tudes; some of them slept the sleep of exhaustion in spite of the horrible noise. The mob had overrun the building from basement to garret. They ransacked the cellar first in search of cells and captives, while more practical spirits moved quickly from window to window in the upper stories. Men could be seen going from room to room heaping books, bedding, curtains, clothing, all sorts of combustibles on the floors, and after an ominous pause, the fire burst from the heaps, palpitating and brightening, till in a very short time the windows began to glow like openings in a wall of flame. As the building burned, the rioters withdrew, their last act before leaving the music room being to throw a piano boldly out of the window.

FRIENDS IN NEED.

As with a wild yell the rioters disappeared, men were heard moving stealthily behind the fence which they began to tear down. They proved to be friends who broke a gap in the fence and pulled the fugitives through as noiselessly as might be; then they stambled down through a potato field to a Mr. Cuttor's house. After waiting here a while in full sight of the blazing ruin—Sister Mary John relapsing into delirium—their host hurried them away, to the mob was on the Superior's trail. Nearly a mile away, up Winter Hill, they halted and knocked at several substantial dwellings, but no one would open or even answer. Finally, as they were about to move further, a night-capped old gentleman, Mr. Joseph Adams, bobbed his head out of the capped old gentleman, Mr. Joseph Adams, bobbed his head out of the window, took them in, locked the doors, put out the light, and when the mob went by seeking intelligence of the nuns' hiding place, did some excellent dramatic "business," expressing sleepiness, surprise and disgust at being rapped up to have such absurd questions put him, lied to the rioters like a good hearted Christian gentleman, and sent them on a fools errand. Meanwhile the Superior had recovered her spirits and was bantering the girls. Feeling anxiously in her pockets, she found her snuff box, and her face brightened. "Old friend, I didn't forget you, then," she said. But which I have had the box was empty. "If I only had a clean pocket handkerchief and some snuff," she said, "I should be

While this terrible scene was being enacted by a body of a hundred men, mostly firemen, some two thousand men, old and young, of all condi-tions, stood quietly by and looked on, aiding and abetting the rioters because they did nothing to hinder them. The occurrence caused a great deal of excitement, but no decisive steps were taken to punish the rioters, nor have the Catholics ever received pay for the property thus destroyed. There are dis ffraceiul scenes elsewhere than in the South.

A LUCID EXPLANATION.—A negro preacher had elaborated a new theory of the Exodus, to wit : that the Red sea got frozen over, and so afforded the Israelites a safe passage; but, when Pharaoh, with his heavy iron chariots, attempted it, they broke through and were drowned. A brother rose and asked for an explanation of that point. "I'se been studyin' gography, and de gography say dat be very warm country. where dey have de tropics. And de tropics too hot for freezin. De p'int to be 'splained is, 'bout breakin' through de ice." The preacher straightened up and said: "Brudder, glad you axed dat question. It gives me casion to aplain it. You see, dat was a great while go-in de ole time 'fo' dey had any gography -'fo' dere was any tropics."

The News and Serald Sherman who recently escaped from the Connecticut prison is a perfect Lateretia Borgia, especially as she practiced her arts on her own family. Her case will be remembered as one of the most horrible in recent criminal annals. Her victims, according to her confession made at the time of her conviction, numbered ten, all being killed by poison, because, as she said, they would be better off in the other world.' She poisoned in this manner, in the order named, her first husband, Edward Struck, in New Jersey; Martha Ann, her six year old child; Edward, her son, four years old; George Whitfield, another son, fourteen years old; Ann Eliza, another child, Lydia, still another child, whose murder the unnatural mother does not admit; Mr. Hurlburt, of Huntington, Conn., her second husband; Franky, the little son of her third husband, Sherman, Ada, Mr. Sherman's daughter, and, lastly, Mr. Sherman himself. For this last crime she was convicted and sentenced to imprisonment for life. Her escape is a strong argument against the abolition of capital punisbment.

VEGETINE.

HE SAYS IT IS TRUE.

Wegetine.

All diseases of the blood. If Vegetine will relieve path, cleanse, purify and cure such discases, restoring the patient to perfect health after trying different physicians, many remedles, suffering for years, is it not conclusive proof, if you are a sufferer, you can be curred? Why is this medicine performing such great cures? It works in the blood, in the circulating fluid. It can truly be called the Great Blood Parifler. The great source of disease originates in the blood; and no medicine that does not not directly upon it, to purify and renovate, has any just claim upon public attention.

Vegetine.

WIII Cure Canker Humor.

ROCKPORT, March 31, 1875,

ICR, STEVENS:
Sir—Last fall my husband got me two bottles of your Vegetine to take for the Canker Humor, which I have had in my stomach for several years. Hook it, and the result was very satisfactory. I have taken st good many remedies for the Canker Humor, and none seemed to help me but Vegetine. There is no doubt in my mind that every one suffering with Canker Humor can be cared by taking Vegetine. It gave me a good appetite, and I left better in every respect.

Yours, with respect,

MRS, ELIZA ANN POOLE.
