New Advertisements.

W. D. Aiken advertises notice to trespassors.

Our friends at Ridgeway neglected to post us on the municipal election at that place.

Some good work has been put upon the Rocky Mount road from the six mile post for some miles out but the portion lying nearer town has not been renovated since last winter and has several bad places in it.

Agricultural liens of all forms are kept constantly on hand at the office of THE NEWS AND HERALD, or supplied at short notice. Satisfaction guaranteed in this line of work. Prices as low as the lowest.

The Rev. C. E. Canechester and Mr. A. S. Douglass left Winnsboro on Monday, to attend the meeting of Harmony Presbytery at Reedy Creek Church in Marion county.

The Rev. J. M. Fidd and Messrs. Jas. A. Brice and John Vinson are also absent in attendance upon the Presbytery of the Associate Reformed Church, which is holding at King's Mountain.

We have received a batch of literature written in the interests of peace and detesting all the horrors of war. People in this section have learned the effects of war by sad experience and are naturally inclined to keep the peace, but if there be any one who is inclined to let his angry passions rise, we will turn the batch over to him.

PERSONAL.—We are pleased to welcome back to our town Mr. C. M. Chandler, of the firm of Connor & Chandler. Mr. Chandler has for some months been doing business in Spartanburg, but has now returned to Winnsboro permanently. Like many others who have left our little town, he has found that "there's no place like home." His friends are all glad to see him.

We would request that contract advertisements be changed either in Tuesday's or Saturday's issue—that is, the copy should be handed to us on Monday or Friday morning. The labor involved in getting off our weekly edition causes us to be somewhat pressed for time in getting out Thursday's issue. We are of course always ready to plunge advertisements, but it will be an accommodation to us if our contractors will remember and observe the suggestion above made.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.—The election of intendant and wardens passed off very quietly indeed. But for the presence of the managers in the Town Hall, and the occasional visit of a voter there to deposit his ballot, it would not have been supposed that any election was going on. The following is the result:

FOR INTENDANT.
Dr. W. E. Aiken.....186
Scattering.....15
FOR WARDENS.
W. N. Chandler.....201
R. J. McCauley.....185
F. Elder.....184
A. P. Miller.....110
W. M. Nelson.....85
Scattering.....42

The municipal election at Blackstock was held yesterday, but the result had not been reported up to us going to press. Two tickets were in the field, both headed by Mr. W. D. Simpson for intendant. The nominees for wardens on the first ticket were Messrs. J. E. Craft, P. Ragsdale, W. E. Richardson and M. Mackintosh; and on the second Messrs. E. P. Pagan, D. G. Tennent, John R. Craig and J. P. Ragsdale. It is fair to presume that Messrs. Simpson and Ragsdale are happy at least. The question at issue appears to be concerning licenses.

Wm. Moultrie Dwight.

No event has ever produced more profound sorrow among our community than the death of Capt. W. M. Dwight, which took place at twelve o'clock on Sunday night. His illness was but short. Just a month before his death he consulted a physician upon the subject of his condition—suffering from a severe cough and suspecting an affection of the lungs. The examination disclosed that he was suffering from disease of the heart. The malady made fearful strides, baffling all medical skill, despite the great vigor of constitution and health for which he had always been remarkable. Capt. Dwight met his death like a hero and a Christian. His remains were interred in the Episcopal cemetery on Monday afternoon, the services both at the church and at the grave being attended by a large concourse of friends.

Captain Dwight was born in Winnsboro in June, 1839, and was in the thirty-eighth year of his age. He spent most of his youth at his father's home in the low country. His early education was obtained at private schools and at the Mount Zion Institute. He was among the first matriculates of the King's Mountain Military School at Yorkville and after spending some time there entered the State Military Academy. After a two years' course at that institution he entered the University of Virginia, where also he remained two years. He was married in 1861 to Miss Elizabeth P. Gaillard, a daughter of the late David Gaillard, a well known citizen of this county.

Upon the breaking out of the civil war, he volunteered as a private in the Governor's Guards, an infantry company organized at Columbia, in which command he served until his promotion. He was slightly wounded at the first battle of Manassas. In the year 1862 he was appointed as assistant adjutant and inspector general on the staff of Gen. J. B. Kershaw, with the rank of captain—in which capacity he served till the close of the war. He was twice captured by the enemy—first at Boonesboro, in 1862, while bearing dispatches, and very soon released; and then at Spottsylvania on the 8th of May, 1864. He remained a prisoner at Fort Delaware till February, 1865, when he was paroled. His entire career as a soldier, whether private or officer, was marked by the most conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He was highly esteemed by General Kershaw. On his return home after the surrender he was engaged as assistant teacher at Mount Zion, in which position he showed the same earnest devotion to duty that had characterized his career in the army. He afterwards engaged in planting, and subsequently in mercantile business in Winnsboro. In 1875 he was elected Principal of Mount Zion Institute, and held that position at the time of his death. He served one term as intendant of Winnsboro, and won universal commendation for his fidelity to his trust and his efficiency as a town official. He was the president of the Fairfield Fire Engine Company, and much of the esprit de corps of that organization was due to his zealous example. In short, it was a leading characteristic of the man that in whatever sphere of duty he was placed, he performed that duty with a thoroughness, a conscientiousness, a spirit of self-sacrifice, that won the confidence of his friends, and completely silenced the voice of adverse criticism. He was warm and constant in his attachment to his friends, devoted to his family, and true to his native State in every juncture of her affairs, that demanded his service. It is the highest tribute to his worth to say that those who knew him best, esteemed him most, and that an acquaintance once formed with him soon grew into a friendship at once warm, true and lasting.

In the bereavement thus visited upon his family, the community has likewise suffered a severe loss, and the sympathy felt for the afflicted ones is at once, in kindness to them, and a just tribute to his memory. Old and young alike will miss him from their midst, and mourn an event that takes from them a friend, a companion, a teacher, and a high example of the true Christian gentleman.
