The llee Dee Heralo.

idea is a shadow that departeta, speech is fiekting as the wind-reading is an uniemembered pastime; burne
voL. 1
CHERAW, S. C., OCTOBER 14, 1856
NO. 18
privce & makioy

fancy tales for mon
The world has come to the people, within the

elassea, than they would have allowed an association with thitir himsehold Novela, fancy tales, disgusting recitals derdash, persons pro
our ohildren,

$\qquad$
$\qquad$ and feeling to their oterual destiny, has passed into an alinost secondary conside the estimate of life's true pusition the youlh of the country. Other publice ions and books may bo read, and the truths which they contain may be consid ered with something like soberness of parpose; bat atill the novel, whether it b improving every day lifo delineation stome other form of disgrive sought to of rast the publitio, in, afierall, the passion of our people. We need roading elasa to prosont evileneo for this seak ever There is searcely a farily wis in qivitod by what in termed the light read iog of the day It is sold and boogh every whara, and is presentod in every she attention. But while this is ato, and while fanusense miechief mant grow on of تhat is fermed the common literatar of the countey, in faney talen, published recognixe as sountergeting element, as secen in tra nulkitadionos fesue of woral by the various domominatiops, itesigne to eelse on the young mind before is Devomee entiroly alienated froe good an Alodesoene reading. Thin to eateem as of propise to the ace, asd the brighty ti.

解音

THE BOTTOM OF THE BEA.

$\mathfrak{c}$

Angrian beoath, and doonting tbrouph ayoliow hheon, nod seek their prey. The enomy, and seeks refuge is the thiekest recesscs of the fucus forest. In a a instant the whote seene chages.

self into the deep below; the and thrte concceals it.
nuounr, and sinks slowly downerable ar-playful little fist dienpeor int Playful hitte lish disuppeor in the branches of the marocgstis; lubsters hice under the thick, elamxily shapen roots, and the young walrus slone tarne puddy round, and faces tho :ntratar fith teeth, The shark seeks to gaiu his un.
protected side. The Lattle counaenees ; both seek the forest: their fins beoome en. tangseed in the forest: their fins beoome en at lastervoven branehes the more agile shark wounding his adversary's nide. Despairing pain and blood, he fastens hinuself ana ung to the shark, who greedily devoara him.

ANOIENT WHEAT
in mo years ago, a soientuifo gentleman, some of the ancient tombs in the Sousearebes, in of Frapee, found imbedded the South proserved bodies a species of wheat not now in existetice. It wus a habit is the days of the frat Gallis kings to the coffin of Galie kings to place in quantity of wheat. Soese of this whent was. sown, and the gentlewan was asto twenty stallas from " "grain. As they grew, the ataiks become apgular and much stmnger and wore vigurous. apmmon wheat. Wheen the grais formed, it wed found that there wote ois an a verage twenty more grains in a head than in she ordinary whict A eonsiderable geantity of this aneiopt. Gallio or llomang wheat was-somn then Fall of tha Oovesnment Sariu at Resibbouillet, and great Teports ore arriving of its productiednes. The

| which produses a most exhilarating efect; in less than ten minutes he tastes acrain and agatn, alwuys iuereasing the quantity; and in half an hour he bas a gum-stick of condensed snow, whith he mastientes with avidity, and replaces with assiduity the momest thacit is melted away. But bis thirst is not allayed in the slightest degree; he is as hot as ever and still perspires; his mouth is in flames, and he is driven to the necossity of quenching them writh snow, which adds fuel to the fire. The melting snow ceases to please the palpec, and feels file red hot coals, which, like a fire-eater, he shifts about with his tongue, and swallows witbout the addition of saliva. Ho is in despair; but habit has taken the place of bis ressouing faculties, and he moyes on with languid steps, lamenting the severe fate which forees him to persiat in a practice which in an unguarded notment he allowed to begin. I believe the true cause of such intense thirst is the extrems drynees of the air, when the temperature is low.  THE MORNING STARS.  I had oceasion, a few weeks since, to take the early train from Providence | I NEVER GOSSIP.  Oh no, I never gosemp! Thave enouph $\omega$ do to take care of of wy busiriess wilh. ont tulking about the afliirs of others, Mrs. Suith. Why, there's Mra. Crooker, she deals in scoundal by the \#holessle ; it does seem to me ns though that wownn's tongue unast be almost worn out; but no dnuger of that. If eserybody was like me there wouldn't be much troublg in the world. Ob no, I never gossip. But did you know that Miss Elliot bad got a now silk drees Mru, Smith? You didn't! I do say it's a real brocado; 1 say it myself 1 too any it's shamefal for her to be so extravngaat; I nean to give her a piece of my mind, Mrr. Suith? You believe her unele gave it to ber?' Well, 1 don't caro if he did; *hy, it's only two month s sinee ber father failed, und now, to see her dath out in this style its a burning shame. I suppose she thinks she's going to eateh young Lawyer Stanhope, but I guess sho'll find heraelf mistaken; he's ggt moro sense than to be eaugho by her, if yho has got a brooade silk dress.  And there's the upstart dressmaker, Kate Manley, setting her cup for the doctor's aso | to him instiuctively, thry passed out of the villago safely.  Befure reaching their bowe, howevar, they had to cross a smallcreek, and when the horso stepped in to drink, the old lady hariag reached uncoticioussoss released her her hold and alid quictly futo the stream below. Arriving home, the children in. quired for 'mannog.' but the old man could only say that she bud been on tho oritter and tho crittor brdn't kioked oary time, कo he couldn't suy where she must be, and threw himsel: stupid on the bed.  The gits and boys flew, slong the road the old twat had come, yelling tmamny! tannmy" but of course, no mamby responded.  When they arrived at the oreek, the oldest girl yelled there sho issitting down in the creek??  And there she was seated comfortablo in the water which caose nearly up to her mouth. As she swayed bock and forth now yieding to the impefupusity of the stronm, and now resiating it with some suc eess the muddy fluid would oocasionally wet her lips, and cach time it did so she would faintly exclaim, with a grim effurt to | take the early train from Providence to Bostan; and for chis purpose rose at two $0^{\circ}$ cloek in the morning. Every hing around was wrapped in darkness hat seemed at that hour the unearthly mild, serene, midsummer's night, thas hist. The moon, then in the las hone with a spectral lustre but littie hours high, was the herald of the tw he Pleiades, just above the horizon, Lyra sparkled near the Zenith; Androneda veiled her newly-discovered glo ries from she naked oye in the South the steady pointers, far beneath the of the North to their Sovereign depths of North to their Sovereign.
| :---: | :---: | :---: |

$\Delta$ was the giorious spectele ntered the train. As wa proceeded he timid approach of twilight became he aky began to soften; the sualle ars, like little children, went first to oon melted together; but Refate constellations of the West and North emained unchanged. Steadily the wondrous transfguration went on. Hands of angels hidden from morta eyes shifted the scenery of tho heavens the glories of night dissolved into th glories of the dawn. The blue sky now turned more softy gray; the great wateh-stars, shant up their holy oyes? the East begin to kindle. Fains atreak or purple stoon blushed along tho sky the whole celestin! concare was filled with the inflowing tides of the morning ght, which came ponting down from bove in one great ocoan of radionce above in one great ocoan of radionco, till at length we reached the Blue Hills; - flash of purple fire blazed out from above the horizio, and turned the dewy ear-drops of tiewers and loaf into rub ies and diamonas. In a fow seconde, the everlasting gates of the isorning wore thrown wide open, and the lord of the gaze of man, began his coures.
I do not wonder at the sonirstition f the ancient Maginths, who, in the
of the world, went up to the
of Central Aeia, and, fgnorant

| ly astonishing. I don't think better than the ought to be, for part; I never did like her, with soft look, when any one's around; for it, she can look eross enough w ain't, then she says she's only so Goodness knows she's as old as wy Lucretia, and she's-WCll, I wou' old, butshe's more'n suventeen, a ashamed to way so either; but $\mathrm{I}_{\mathrm{g}}$ May's son will have more discret to think of taartying her. Some folks call her handsono |
| :---: |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |
|  |  |

4 COURT SCEVE

$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
$\qquad$
fond of a frolic as tha cunst ratleing lad in

$\qquad$
$\qquad$ Judge of the bench of his district. Yet Thever lost his dignity while on his bench least approach to fimiliarity, whil singin is coury rias alvorys rosep. Well, it bappened pone day, while bolding court, that Mr: Dewzenbut a rough looking but lodepondant exih an, his head This the roque with hig

$\qquad$
$\qquad$ thich being obsarted by his hono dered the sheriff to "take the man's aka your hat off" eriod the akerif:. Dewzenbary remained motiobleso while che judge proceeded to business. At last ruising his eyos, hiey hooor agaio dis.
cocered tho incorricible atatiding sith hie covered the incorrigible statiuing spich hie apoo his head.
Sherift" oried nio Court, "take that
The Sherif appromolted aud repeated "I'm bald," zaid Mr. D., "and ogir' oaply," YYou can't.'. exalatnod tbo judge, waxing angry, "thet Ifine you fivo doliari for coubempt of Coart.
gin'What's that goo eny, jadger, replied Mr, D, as he walkod deltion $\mathrm{Mr}, \mathrm{D}$, as he walkod daltiotratelf up to.
toe judge's atand.
of Cgur
Wory welly paid Aif D. as ho cotofal.

