BLOOMINGTON, GARRET Co., Md., Jan. 22, 1877.

MR. JAMES CAMPBELL, 66 Fulton St. N. Y. Dear Sir:—I bought some seed from you last spring, and it was good. Your Emperor William Cabbage suits this climate well. On a mountain side the seed you sent me produced Cabbages weighing thirty pounds each.

REDPATH ON THE WARPATH. HE HANDLES THE POLICY OF HAYES WITHOUT GLOVES.

A traitor to his party—Radicalism forever dead.—What the future course of the colored vote should be.

James Redpath, an original Abolitionist and freedom shrieker, has written a letter of advice to the colored people, and sent it to every newspaper south of Mason and Dixon's line. The first part abounds in abuse of Hayes, who is denounced as a traitor to his party and to the cause of liberty. Redpath asserts that Aleck Stephens is President of the United States, as far as the Gulf States are concerned, and continues:

"As Lincoln will be known as the Liberator of the slaves, and Grant as the Preserver of the Union, so Hayes will be remembered as the Betrayer of the Southern Republicans. Lincoln freed, Grant conquered, Hayes surrendered. Do you forget that it was to 'save Ohio'—that is, to elect Hayes as Governor—that Grant was induced against his own judgment, to refuse the call of Ames for troops to protect the Republicans of Mississippi? That was the inauguration of Hayes' Southern policy. He is acting to-day in entire consistency with his history in preferring the bandit chieftain, Hampton, and the Ku-Klux cypriotes, Nicholls, to the lawfully elected representatives of the Republican voters of South Carolina and Louisiana."

He then draws a raw-head-and-bloody-bones sketch of "General Chalmers, who, openly defying the Constitution in the 'Whip-Cord District' of Mississippi, calls up by his own act the black spectres of Fort Pillow; as General Hampton, by his arrogance, uncovered the graves of the national soldiers whose dead bodies were exposed in the streets of Charleston with a decisive placard on their bullet-riddled breasts." The exact meaning of the above sententious bombast it is difficult to catch, but Mr. Redpath evidently felt better after delivering himself of it, for he then follows in some advice to the blacks, in which, amid all the chaff there is a goodly sprinkling of wheat, and which therefore they will do well to heed. He asks and proceeds to answer it thus:

First of all, they should be taught that they can now freely and honorably choose their political associations without reference to the past history of their race. They should be taught that the men who fought for their freedom are now in a helpless minority in the Republican party; that the blacks owe it no allegiance whatever now; and that their recognized leaders, who wield the power of the Government, are to-day the recreants who advocate and defend and decree their abandonment.

It is true that the Democratic party resisted their enfranchisement but it is equally true that the Republican party refuses to protect them in the exercise of the franchise that they gave. There is absolutely no difference whatever, now, between the Democratic Party and the Republican Party, (as represented by Hayes) on the question of the rights and condition of the negro, excepting in one important particular. That exception is a vital one. It points out the path of safety to the black voter. It points out, also, the path of duty. We owe allegiance where we receive protection. The Democrats protect the Democratic negro; the Republican abandon the Republican negro.

For myself, being a white man, and a Northern man, I propose to remain in the Republican party to do my part to purge it from the thieves on the one hand and the pedagogues on the other hand who now infest it; but if I were a negro and in the South, I should join the Democratic party at once and vote for its candidates whenever they were reputable men. Whenever they were bandits I should refuse to vote at all. I was a member of the first Republican National Committee and I have always been a Radical Republican in my political action. But I was more than that—a "Kansas Republican," a "John Brown abolitionist," and through good report and evil report, I have never wavered in advocating the rights of the negro. There is no man so black that I am ashamed to look in his face. I feel that I have done my whole duty to the black race. And with this record, unbroken by a single word or act conservative, I should urge the black men of the South, if my voice could reach them, to join the Democratic party.

If they were to do so in a body, what would be the result? Absolute protection, to begin with, in their rights of life and property. They would not be driven from their homes by the thousands as they were driven into the highways of South Carolina, Mississippi and Louisiana, because of their loyalty to the Republican party. The male creature that I know of in the Gulf States. All other males must fight for themselves. For him only, every white shot gun is ready to do battle to the death!

The exodus of the blacks to the Democratic party would make that powerful organization the champion of negro rights. There is a movement growing rapidly in the Republican party that seeks to limit the franchise to the educated class and to the holders of property. The sentiment has sprung out of the corruptions of shillalah rule in New York and other Northern cities that are controlled by the Irish vote. The democrats will resist this measure on behalf both of the Irish and the blacks, because the negro vote gives the South thirty-nine members of Congress which the Democrats have now gained forever in consequence of Hayes' Southern policy.

It will make no difference to the friends of the negro in the North whether he votes for the Democrats, (and thereby secures safety and justice for himself and his family in other ways,) or whether he persists stolidly voting for the demagogues who use him, (as Hayes has done,) as a mere ladder to political power—to be kicked aside as soon as he is used. If the black man does vote for the Republicans, his vote will not be counted—and he will gain the ill will of his white Southern neighbors without aiding his friends in the Northern States.

If there are colored men who cannot vote for Democratic candidates let them refuse to vote at all.

It is a wickedness to try to keep up a Republican party in the South excepting on the basis of a large native white vote. It will end only in still further troubles to the poor and misled and too-grateful blacks. The best thing that every black man can do in the South is to consult his own individual interest without regard to party platforms, (as President Hayes has done,) in making up his mind for whom he shall vote in all future elections.

The allies of the administration, will urge your people to repudiate my advice and appeal to them to be "loyal" to the Republican organization. Let them turn a deaf ear to these deluding demagogues—or ask them, at least, before listening to them, whether they hold an office, or are seeking an office? It would be a great triumph to the Administration if the blacks should continue to be true to the President who has betrayed them. But let the colored people seriously ask themselves, whether it will be a good thing for their race? and let them act as they shall honestly answer this question. I care nothing for political parties, but I do most profoundly sympathize with defenceless classes; and, familiar as I am with the history of the last campaign in South Carolina and Louisiana, I should refuse to believe that God governs this world if the dastardly treachery of this administration to the blacks is not visited with the destruction of the party that shall sustain it. The Republican party, if it submits to the leadership of Hayes, will not be fit to live, because it will thereby abandon both its principle and its saviors; the principle of the government of the people for the people by which Lincoln announced; and the negroes of South Carolina and Louisiana who, when the road were picketed with armed men, crawled, at peril of their lives, through the swamps and morasses and thick woods, in order to reach the county seats, where the presence of the boys in blue made it safe or even possible for them to vote. It was this silent heroism, this sublime devotion of the blacks to the party of their liberators that elected Hayes President of the United States—
