W. L. T. PRINCE. J. R. MALLOY

PRINCE & MALLOY, EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS

TERMSI Tun Pan Dan Hangab is published ber year, STREETLY IN ADVANCE.

ADVERTISEMENTS Of fifteen lines, or less, which is a square, will be inserted at one dollar, for a single insertion; one square continued. seventy-live cents for the first, and fifty cents for each subsequent insertion. Renewal or change twenty cents

Advertisements Inserted monthly or quarterly, one dollar per square; semi monthly, seventy-five cents per square.
The following deductions will be made in favor of standing advertisements:

One square, for three months, One square, for three months, do for six months, do for six months, do for six months, do for one year, do for one year, 18 DC Three squares, for three months, do for six do 18 OC for one year, for three months, do for six do 22 OC for six do 22 OC for six do 52 OC for one year, for one year, for one year, do OC for squares, for one year, do OC for squares, for one year, do OC for one year, do OC for one year, do OC for squares, for one ye

All advertisements for less than THAT MAYOUR CASH bthers must be PAID FOR MONTHLY. If the summer of insertions is not specified, in whiteadvertisements will be convinued till ordered out, and CHARGED ACCOUNTINGLY. o advertimements, HOWLVER SHALL, will be considered RESUTEAN & SQUARE.

POETICAL.

If we were called on to find more exquisite poetry than this, we shouldn't know where to

From the Louisville Journal. TO "FANNIE" ON RECEIVING HER DAGUERREOTYPE.

Blessings upon thee, cousin, for thy gift, The shadow of thy sweet and radiant face, Which ne'er has lost the seat of angelhood Stamped on thy baby brow, I scarce have words To say how much I love thee. On my lip The utterance dies, and in my throbbing heart Flatter the gold-winged thoughts to burst their

Oh, were their fetters broken, they would float Back to the dreamy past. The spring-time flowers

Were cradled in their incense when my heart First caught a breath of love-perfume from thine,

And the blue mists of Indian summer lay On every hill-top ere within thy home, I met the sunlight of thy gentle smile. Thou'rt very beautiful! Thy white brow gleams, Beneath its coronal of dark brown hair. With Phidian loveliness and the full wreath Of thy curved lip is eloquent with love.

Blessings upon thee! Ah, if this wild soul May ever sing above the radiant stars, Then it will find a word to speak its pure And deep affection-on this earth it ne'er Can find a voice. Ere many years pass by Perchance, in some dire twilight, thou, sweet friend.

Wilt hear its trembling anthem, and wilt feel A spirit's kiss upon thy gentle brow.

Blessings upon thee, lovely, loving one ! And clasp thy hands, like snow white petted doves.

Within my own. Oh, earth caged angel would That I might wander out with thee beneath The purple arch of midnight and the stars To cool these feverish pulses. It may be That the " not yet" which deatiny has stamped, In iron characters upou my soul. Will be a "never"-that Elysium's fields Of asphodel will woo me to their rest, Ere the sweet blossoms of this southern clime Again may crown a blue eyed April day. But, cousin, love goes through the gates of

And bears its memories to the "spirit-land." And naught can e'er unlink the golden chain Whose mesmer spell has bound my soul to thine!

LAURA LORBIMER.

Belletome, Ala.

DER YMDER .- Zat pooty little vidder, wat ve doshent vish to name, is sthill leibon on the teetie sdreet, a doing shuss to zeme. Das glerks spoudt der korners. sometimes goes down to see how der tarlin leetle vitchy ees, and ask'er how she pe. Dais loves her ver, goot layer, dais leves her leetle sthore, dais loves her leetle paby, but dans loves der vidder more. To dalk mit sat zweet vidder, von she hands der larger round, vill make das shap zat does it, pe happy we'll pe pound-dat ish if we can well pelieve das glerks vat trinks der peer-who coes in dare for nothin elsh, gut zimply vur to zee her.

A Quaker lately popped the question to a fair Quakeress, as follows; "Hum - shining from the opposite seat. yea and verily, Penelope, the spirit urgeth and moveth me wonderfully to beseach thee to cleave unto me flesh of my flesh and bone of my bone," ham-truly, asmuch as it is written that it is not good will tojourn with thee,"

MISCELLANEOUS.

AN EXPIOSION ON THE OHIO RIV. ER-A SINGULAR RENCONTRE.

the new palatial and powerful steamboat "Siren" floated away from her wharf at Cincinnati, bound for the port of New Orleans, and carrying a gay crowd of passenon the shore, and everything, even the very air, seemed eloquent of hope and hap-

The multitude consisted of the usual Western vessels. There might be seen in close proximity thriving merchants with their staid ledger-like look; politicians with sculptured courtesy in every feature, mere pleasure seekers in easy attitudes, and a sprinkling of black whiskered gentry, whose restiess eyes, over dress, and profusion of jewels betrayed their acquaintance with the history of the four queens. Besides these a number of coarse featured ed the fore parts of the cabin in the neighborhood of the bar.

Nor were the augelic sax unrepresented in their and of the hall. Every description of beauty might be studied there as in a picture gallery-the blue eyed and bright haired belle of the North, the dazzling daughters of Kentucky, and the charming creole with languid air and face like the love-light of a dream. All on board seemed joyous in their particular ways. No doubt, darkened the general festivity, and almost every one appeared to have companions or friends for social converse and the interchange of civilities. I must, however, mention an exception to the remark. There was a gentleman of tine form and strikingly handsome countenance, with brilliant gay eyes, and a high, white, intellectual forehead, who bad no acquaintances, and, indeed, did not appear to desire any, as he continued to walk the harricane deck in a state of profound and somewhat mournful abstraction, long after tirely without ornaments, and wore a piece ritate as well as pain her. of crape round his hat as a token of recent. of the inquisitive parties happened to be old Texans themselves, and they all conry illuminated by the lone star, and one or ficult air with such consumate success as

At length, the dinner bell sounded, and strong gender, save only one.

She was a girl some eighteen years of it might be this circumstance, exciting the magical melody, sympathy by calling to mind his own sorrow, or the poculiar charms of her person, around her only grew the blacker with which fascinated his soul, Captain Thomas envy and mertification, and one of them did not attempt, on the instant, to deter- urged her lover to insult the girl by an without a relation in the wide world," she mine; but he felt an immediate and all importinent question. Accordingly, the marroured, in seconts sweetly tender as an immediate most magical interest in the sad visage gentleman, who bossed, beside his gaudy very beautiful. Her form and features, be permitted to in abough exquisitely symmetrical, looked too a professional stages ?" small and childlike for such a postical epi/ Obudish, thou heat wisely said, in the ; for the term little might be applied enveyed the insolent Po in contempt to her as a whole and apparently in every silence, and at the moment every spefor a man to be alone, lol and behold, I part, Her face, bust, boson, hands feet, could perceive that she was avan were all little, save a pair of large almond. In boastiful.

immortal Titian.

The captain could not remove his gaze female friends joined. from the unique visage before him. Had gers, who had been attracted by the splen- he seen that face somewhere in his wand. and trembled with agitation. A crimson to, he commenced shuffling the pieces of hall occupied by their travelling domher speed, safety and luxurious accommo- thought so; but misty memory, revolving dation. As she moved off, walking the the vague shadows of the past, could fix sunny waters so truely like a thing of life, on no definite time or place for identity.

slightly starting, scrutinized his counter pertinence l' conce in her turn, with signs of strange emotion, and then, faintly blushing, withmiscellaneous characters to be found on drew her glance, and soon returned to the parlor. But Captain Thomas sought in vain to banish from his mind that one look luminous as lightning, which had flashed through his brain when their eyes met .-It appeared like both a recognition from the past and a revelation of the future, and the two left the cabin several bystanders right to hate thee!" yet he could not imagine what was the charm that so wonderfully moved him. It could not be love, or even admiration, for George Rayburn, of Arkansas-the most he had often beheld more beautiful featugenuine specimens of the backwoods haunt- res without so much as an additional heart throb, but none had ever inspired him such deep interest and so earnest a desire for an introduction.

Led by this sudden and unaccountable impulse, he seated himself near the folding doors at the entrance to the ladies' cabin, and covering his curiosity under the pretext of reading some book, be witched the fair unknown with stealthy glances. He perceived that while others were laughing, chatting, and making new acquaintances, she remained absorbed in sad reflecthought, many eyes glanced at her wish looks of undisguised scorn and contempt.

tary conjecture; for as she not only trav- floor. elled without an escort or a companion, but had come on board alone just as the steamer was about to start, the elite of the female passengers set her down at once as a doubtful character, to be studiously shunned, or insulted if she displayed the least presumption of a claim to courtesy or everybody else had gone below. He was equality. She observed the general state dressed in a suit of costly black cloth, en. of offensive feeling, and it seemed to ir-

However, an opportunity soon presented beroavement. Several of the curious had itself for ample and most justifiable renoticed the stranger when he came on venge. Several ladies in succession took board and saw him register his name as their places at the piano, but none of them "Captain M. Thomas, of Texas," but some did much credit to themselves as artists. After they had all finished their grating discords, the dark eyed girl assumed the curred in the declaration that they had vacant seat, and played without an appenever heard of such a man in the territo- rout effort a wild bewitching, and very diftwo suggested that he must be an impos- to astonish and enrapture every unprejudieed mind.

She then began another of greater simthe handsome captain descended to the plicity and the most tender pathos, and at cabin ; but he found all the serts at the the same time sung the words-a touching upper end of the board occupied, and was requiem for the dead with such effect as white and quivering with apparent fear, turning to retire, when the head waiter to draw tears like rain drops from a score interposed, and conducted him to the low. of eyes. Her voice, at once loud, clear er part of the table, where he discovered a and inexpressibly sweet, lingered on the she beckened him to a chair beside her, vacant chair among the ladies A brief our, and wandered at will through all the and addressed him in imploring accepts: and involuntary glance showed that he was flying notes in the scale of harmony, as a ustranger, I am not ungrateful for your on the verge of a constellation of radiant nightingale had been imprisoned in her bracery and kindness in the defeate of a faces ; but they all seemed to have socie. silver throat, or a viewless seraph hovered friendless girl; but I entrent you not to ty and protection in companion, of the on her lips! Politicians, merchants, and throw away your life in a combat with even whiskered gamblers, bounced from their chairs, and swarmed sowards the often, and know that his aim is death!" nge, robed in deep mourning; and whether door of the drawing room, entranced by

But the brows of the scoreful femal

fier dark eyes firehed ligh

shaped eyes, dark as night, and curtained ["I suppose," continued the red-headed in a desperate mood, he staked enormous a fund of quiet humor. by long raven lashes, which gave them a monster, to that you must be a professional sums on every suite of cards he received, casion, they had stopped at a hotel in On the first day of March, ten years ago Southern complexion furnished a striking for your benefit, as that kind of creatures by thousands. resemblance to the favorite portrait of the will do anything for money?" And he light shot from her burning black eyes, as painted paper; but at the moment the bell she exclaimed in tones of concentrated rang, and the heat stopped to wood. Inshame and bitterness :

a smiling throng stood on the burricane and he discarded the illusion as the image ladies who chance to travel without pro- Captain Thomas, the signal has sounded tection? I had fancied that no gentle - for your death or mine !" Presently she raised her dark eyes, and, man would either offer or permit such im- His foe sprang to his feet for the pur-ruffian began to upologize; but at the same and prayed him to decline the bully's chalinstant a floger tapped his shoulder, and lenge. a strange voice hissed in his cat-" Let me see you on the hurricane deck !"

eyes of Captain Thomas, and bowed a bloody laws-a charm of hell that no hebuighty and definit acquiescence. As reism has power to resist! Well have I a whispered the stranger-"For your life have no difficulty with that man! It is fearful duellist in the world!"

In a few moments the parties gained the hurricane deck, while all the male passensmile of murderous meaning-" Fool and cach other's arms " scoundrel what have you to say?"

" Nothing," replied Thomas, and coolly knocked the other down.

Rayburn rose with a cry awful as the vell of some wild beast, and attempted to tion. No one addressed her, and, as he draw his pistol. But the enemy moved too quick for him, snatched the weapon Nor was he mistaken in this involun, and again measured his length ou the

> With blood running in streams from his ose, the bully sprang to his feet, and vociferated in accents nearly inarticulate satisfaction for this."

"I propose to do no less," was the tranquil answer.

"Here now this very minute!" roared Rayburn, grinding his teeth and foam-

"Whenever and wherever you like, responded Thomas, in the same careless

"Not so fast, gentlemen." remarked the ommander of the steamer, with a stern countenance; "I will permit no hostile interviews on my vessel, and so you must wait till we stop to wood."

"I am in no harry," said Captain Thomas, with a smile, and the duellist himself was forced to yield. When the supposed Texan returned to the cabin, his eyes, immediately sought the unintentional cause of his sudden quarrel. She was seated near the door of the drawing room, while the light of her dark orbs looked dim with tours. As soon as he approached, shat dreadful man, I have heard of him

"The challenge has been passed and accepted, and, of course I cannot now decline without eternal diagraco," was his proud sagel's whisper by the pillow of a dying "Husband," said the lade, to the dress, a state of fiery red hair, advanced, extat. "Let me be your sister, and as "It is true he did not at first think her and mid with a month obersames " May I such I pray you not to fight that monster! for tell the gentleman about the man we cales, Miss, if you are I will speak to the captain of the bone, and have him put on shore !"

le the meantime, George Beyburn, have ing splaced himself by numerous flery potations at the bar, but down to a go sident. They handed power, and soon became ab- one of the genus who could whip his the sorbing in the chances of the play. Being watgat in wildcated but who posses

At length he proposed that each pam-capital on the feat of outting the highest 16 Is it the fashion on this boat to insult and cried, in a voice of thunder! "Come,

"Oh! accursed code of the duellist!" she exclaimed, with startling emphasis; He turned and met the piercing grey a what infernal fascuation lives in thy

> Have you personally suffered from a lord. particular occurrence of the kind in your own family?" inquired Thomas, kindly

"Oh, God!" how much !" she murnured, through her tears. "My father fell on that ratal field; and last year, my only gers followed eagerly to witness the ex brother had a bosom friend. They differ the door violently, 'or I'll break the pected stormy scene. The rullian Ray- ed on the race track about some trifle, the door down!" burn walked up till his face almost touch- lie passed between them; both were high ed that of his unknown foe, and, uttering spirited, they fought on the spot, forgave in; I'll open the door an opprobrious epithet, demanded, with a cach other when too late, and died in The door was soon opened when in > "What was your brother's name?" asked the young man, with pale lips, in a voice almost suffocated by unuterable emotion. "Eugene Garardin,"

"And you are his gister Rustly -once the child that I played with so toudly in the bright days of my boyhood before I from his hand, hurled it into the river, wandered from home and triends?" he said seizing her fairy finger with a convei-

She gazed in his face with a bewildored look, and gasped : " Can it be possible? Yes, you must indeed be Morton Thomas, with rage-"Sir, you shall give me mortal the brother of my brother's murdered friend?"

"The same," faltered the other, weep ing in spite of the utmost exertions to master his feelings.

"Come," shouted the desperado, with a diabolical laugh; " come or I will shoot you down by the side of your paramour !" and he drew a revolver and took two steps towards his adversary.

But a more appalling enonity than mon met him by the way. He stood immediately above the mighty boilers, where the steam devil, for several minutes, had been hissing ominously. Suddenly then there came a low, indescribable monn, like that of some imprisoned fiend-it was the fiend of fire struggling to get free and then a dull sullen roar, ar rather a crash ; and the front of the cabin was shirered as if torn now." to pieces by a thunder bolt! Both boils ers had exploded at once, and killing eve- lord returned to his own best ry person in that part of the vessel, while those in the ladies' cabin escaped without

Morton Thomas and Emily Girardin em borked the next day on another boat for the Crescent City, and were eventually

WESTERN ANNOYANCES.

Judge J , who has receptly re urned from a tour inche West, relates an speciote illustrating the horrors to which travellers in that region are exposed. In his passage to one of the rivers, he fell in company with a talka-You and myself are now orphans, and tive lady and a gentleman, to whom he was relating some of his suffering from tleman owning that title, "you had bet metal in lows."

The hint westureless, and "hisband" proceeded to say that, "in their travels farther West, they made acquaintance me of of a stal wert, miscking, western hoosies. Bons soft, dreamy expression; while the rich singer, or a strolling artist of some sort, and a strange freak of fortune smiling upon the interior, not of the most inviting black hair and golden warmth of her and therefore thought to mise a collection him for hours, he reckoned his winnings appearance. They were shown to their rooms, the hoosier at one end, and the lady and gentleman at the other, of a burst into a derisive laugh, in which his bler of the party should risk his entire long hall. About midnight the drawsy The lips of the girl turned mortally pale card in the pack, and this being assented arms, proceeding from the end of the couple were startled by a report of lirepanion. Both started up in the Brd and began to speculate upon the probastantly, Rayburn threw down the cards, ble cause of his untimely alarm, when they heard a rushing of fect and comfusion of voices in the hall. On going to the door, the gentleman found the whole household, headed by the landpose of going on shore; but Emily Girar- lord, rushing in the direction of the "L'intended no offence," the red-haired din, the dark-eyed girl, clung to his arm, report. His curiosity led him to join this midnight procession and he arrived with the rest, in front of the hoosier's door. The landlord tried the lateb, but found it fast, whereupon, in a loud voice, he demanded instant admission.

"What do you want?" roared a soice within.

Want to come in !" replied the land-

"Can't do it!" was the response from within. "It's my room, and I'm in hed can't come in.

Let me in !" shouted the landlerd in a louder tone, at the same time shaking

"Hold on !" rejained the releas with rushed the party, expecting to be the floor covered with blood. their surprise to find every thing in i proper place, and the hoesies calleunconcerned. A recoiver was le careledy upon the bod. "Who fired that pistol demanded laudlord. "I dil!" was the reply. way ? asked the landlords The hoosier stepped to the heir an throwing open the covering pala "Look here! Do you see that " The attention of the grovy once directed to the posit furbount ats there, over the whole surface of sheet, bedbugs were strangered in avery direction, like a flook of thest ened by a dog. The fanctord was chagrined and puzzled, and lo his lodger for an explanation

"These," began the horsies tening himself up to his full hi gesticulating with his calet grandiloquent style Chese friends ; I have settled an with them, and me are on friendly but on the window sill there, rest side, you will find two inform lows that I couldn't do anything and so I just put a bullet thro But it's all right now, at a uli a stood between we and my frie and we shall get along well c

It is needless to add, the creat fallen, while the ed a hearty lade has

AN EXTRAORDINARY Jas. McDondald was bronger a Mayor this morning, on the chie trading himself in the times of cher, at the curner of Church and land streets, and refusing to go requested. He stated that and went there to see the doc some modicine; and it w he was under the triffmence of ting. When select what he had explanation of his condu he had much to ea give a brief account from which we