

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SAVING GARDEN SEEDS.

When the seeds are ripe, gather them without unnecessary delay; otherwise, the pods will split open, and their contents be scattered upon the ground.

Place the seed vessels, as soon as gathered, upon a cloth in the shade, so that they may become perfectly dry, at which time thresh out the seed, by means of a small stick.

The vitality of seeds, under favorable circumstances, may be depended upon for the following periods: Parsnips, Rhubarb, and other thin scaly seeds for one year.

Beet, Burnet, Celery, Chervil, Cucumber, Dill, Fennel, Hyssop, Melon, Pumpkin, Sorrel, and Squash, from five to eight or ten years.

TO SELECT TURKEYS AND CHICKENS.

Take those with a small head, bright eyes, tapering neck, full breast, straight back; plump oval-shaped body, with legs of moderate length.

Of the different varieties of the turkey, those of the white plumage are considered the most delicate and tender.

FIX YOUR GARDEN IN THE FALL.—Perhaps you desire a new garden next year. If so drain the ground, then cart on a large quantity of well rotted manure, and plough it, and subsoil it to the depth of two feet or more.

DOGS MAKE "A PINT"—Dobbs walked into a Dry Goodery on Court Street, and began to look round.

"What can I do for you sir?" says he. "A good deal," says Dobbs, "but I bet you won't."

"I'll bet I will," says the knight of the yard-stick, "if I can."

"What'll you bet of that?" says the imperious Dobbs.

"I'll bet a fourpence!" says the clerk, with a sneer.

"I'll go it," says Dobbs. "Now trust me for a couple of dollars, with your snuff."

vegetables, provided his dicky don't eat his throat, he will be arter the gals, Dobbs thinks.

"I'll spare no pains," as the quick said when he sawed off his patient's leg for the Rheumatism.
