THE LAST TIDAL WAVE.

—O—

FEARFUL LOSS OF LIFE AND PROPERTY IN PERU.

Twelve Towns and Six Hundred Persons Destroyed—A Plague of Fire and Water—Suffering of the People.

Recent mails bring full accounts of the tidal wave that struck the coast of Peru on the 9th of May. The towns of Arica and Iquique, Ponta de La Cos, Pabellon de Pien, Chanavaya, Huanilla, Tocopilla, Cobiya, Mejillones, De Bolivia, Autafagasta and Chamaral are nearly all destroyed. About 600 lives were lost. The destruction of property is estimated at $2,000,000, confined mostly to the coast, although the town of Tarapaca, 23 leagues inland, and the villages of Pica, Matilla and Caucahu, far in the interior, were more or less ruined.

At Molendo, the railway was torn up by the sea three hundred feet, and at Ilo the railway was also injured. At Arica the people were preparing temporary fortifications to repel the threatened assault of the rebel ran Hanscar at the very moment the roar of the earthquake was heard. The shocks were very numerous, and caused immense danger. The sea was suddenly perceived to recede from the beach, and a wave from ten to fifteen feet high rolled upon the shore, carrying all before it. Eight times was repeated this assault of the ocean, and four miles of the embankment of the railway melted away like sand. Locomotives, cars and rails were hurled about by the sea like so many playthings, and left in a mass of tumbled rubbish. The United States steamer, "Waterloo," stranded by the waves of '68, was lifted bodily and floated two miles north of her old position. The cable buoy was moved a quarter of a mile northward. The merchandise from the custom house and stores was carried five miles distant. The damage done was greater than that of the calamity of '68. The people passed the night on the hills. Thieves began to rob, when the troops fired upon them, killing several.

Iquique, built of wood and cane, tumbled down at the first onset. Lamps were broken, and burning oil, spreading over the debris, started a general conflagration. Three companies of firemen were instantly at their posts, although it was difficult to maintain an upright position, shock following shock with dreadful regularity. To procure water, the two best fire engines were stationed on the beach. Just then the cry arose, "The sea! the sea!" and the waves rushed in. The engines were carried out by the reflux, and the fire continued unopposed. Three elements of destruction were busy at one moment—fire, water, and the earthquake. The affrighted people left the city to its fate, flying to the neighboring eminences. The fire destroyed a large portion of the town, the earthquake leveled nearly all the rest, and the water covered the ruins which it took out in the reflux. The water condensers along the shore are ruined. This is an irreparable loss for the Iquique, as no palatable water is found. There were nearly four hundred thousand quitals of nitrate at Iquique. Chanavaya, a little town at a guano-loading deposit, known as Pabellon Depien, with 400 houses, has only two standing. Here the earthquake was followed by fire. There were no fire engines in the town, and the sea came in and extinguished the flames, but as it retired, carried off all that remained of the place. In one of the guano cuttings, thirty laborers were buried by falling earth. The earthquake was especially severe at Chanavaya. The earth opened fifteen metres in depth, and the whole surface of the ground was changed. At least two hundred people were killed. The bodies were floating in the bay, and pestilence is feared.

At Huenillas, another guano-loading station, the damage inflicted was fearful. All the houses were destroyed. The guano cuts have fallen in, and, as at Pabellon, all loading must be suspended for at least two months. The wave which succeeded the earthquake, and completed the destruction, was nearly sixty feet in height. Many vessels were lost here, together with several of those on board. In short, everything except a few huts at the back of the town has been destroyed.

At Mexillones the tidal wave was sixty-five feet in height. Two-thirds of the town was completely destroyed. The guano shoots, wharves, launches, boats, water distilleries, railway stations, locomotives, cars and furniture were all swallowed up. Six persons were drowned. At Teocipilla little or nothing remains. The Xoumine, called La Pena Danae, four miles to the southward, sank in, smothering 200 workmen, of whom forty were Cornish miners. Cobiya, the principal town on the Bolivian coast, has lost three-fourths of the houses. The wave, thirty-five feet high, swept along the main business street, and left it as a desert. The wharves and launches were all carried out to sea.

A Successful "Bluff."

The following, from the Washington Republican gives the latest incident in the noble game of bluff:

One night I was sitting by the chair of a player, who was an old acquaintance, and a Virginian. It was a pretty high game, the chips being fives, twenty-fives and fifties. At one stage of the game somebody got to raising it before the draw, and in a minute or two there was as much as $1,000 on the board. When the hands were helped one man took one card, another stood pat, another took two cards, and so did the party behind whose chair I was sitting. They all bet before he did, and the amount put up by each was, if I remember, $500 straight. When it came to my friend's turn he went into his breast-pocket, pulled out a wallet and flashed thence a certified check or draft for $3,500. Going to a desk he wrote his name across the back, resumed his seat, threw the paper in the centre and said: "Gentlemen, I've been run out of Virginia. I was once a man of wealth, but the war came and closed me out. I settled up my business the best I could, and that certified check for $3,500 represents not only the fortune I once had, but it is every dollar I have in the world. I see that $500 the gentleman bet and the balance of this check, $3,000." The man who stood pat, as he turned up his cards and showed a big flush, said, "I lay down mine." Another laid down a full; the next three aces. My friend raked in the pile and then showed his hand. He had a pair of fours.

Congratulations to Kershaw.

The Kershaw Gazette says: The tidings having been received in Camden of the almost unanimous election of General Kershaw as judge, the citizens of the town repaired in a body to his residence and serenaded him. General Kennedy introduced Judge Kershaw, who returned thanks. He then said, "It has been the dream of my professional life at sometime, to wear worthily the mantle of a judge in South Carolina. The opportunity comes to-day, clad in the majestic habiliments of a people's unanimous call through their representatives in the Legislature. It shall be my ambition with the help of God to do my duty faithfully, honorably and honestly. If I shall four years hence meet my fellow-citizens of all classes and degrees and receive their hearty well done, I shall indeed be honored. Again thanking you for this compliment, I bid you adieu."

HIGHWAY ROBBERY NEAR SUMMERVILLE.—Mr. R. R. Stutts, a trial justice who has his office at Summerville, when returning to his home at 26 Station on Monday evening, was attacked on the railroad track by two negroes, who, after succeeding in pulling him from his horse, rifled his pockets, and would perhaps have done him more injury if his screams had not brought a person living in the neighborhood to his assistance. The negroes, having taken from him all the money and papers that he had, left him stunned and severely injured, three of his ribs being broken and his body considerably bruised.—News and Courier.

A St. Louis Sunday school boy gave his teacher this illustrative definition of "responsibility": "Boys has two buttons for their spenders so's to keep their pants up. When one button comes off, why there's a good deal of responsibility on the other button."

All the great cities of the country are reducing assessments of property, the reduction in some being from thirty to fifty per cent.
