

Patent Outsides.

Our able contemporary of the Athens Watchman flays patent outsides in most approved style as follows:

What are "patent outsides"? Like Radicalism, they came into use since the war. There are newspapers ostensibly printed in populous counties, where the county advertising pays well, but really printed at Cincinnati, Chicago, Nashville, or some other distant point.

Well, all this is a "cute" Yankee trick, and not only enables the so-called "auxiliary" publisher to coin money, but saves the country editor the expense of printing one-half his paper.

But what of all this? Have not publishers the right to buy ready-made newspapers, if they can prevail on the reading public to take them?

The courts of Georgia will no doubt hold the same doctrine, whenever a case is brought before them. The law will never become a party to a fraud.

This matter is worthy of consideration, as these "patent outsides" are springing up everywhere, and taking from the legitimate press of the country, which is identified with the people in interest, the patronage which rightfully belongs to it.

A young lady of Norfolk was so agitated while dancing with the Grand Duke that she fainted in his arms.

Brooklyn Argus: "Sealskin saques for poodles are coming into fashion. A lady carrying a canine pet thus attired called yesterday to comfort a poor woman who had lost two children by starvation."

How a Man Hunts for Clean Clothes.

Did you ever see a man try to find a clean shirt or a handkerchief, or something in the bureau drawer, where his wife keeps her linen?

He finds the white arrayed in such symmetrical layers as only a woman after long practice can accomplish, and he dives in a good deal as he would fish for nubs of kindling in a barrel of shavings, pitching everything right and left on the floor;

About this time the wife yells out from below that the article sought is right at the top, when he sarcastically wants to if she supposes he has "got no eyes."

And then he gathers everything up in a bunch and rams them back anyhow, just as he can grab them in savage handfuls, tearing around and jerking things all over with a nervous looseness.

Just about the time he has worked himself into a great worry of boiling over impatience, and got the whole room in a litter, his wife glides in and lays her hand on the missing article, right in the drawer, where he had jerked it out and rammed it back again.

An exchange says, "Lord Macaulay made it a rule to pay all bills within twenty-four hours."
