DR. W. E. AIKEN.

A TERRIBLE DEATH.—A horrible accident, resulting in the death of an aged man, occurred near the Augusta Factory, about a quarter to 8 o'clock, last Sunday night. Mr. John Davis, who had reached the ripe old age of 70 years, was an employee of the Georgia Railroad and Banking Company, having a position in the shops as carpenter. Sunday night, just before the fast train of the Macon and Augusta Railroad, bound for Augusta, was due, Mr. Davis picked up a bucket and started to the pump, just across the railroad, for some water. Just then the train came in sight, and Mr. Davis, evidently satisfied that he could cross the track before it came up, endeavored to do so. Unfortunately he was mistaken. He was struck by the pilot and pitched almost as high as the smoke stack, falling back to the earth, at the side of the track, a bleeding, mangled and unconscious being. As soon as possible, the train was stopped and the engineer and fireman ran back to the spot. Mr. Davis was still alive, but there was a terrible gash in his head, his throat was mangled and one arm was broken. Mr. Davis died in about half an hour after being struck.

A New York paper says that Governor Hampton and Attorney-General Conner have left New York for South Carolina, the object of their visit being satisfactorily accomplished. Their mission was, among other things, to arrange for a temporary loan of $100,000 to pay the present expenses of the State government and some floating claims demanding immediate attention. The two gentlemen presented the facts in the case to several capitalists of the city, and met with an immediate and favorable response, but subsequent advices from South Carolina make it probable that the loan will not be called for; already so considerable a portion of the July installment of the tax levy has been paid that by the end of the month a sufficient amount may be collected to provide for all present needs. In this event, no call will be made for the New York loan.

A CLASSIC DOCUMENT.—The following is a verbatim copy of the finding of a coroner's jury in Charleston county, written by P. T. Alston, acting coroner:

"Jury inquest held at Mt. Holly over the Body of John Grant Shot by Richard Right at Mt. Holly We the under Sining Juror. Do hereby agree that the body of John Grant Was Wilfully and Molishous Murdered and Kill By Richard Right and the Said Richard is Guilty of man Storter Did to his Greata Danger and herte against the State as it four Said and to the Peece of the People and harmonous We the under Sinurs as follows State the Body of John Grant was Shot Within fifteen Steps and the Condition of the shot in the Left Bress extent to the Right and fell Instantly."

THE JEALOUSY existing between the rival cities of St. Louis and Chicago is well illustrated by the following extract from the St. Louis Republican: "Chicago has been at its usual work again, and has just issued its annual combined hotel register and graveyard roster. The manner in which this curious and useless publication is made up is so well understood that no one will be surprised that this issue, coming out a month later than the one published in St. Louis for 1877, purports to contain 39,319 more names. Among other things it pretends to contain the addresses of 2,325 saloon-keepers, while it is said only 1,092 can be found in St. Louis, yet it claims only 262 bakeries to 240 in St. Louis. There is a show of truth in these comparisons, but not enough to give character to the whole."

CORNELIUS JEREMIAH VANDERBILT is suing his brother William H. Vanderbilt for the round sum of one million dollars. William H. got nearly all the estate of his father, Commodore Vanderbilt, by the terms of the will, and his brother and sisters think he ought to take care of them handsomely. This suit is based on an agreement which Cornelius J. claims his brother made with him in relation to the final settlement of their father's great estate. It is also claimed that the principal Vanderbilt heir made similar agreements with his two sisters. The agreements seem to have been a sort of compromise with the disinherited to buy them off from a design to contest the will.

ALL SORTS.

Blessed is the man who never says his mother's pies were better than his wife's are.

The Chicago papers call that tornado "she"—probably because it made a bustle in the outskirts.

Daniel Deronda could not put up at the Grand Union Hotel, Saratoga.—Cincinnati Commercial.

Asparagus resembles long sermons in one important particular—the ends are most sought after.

The Grecian navy, we learn from the Commercial Advertiser, won't give up a ship as long as there's a Sparta clinging to.

I am persuaded that every time a man smiles—but more so when he laughs—it adds something to this fragment of life.—Sterne.

Young Miltiades Spilkins promises to become a joker in time. The other day he labelled a private bottle that his father keeps in the side-board, "Par's nips."

"Women," remarked the contemplative man, "are as deep as the blue waters of yonder bay." "Ay, sir," rejoined the disappointed man, "and as full of craft."

Cleveland young women write comments on the margins of the library novels they read. One emotional creature writes: "The pangs of love are grate, I have been there myself."

There is a limit to everything but the destruction that follows the course of a man's big toe when he gets it through a hole in the bed quilt, and is suddenly attacked by the night mare.—Fulton Times.

A little girl in Clinton, Illinois, was teaching her little brother the Lord's Prayer, the other night, and, when she had said, "Give us this day our daily bread," he suddenly called out: "Pray for sirup, too, sister; pray for sirup, too."

A stranger arrived in St. Louis, took a look at the city and shot himself. In his pockets were found thirty cents and a stub of a lead pencil, which caused the coroner's jury to return a verdict: "Chicago editor—couldn't stand prosperity."

The cucumber season has set in, and a man is waked up at two o'clock in the morning, after dreaming that an elephant is sitting on his equator, to experience a violent regret that he has not attended church more regularly in his youth.—Norwich Bulletin.

One stray Western grasshopper wandered out this way lately and struck a Boston suburban bean-patch. When he got through he lay quietly down, repented of his misdeeds, read a chapter from Emerson, and, with a Boston girl soothing his forehead, passed calmly away into oblivion.—Puck.

A great deal of disappointment is felt among Rome dealers because the Turks and Russians do not eat more flour. Not much fighting is going on, and it would be more than neighborly for the warriors to eat an extra meal now and then, and give a lift to their friends on this side of the water.—Rome Sentinel.

IT IS WELL to keep up with the expression of Western opinion on the silver question. The Iowa Republicans, in their State convention on the 27th, ult. resolved that "the silver dollar, having been a legal unit of value from the foundation of the federal government until 1873, the law under which its coinage was suspended should be repealed at the earliest possible day, and silver made with gold a legal tender for payment of all debts, both public and private." This covers the whole ground in dispute. This is all the people of Missouri, Illinois, Ohio and Iowa, who have spoken on this subject, demand.

MEAT SHOWERS.—These meat showers now people know exactly what they are. They had one of them in Franklin, Tennessee, the other day, and a scientific man put a bit of the "meat" under a microscope and found it to be "an organism—a loricated infusoria." Each animalcule is inclosed in a shell of silica, and is one four-hundredth of an inch long. One drop contains almost fifty of these. The scientific man's theory is that they came from decaying heaps of kelp in the Gulf of Mexico.

Trial Justice Delany had Col. Sam Dickerson incarcerated in the Charleston guard house on the 9th inst. for contempt of court. The colored troops fight nobly.
