Emperor William Cabbage.

THE best, largest, hardest and most profitable variety of WINTER CABBAGE known in Europe, and imported to this country exclusively by the undersigned, where, with little cultivation, it flourishes astonishingly, attaining an enormous size, and selling in the market at prices most gratifying to the producer. In transplanting, great care should be used to give sufficient space for growth. Solid heads the size of the mouth of a flour barrel, is the average run of this choice variety. One package of the seed sent post paid on receipt of 50 cents, and one 3 cent postage stamp. Three packages to one address $1 00 and two 3 cent stamps. Twelve packages sent on receipt of $3 00.

Read what a well known Garrett Co. Marylander says of the EMPEROR WILLIAM CABBAGE:

BLOOMINGTON, GARRET Co., Md., Jan. 22, 1877.

Mr. JAMES CAMPBELL, 66 Fulton St. N. Y. Dear Sir:—I bought some seed from you last spring, and it was good. Your Emperor William Cabbage suits this climate well. On a mountain side the seed you sent me produced Cabbages weighing thirty pounds each.

Very truly yours,

HAMPTON'S POLICY.

AN INTERVIEW WITH SOUTH CAROLINA'S GOVERNOR.

He Talks to a Republican Newspaper Reporter—His Opinion of General Gary's Opposition—Treatment of the Colored Race—He Wishes a University for the Blacks—Will Resign Rather Than be Driven—Party for Hayes.

Columbia Letter to Cincinnati Gazette.

We went, of course, to call on Governor Hampton. We found in the ante-room the Commissioner of Education. He was soon admitted, and in a short time his call was ended, and we were ushered into the Governor's room. It is a commodious room, handsomely furnished under the Chamberlain regime. Judge Mackey reminds me that this was one of the fat jobs of that extravagant reign. At the further end of the room, seated at a table covered with papers, is Governor Hampton. He rises to welcome Judge Mackey, and extends also a cordial greeting to your correspondent. He is a fine specimen of manhood—not a giant, but of medium size, iron gray whiskers, and wears a genial, kindly expression on his handsome face. It is not at all wonderful that a man of such physique, and with his acknowledged qualities for leadership, should be a favorite leader. I had not gone with fell design of subjecting the Governor to a set and formal interview in which the reader would be at a loss to decide whether "our commissioner" or the Governor was doing the talking. Our conversation was easy and informal. Beginning with the natural resources of the State, the Governor took pleasure in pointing from his window the location of the falls of the river, marking the dividing line between the "low country" and the upper country, which was free from the objectionable feature of swamps. Judge Mackey managed to introduce the political question by saying that I, as the representative of a Republican newspaper of the North, was anxious to know the truth in regard to a reported division of the Democrats of South Carolina caused by the Hampton policy. The Governor was not unwilling to talk on the subject. Indeed, he answered without hesitation, saying: "Yes, there is a division; but," he added with a twinkle, "I believe the opposition includes at present only one man, and he is a gentleman of somewhat eccentric political qualities."

"The fact is," he continued, "I had so little to do in the way of furthering or mapping out my 'policy,' if such a term may be used, that there has hardly been a fair opportunity to test the question of its popularity."

EQUAL POLITICAL RIGHTS.

"Have you done any official act affecting the colored people in their political rights?" I asked.

"Yes," was the answer. "There have been two or three special elections, and as the law makes it my duty to appoint the commissioners of elections, I have, in making these appointments, been careful to give the colored men a fair representation. That will be my rule in making all appointments for elections, for I do not intend to deprive either race of its political rights. On yesterday I recommended to the House a resolution providing for the establishment of two State universities, one for the white and one for the colored people, both to be equally endowed and sustained by the State. I have studied this matter carefully, and I see no better way than the one proposed. Aside from the natural objection to educating the races together, I have it from the best authority, from men who have had experience in the education of both colored and white that the best results in mental growth cannot be obtained by tying them down to the same course of study. I am glad to say that my plan was gladly accepted by the colored men themselves in the House, and the resolution was adopted without opposition."

"Have you made any recommendation in regard to the public school fund?"

"The Legislature has acted on that subject, providing for a levy of $300,000. That will be justly divided between the colored and the white schools."

HOW THE COLORED PEOPLE ARE LOOKING TO HAMPTON.

The Governor having touched upon his policy of equal political rights for both races, seemed anxious to pursue the subject further. "Here, now," said he, "is a letter I was reading when you came in, from Hon. Carlos Tracy, of Walterboro, a prominent Democrat. This is a specimen of the interest the colored people take in the Hampton policy. The letter enclosed a correspondence between Tracy and a number of prominent colored men of that place. The colored men, it seemed, had addressed a letter to Tracy, asking him what would be the effect upon them of the new order of things. Tracy had replied, and his object in sending the correspondence to me is to ask me whether his reply received my endorsement. I have not read it all carefully over, but, so far as it goes, it is all right, and covers my views exactly, as expressed in the last canvass, and as repeated in my public utterances since I see he states the proposition which is the groundwork of my policy—the equality before the law of both races—what is law for one must be law for both."

The Governor passed to me the reply of Tracy, and I observed that the writer took occasion to say, with emphasis, the philosophy of the situation in South Carolina, to any one who studies it, is that the broadest banner of the Republican party was flown by the Democratic party when the latter acquiesced in the civil and political equality of all men.

"Here is another letter," said the Governor, "which I received from a colored man, who does not give his location. You may read it."

"These letters are among many that I am receiving, and they indicate that the colored people have confidence in my pledges. The colored members of the House and the Senate frequently consult me in regard to matters pertaining to their duties."

TREATMENT OF COLORED CALLERS.

"How is it, Governor, about your receiving these colored members? I see it stated that you deny them admittance, while you freely admit the white members."

"There is no truth in it. I have but one plan of receiving visitors. I instruct my doorkeeper (and by the way, you see," he said, turning to me, "that I have recognized the race by the appointment of a colored doorkeeper) to admit all visitors in the order in which they arrive, giving preference only to officers of the government calling on important business."

I am thoroughly satisfied that the position I have taken is the true one. I expect it to meet opposition from the violent party men who are figuring for 1880. I say to them let the issues of 1880 wait their time, and let us have rest from mere political agitation, and time to build up our material industries. I suppose some of the Northern Democrats would have preferred to have the troops kept in the South. It might be a good thing for the Democratic party success to have South Carolina suffer, but she has been a victim long enough. I am here to try and restore her wasted energies, and to do so by insuring peace and order, and equal political rights to both races. I will not be an instrument for any other purpose. If the people of South Carolina demand any other course, they must provide some other instrument."

The Governor was very free in the delivery of his sentiments, including the purpose to resign if he could not carry out his policy. He incidentally spoke of a Southern party in support of Hayes, saying that it was his belief that the real conservative element of the South, the element that wants material prosperity as opposed to those who simply seek political ascendancy, could be allied to Hayes' support.

PUTTING ON AYERS.—Dr. Ayer the inventor of Ayer's Pills, Hair Vigor and Cherry Pectoral, is now in the Lunatic Asylum, and is pronounced incurably insane. His insanity is attributed to the fact that he was defeated for Congress in Massachusetts two years ago. His fortune is estimated at fifteen millions of dollars and was made almost entirely from the sale of his medicines. If he had contented himself with staying at home and hadn't put on "Ayers" and tried to go to Congress, the result might have been different.
