his own recognizance was accepted, and was insolent to the Trial Justice, finally walking out of the office with the remark that he was not amenable to the process of the Trial Justices' Court. Some time having been allowed by the Justice to enable Lee to furnish bail, and no effort having been made in that direction, the Justice issued a commitment, and the sheriff took Lee into custody and lodged him in jail.

It is pretended that, as Sam Lee has been subpoenaed to attend the United States Court as a witness, he was not liable to arrest, and after his arrest it is said he procured himself arrested by United States Marshal Singleton under process for a witness. All such flimsy pretexes will fall, as there is no difficulty in Lee attending Court whenever required, the sheriff of this county having frequently turned over prisoners in his custody to a United States marshal for the purpose of allowing them to be used as witnesses in the United States Court.

AN INLAND EARTHQUAKE.

Tennessee and Illinois Shaken by a Convulsion of the Earth.
 MEMPHIS, November 19.—A severe shock of an earthquake was felt in this city last night at five minutes before 12 o'clock, running north and south.

CAIRO, ILL., November 19.—Quite a heavy earthquake occurred here last night, which lasted one minute and ten seconds. It was first felt 15 minutes and 50 seconds after 11 p. m. The houses were distinctly felt to totter, but no damage has as yet been reported. Another slight shock was felt at ten minutes past 5 o'clock this morning. The houses tottered from west-northwest to east-southeast.

ARKANSAS FEELS THE SHOCK.

LITTLE ROCK, November 19.—A distinct shock of an earthquake was felt here last night, and considerable excitement prevailed.

The Indian Bureau.

WASHINGTON, November 19.—The Secretary of the Interior has written to the Secretary of War taking earnest exceptions to the recent report of Gen. Sheridan, in which the latter mentions the Indian situation as unsatisfactory, with additional comments upon the management of Congressional appropriations by employees of the Indian bureau.

Mr. Schurz hopes that Gen. Sheridan will communicate any facts in his possession which will warrant the charges made by that officer. He says that he makes this request in view of the fact that certain military officers seem to have fallen into the habit of indulging officially and publicly in general reflections on the Indian service without taking the trouble of substantiating them with such statements in detail as would facilitate the discovery and correction of abuses.

Mr. Talmage's onslaught upon gliding sin has been so long sustained and powerful that cities other than New York are beginning to remonstrate with him. From "the dark and bloody ground" of Kentucky and from the virtuous Watterson cometh this wall: "Upon due consideration of the situation, it would seem really better for Dr. Talmage to have those sinful horrors yawning under his feet that he may constantly point them out to the deacons and churchmen, who, he says, are taking their ease, and sending funds to convert the people at Quang-nan and Tooen-chow, while hell is sucking in thousands around them. The motive of Talmage is, no doubt, a good one. Let him work up a public sentiment against the prevalent vices; but he should not kick them all out of New York at once to fasten like devouring locusts on other cities and towns, which probably have enough in their small way to keep them lively."

The watchman killed at South Tipton the other night is Engineer Kroger's tenth man.

Though a careful runner, he has very bad luck in this respect. He has killed three men within the past three months. Mr. W. H. Berry, another engineer on the same road, has been running twenty-five years and has never killed a man.

A Memphis lady writes to a friend in the North: "I believe this plague has made a Universalist of me. I have seen men in a moment rise from the depths of degradation and wickedness to Christ-like sublimity in devotion and sacrifice, and the most polluted of my own sex suddenly changed into angels of love and mercy. Thus God teaches us to scorn none of His creatures."

Russian soldiers are sorted, as far as practicable, according to their size and complexion. The late Emperor Nicholas was especially exact in this. He had a hussar regiment composed of dark-haired men, and with the small-pox, and the light-haired men were sent to the front. The soldiers of one of the regiments had fair hair, blue eyes and a pale complexion, and of another regiment hooked noses, and the Emperor exacted the same from both.
